Metal Craft Signs Pact Continuing 1948 Wages

Building Dispute

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

AFL sheet metal workers yesterday signed a 1949 contract with construction industry subcontractors calling for a continuation of the 1948 wage rates.

The agreement came as the strike of AFL carpenters and building laborers passed its sixteenth day with no indication of early settlement.

Some 3500 carpenters are holding out for an increase of 10 cents an hour. They have been getting $2.40 an hour. Approximately 3500 building laborers are striking for 15 cents more an hour. They have been getting $1.35 an hour.

Attorney Francis J. Kelly announced the 1949 contract had been signed by the Sheet Metal Construction Association, representing 35 subcontractors, and Local 102, of the AFL Sheet Metal Workers. Negotiators agreed on continuing the $2.50 an hour wage rate, and according to the local, several additional fringe benefits to the 815 members of the local.

Settlement by the sheet metal workers in midst of a strike by two other AFL craft unions which has tied up $100,000,000 worth of construction in this area, is of particular significance.

In the first place, the sheet metal workers struck both in 1947 and in 1948 to obtain their wage demands. Second, a half dozen other AFL construction industry unions, whose contracts have run out, are standing by waiting the results of the carpenters-laborers' strike. Third, the union signed up with the subcontractors two weeks before the contract expiration date July 1.

The District Carpenters Council announced yesterday that its striking members, not working at other employment, will be given a $3-a-day strike benefit, retroactive to last Monday. The Laborers Council has already set up a system for helping members with food and rent money.

Butchers Accept Offer Of Hotel Suppliers

A strike threatening deadlock in negotiations between seven hotel supply houses and two locals—AFL meat cutters and AFL truck drivers—was ended yesterday, when negotiators for the unions accepted the offers of the employers presented by attorney Joseph B. Danzansky.

Under the new agreement the drivers will get 6 cents an hour pay increase. They got $1.05 an hour under the old contract. The butchers, who have been receiving $1.50 an hour, get a 4-cent-an-hour increase in pay, with time and a half after 8½ hours' work on any day. The butchers also get a 40-hour week, Monday to Friday, with time and a half for work on Saturday.

There was no change in the strike of AFL warehousemen and truck drivers against eight wholesale produce and fruit companies at the Union Terminal Market, and in the walkout of 100 AFL drivers against four pie-making companies here.

Senate Votes Anti-Red Oath For Employers

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday accepted in modified form a fourth provision of the Taft-Hartley Act and then opened a nip-and-tuck battle to compromise a fifth—national emergency strike machinery.

Written into the Administration's labor bill by a voice vote was a new version of the Taft-Hartley provision for non-Communist oaths. The new language requires affidavits from employers as well as union officials.

Both must swear that they are not Communists, Fascists or supporters of a subversive organization before they can take a case before the National Labor Relations Board.

The earlier amendments require both unions and management to bargain in good faith, require both to file annual financial statements and guarantee freedom of speech to employers short of threats or promises of reward.

Unlike the present law, the fourth concession approved yesterday would exempt from signing non-Communist, non-Fascist affidavits a union or company that could show the NLRB it was effectively barring subversives from leadership.

Immediately after yesterday's vote, Senators started maneuvering for position in split efforts to compromise the Taft-Hartley Act's 80-day injunctions in national emergency strikes.

Senator Paul Douglas (D., Ill.) finally won the preferred spot. He jockeyed the plant-seizure compromise, jointly offered by himself and Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.), into place for the next vote.

Here is what happened: Senator

Truman Calls Spy Agitation 'Hysteria'

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday dismissed the current turmoil over espionage as a manifestation of postwar hysteria such as have occurred after other national crises.

It would, he declared, subside as it had in the past. For example, he cited American history through the Jefferson administration and pointed out that the hysteria subsided then and the country did not go to hell at all.

And it isn't going to now, the President added.

As far as his own Administration was concerned, Mr. Truman said, he was confident that no members of the executive branch were gripped by this hysteria. If he found that they were, he added, he would clean them out.

Pressed to say whether FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, lately under fire for investigation methods of his agency, had offered his resignation or intended to resign, the President said he had never heard of it. He denied categorically that Hoover had submitted his resignation, backing up a similar denial by Attorney General Tom Clark Wednesday.

"Does Hoover have your confidence?" a reporter asked.

The President replied that Hoover had done a good job.

He was reminded of his statement last week that the current rash of spy investigations amounted to a lot of headline hunting and agreed that was all they were. Then he was asked if that description included Hoover.

The reporters, he replied, could make their own assay of that situation as well as he could.

Mr. Truman gave his conference a lesson in American history during discussion of espionage and subversive investigations. He suggested the reporters read the history of the Alien and Sedition Acts in the 1790s under almost exactly the same situation. They would be surprised, he said, at how closely parallel the cases were.

(The Alien and Sedition Laws, enacted by a Federal Congress in 1796, resulted partly from fear of a threatened war with France and partly from an effort to weaken the Jefferson Republicans. Three of the laws dealt with aliens, one lengthening the time of residence before naturalization, another empowering the President to deport any alien he deemed dangerous, and the third designed to control enemy aliens in time of war.

(The fourth law, and the one which drew the greatest criticism was enacted July 14 and was known as the Sedition Law. This act set up severe penalties for criticizing officers of the Government and for other political activities. Virginia and Kentucky Legislatures enacted resolutions condemning it and it aroused such antagonism and bred so much sympathy for its victims that the Federalists ceased to enforce it.

Asked if he thought the hysteria he described was appropriate for a strong and powerful country, Mr. Truman said such things happen after every great war. He recalled the resurgence of the Ku Klux Klan after World War I and its ultimate disintegration under public disapproval.

When a reporter suggested that

Britain, Tito Negotiating Trade Treaty

London, June 16 (AP).—Britain's envoy to Yugoslavia said today this country is on the verge of completing a five-year trade pact with Marshal Tito's government.

The disclosure came in the midst of new reports that Yugoslavia's Soviet satellite neighbors are increasing their efforts to put an economic freeze on Tito.

Yugoslavia put out an official statement through the Tanjug news agency accusing Hungary of running out on a trade agreement.

This followed Yugoslav charges of similar tactics by Czechoslovakia and a toughening Polish attitude.

Agreement on the new five-year trade pact between Britain and Tito was predicted by Sir Charles Peake, British ambassador, as he left for Belgrade after three weeks of conferences here and in Paris.

Unofficial estimates were that the pact would involve about 800 million dollars worth of goods. British manufactures would be traded for timber, grain and food.

Britain's present one-year trade pact with Tito expires in September. It involved exchanging 60 million dollars of British machinery for Yugoslav food and raw materials. The 12-month deal is reported to be working out well.

The official Yugoslav statement on Hungary said stoppage of trade happened suddenly.

Tanjug said this was all part of a systematic Hungarian campaign to break down trade relations.

Ex-G-Girl Tells Court She Never Was Disloyal

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

Judith Coplon yesterday swore in District Court that she was not guilty of any offense against the Government.

Miss Coplon took the witness stand to deny that she used her Justice Department job to turn spy against her country and for Russia.

She was not seeing the Soviet citizen Valentin Gubitchev to transmit to him the Nation's secrets but because she thought she was in love with him, she told a breath-holding courtroom.

She is not and never has been a Communist, she said.

She has never been involved in subversive activities against the United States, she added.

She related trysts with Gubitchev in New York, how she met him in the Museum of Modern Art, went rowboating in Central Park, dining in Greenwich Village, visiting to the Medieval Cloisters. But the only thing she ever gave him, she said, was a necktie for Christmas and a box of Toll House cookies.

She never, she said, gave him Government secrets — and never intended to.

Miss Coplon and Gubitchev were arrested March 4 in New York after FBI agents had trailed them over a period of months. She had in her purse then the now-famous 34 "data slips"—extracts of FBI reports.

She testified she frequently took material from her Department of Justice job home to her McLean Gardens apartment here to work on it at night—the "usual course" of many employes.

She told the court that Gubitchev, a Russian U. N. engineer, had demonstrated by "words and manners" that he loved her. But it was a kissless love affair except for one time he tried to kiss her—on the night of January 14 with an FBI agent looking on, which she didn't know then.

It was amid dramatic scenes that Miss Coplon took the stand.

Defense Attorney Archibald Palmer announced at 2:52 that he was calling Miss Coplon and the court recessed briefly.

Miss Coplon remained a moment at the defense table. Then she pushed her chair back, walked over three steps and knelt before a black-clad, ghost-faced wraith of a woman who sat twisting her hands beneath a handkerchief, her lips biting against each other.

HENRY JULIAN WADLEIGH
Admits he gave secret documents to Whittaker Chambers

Economist Testifies for Prosecution; Active '36-'38

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

New York, June 16. — Henry Julian Wadleigh today calmly admitted that while he was a State Department economist he gave secret documents to Whittaker Chambers, which were transmitted to Russian agents.

Wadleigh began supplying documents to a Communist spy ring in 1936 "as soon as I entered the State Department," he declared, as he appeared here as a prosecution witness in the perjury trial of Alger Hiss.

He continued removing these papers at least until "some weeks prior" to March 9, 1938, when he went overseas to negotiate a trade agreement with Turkey. While he did not specifically disclose whether this activity continued when he returned from Turkey, Wadleigh said he ceased taking such risks after the 1939 Nazi-Soviet Pact, which brought him "serious misgivings."

Wadleigh is the first person to state publicly, since last year's espionage hearings before the House Committee on Un-American Activities, that he gave secret Government papers to any unauthorized person.

Chambers, admitted courier for a spy ring and chief prosecution witness in the trial of Hiss, had named Hiss and Wadleigh as two of five "sources" of documents within the Government.

A tall, mild-looking man of 44, of dark complexion, and wearing spectacles with large lenses, Wadleigh seemed wholly willing—in fact, eager—to recount his espionage activities. The three-year statute of limitations bars prosecution on this charge.

Wearing a rumpled blue suit and striped tie, he took the witness stand at 3:20 p. m. in a "surprise" appearance, and promptly launched his account under the questioning of Assistant United States Attorney Thomas F. Murphy.

Wadleigh spoke in a cultured, relaxed tone, occasionally blinking his eyes rapidly, in contrast to his uneasy attitude before the House committee last December, when he refused to answer questions on constitutional grounds.

An Oxford University graduate and son of an Episcopal minister, Wadleigh was a Federal employe from 1930 to 1946. He now lives near Vienna, Va., with his wife and three children.

While it was not stated today, it was clear from Wadleigh's testimony that he had made similar espionage admissions last December, in appearing before a Federal grand jury here.

That was the same grand jury that indicted Hiss for perjury in

Four Powers Fail to Reach Berlin Accord

By Joseph W. Grigg, Jr.

Paris (Friday), June 17 (U.P.)—The Big Four foreign ministers today failed to reach agreement on Berlin and Austria. After starting what was expected to be an all-night session, they adjourned at 12:25 a. m. until Sunday.

After meeting for 5 hours and 15 minutes yesterday the foreign ministers recessed at 8:45 p. m. until 11. They entered Talleyrand Palace prepared to work until dawn or later. But in little more than an hour, they found immediate agreement impossible and adjourned.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky left for the Soviet Embassy. Secretary of State Dean Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman remained for a talk by themselves.

The next meeting, secret like tonight's, was set for 3:30 p. m. Sunday.

This will be followed by a normal or plenary meeting Monday, and it was indicated final adjournment was planned then.

The two-day recess will permit

Hoffman Sees U. S. Trade Hit By Cut in ECA

The Senate drive for a sharp cut in Marshall Plan funds received a jolt yesterday, when ECA "by request" showed what it would do to American shipments abroad.

Asked what a billion-dollar slash in 1950 ECA funds would mean, Administrator Paul Hoffman broke some bad news to the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Aside from the "catastrophic" effect it would have on European recovery, Hoffman said such a cut would severely reduce purchases of American cotton, wheat, tobacco, fuel lumber and other commodities.

Questioning of Hoffman underwent a curious change. Senators immediately started inquiring about the impact of a cut on commodities produced in their own sections.

Senator Guy Cordon (R., Oreg.) finally broke in to wisecrack:

"If this is going to be a matter of American relief, we could double the appropriation and they'd purchase more."

Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.), who had been asking about tobacco, replied tartly that he wasn't supporting the program because it helped any industry.

The ECA administrator hammered away at the effect of such

Wages of Sin $150 a Week For Police, Madam Testifies

Los Angeles, June 16 (U.P.).—Attractive, well-groomed Brenda Allen, 31, convicted madam of a swank Hollywood callhouse, told the county grand jury today the complete story of her operations in the movie colony.

The convicted panderer was brought from her county jail cell into the grand jury chambers to testify in an investigation of alleged payoffs to members of the police vice squad.

Miss Allen was the principal witness at the grand jury's hearing into long-rumored charges that officers had received payoffs from operators of places of sin.

After listening to Miss Allen for nearly two hours, Jury Foreman Harry Lawson announced the district attorney's office at his request had invoked a State law swearing the 19 jurors to silence on her testimony.

Lawson said the action was necessary because of the sensational nature of Miss Allen's story.

"She is a very good witness, a very good witness indeed," one juror remarked.

[Police Sergt. E. V. Jackson, whose chummy recorded conversations with Miss Allen have been played before the jury, was called to testify briefly. The Associated Press quoted a jury spokesman as saying Jackson denied he had ever received any money for protection.

[Jackson was taken from his plainclothes vice squad job this week and put back into uniform at an outlying station. Four other policemen named in the inquiry also went to uniformed jobs, the Associated Press reported.—Editor's note.]

'Grace Period' for Gamblers Declared Over in Mt. Rainier

Mount Rainier police were poised yesterday for an immediate crackdown on gambling on orders of crusading Mayor Herbert Reichelt.

Reichelt, sworn into office five weeks ago, revealed last night he had warned gamblers "to close up or clear out." He said the "period of grace" he had given them was now up.

"We will be completely ruthless in our campaign to drive gamblers out of town," he declared. "We'll raid them every night and go back the next afternoon if it is necessary.

"If we can't find evidence to get into their establishments, we'll post a policeman at their doors to ask the names and addresses of visitors and check license tags too."

Reichelt said he and his new chief of police, John W. Wise, former District detective, contacted suspected gamblers and warned them to clear out. He gave them "a period of grace," he said, because "there had been an obvious laxity in enforcement of our gambling laws."

"Under the circumstances I felt it was only fair to give them some warning as it has frequently been police policy to warn persons who are known to be violating the laws," said the Mayor.

Neither he nor the chief would disclose how many persons had been warned or how prevalent they believed gambling was in Mount Rainier.

Reichelt said the grace period did not mean he condoned gambling. Asked why the raids were not made without warning, he replied:

"We are not interested in spectacular raids nor in persecuting any man. But the citizens of Mount Rainier have given us a mandate to clean up the town and we intend to do just that."

Reichelt said voters had given him a "mandate" by electing him on his campaign platform to "take police out of politics" and rid the town of "all lawless elements."

Judge Delays Slot Licenses For Ruling on Law's Validity

By William H. Smith
Post Reporter

Issuance of slot machine licenses in Prince Georges County was held up yesterday by Judge Charles C. Marbury until he rules on the validity of the law.

Judge Marbury issued an oral injunction against issuing licenses—necessary before the machines can be used legally. He said he would not put the order in writing if counsel for the county commissioners agreed to abide by his oral ruling. Counsel agreed.

The judge expressed doubt on validity of the slot machine law, approved at a referendum June 2, during a Circuit Court hearing at Upper Marlboro on a declaratory judgment sought by a Montgomery County pinball machine operator.

The operator's suit did not challenge the law in its entirety, but sought merely to invalidate those provisions restricting licenses to residents and property owners of Prince Georges County.

The jurist said his doubt stemmed from the fact that the statute authorizing the referendum failed, in either title or body, to include provision for amending or repealing a State gambling law which otherwise would outlaw the devices.

In other Maryland counties where special acts have been adopted to legalize gaming machines, Judge Marbury noted, the statutes specifically provided for either amendment to or repeal of provisions of the State law "inconsistent" with the newer laws.

Despite absence from the slot machine bill of any provision either to repeal or amend the State law, Judge Marbury said he intended to study one section of the new statute with a view to determining if it is "strong enough to imply repeal of the State code."

The section to which he referred says State laws forbidding gambling shall not be "construed as prohibiting, penalizing or making unlawful the keeping, maintenance, operation or distribution for opera-

Truman Denies Idle Total Means 'Crisis'

'Must' Legislation

Truman Sees Brannan Plan Enactment

President Truman said yesterday he wants the Brannan farm plan enacted at this session. He predicted Congress will do it. The program calls for subsidies to farmers and lower prices for consumers.

The President added that all of it may not get through now, but contended some of it already has passed.

He disagreed with some reports that the plan would be deferred until next year for campaign purposes.

He said that is not the objective at all—that farm legislation is part of the Democratic platform and he is trying to get it enacted.

Mr. Truman made his comments as bipartisan support built up in Congress behind a bill that would bypass both the Administration measure and the Aiken law due to go into effect January 1.

The new proposal would continue rigid 90 per cent of parity price supports on major farm products for another year. The Aiken law sets up a flexible system of supports at 60 to 90 per cent of parity.

Parity is a price calculated to be fair alike to producer and consumer.

President Truman yesterday said he does not regard present unemployment as critical.

His statement was in reply to a news conference question. The President added that the Administration's viewpoint on unemployment will be expressed in an economic message now being prepared for Congress. This report probably will go to the Capitol in three or four weeks.

Mr. Truman presumably referred to his regular twice-yearly economic report.

The latest Census Bureau report shows 3,289,000 persons are now out of work and looking for jobs.

The question of unemployment was raised by a reporter who asked about Mr. Truman's conference Wednesday with Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers.

Reuther had told reporters on leaving the White House that the Administration was aware of the unemployment situation and would attack the problem aggressively.

In Cleveland yesterday, Reuther called for an immediate national conference to halt what he said appears to be a looming depression.

Reuther, addressing the National Conference of Social Work Wednesday night, said labor, management, agriculture and Government leaders should meet to study the rising unemployment figures.

"Depressions are man-made," he asserted. "What man makes he can change. We've got to step up to the simple fact that if we have a depression now, we might lose not only our homes and farms, but freedom, too."

Another depression like that of 1929 would prove to be "Joe Stalin's ace in the hole," he added

Owners Fight Safety Plan In Mine Bill

By The Associated Press

A coal operators' spokesman yesterday charged that a proposal to put "teeth" into the Federal mine inspection law is unconstitutional.

James W. Haley, counsel for the National Coal Association, said a bill by Representative Price (D., Ill.) to provide penalties for operators who refuse to close down unsafe mines would violate the constitution.

He gave his views to a House Labor subcommittee after Price testified that penalties are needed because mine inspectors "can't expect any better cooperaton in the future than they have had in the past."

Haley argued the Price bill will "destroy the spirit of cooperation" and "add nothing to the program of education and promotion of mine safety."

He also contended that State mine laws "will become inoperative" if Congress gives Federal inspectors the authority to order the evacuation of miners from dangerous areas under the threat of a fine and prison sentence.

He said passage of such a bill probably would be followed by operators' attacks on its constitutionality. He argued that coal does not enter interstate commerce until after it is mined.

Price told the committee the operators had complied with about 45 per cent of the inspectors' recommendations following the Centralia, Ill., disaster in which 111 miners were killed. Before that, he said, the compliance amounted to about 25 per cent.

Federal inspectors can only make recommendations regarding the correction of hazardous conditions found in mines. They leave to State mine departments the enforcement of such recommendations.

J. J. Forbes, chief of the health and safety division of the Bureau of Mines, said the enactment of the Price bill "would eliminate a situation that now exists in which the inspector has to helplessly walk away from an imminently dangerous candition in many instances because of the lack of authority to require corrective action."

Sloan and Wilson See Business 'Storm Signals'

Detroit, June 16 (AP).—Alfred P. Sloan, jr., and C. E. Wilson see "some storm signals" for American business.

However, they say they have "no reason for fear of a real depression in the near future."

The two top men of General Motors Corp. discussed business conditions at a meeting of 400 G.M. dealers last night.

Sloan, chairman of the General Motors board, said "I cannot think there is anything as unsettling today as in the 1929 and 1930 period," he said.

Sloan said business is "dropping to a lower level" but he declared it was being done "in a very orderly way."

He warned that "we can frighten ourselves into a real recession."

Wilson, GM's president, said his company is "certainly watching the situation."

"You know the situation in coal. You may have a strike in steel July 15."

Miners' Official Declares Walkout Will End Monday

Pittsburgh, June 16 (AP).—The Nation's 480,000 United Mine Workers will end their week-long walkout on schedule Monday, a high UMW official said today.

"I've just received a telegram from John L. Lewis requesting the miners to go back to the pits," John Busarello, president of UMW District No. 5, told the Associated Press.

Lewis called the walkout to "stabilize" the industry. He now is in the midst of new contract negotiations with the industry to replace the contract expiring June 30.

The miners will work only five days next week. On June 25 they'll start their annual paid vacation for which they receive $100 apiece.

2 Martitime Unions Sign 2-Year Contracts

New York, June 16 (AP).—Representatives of two CIO maritime unions and East and Gulf Coast ship operators today signed two-year work contracts covering more than 60,000 seamen.

The pacts must be approved by the union membership. The old contracts expired last midnight.

Involved were the National Maritime Union, representing 60,000 workers, and the American Radio Association representing 1400 radio operators.

The agreements provide for a $7.50 monthly increase to be added to the present base pay as a clothing allowance. Both the ARA and NMU originally sought a 15 per cent wage boost. Able-bodied seamen, the largest category, now receive $222 a month and radio operators from $306 to $390.18.

Both agreements contain similar clauses calling for retention of the union hiring halls pending a U. S. Supreme Court decision on their legality. Should the hiring-hall procedure be outlawed by the high court, the contracts stipulate that negotiations would be reopened.

Eberharter Hits Back at Bar Group

By The Associated Press

Representative Eberharter (D., Pa.) accused the American Bar Association yesterday of calling him "unfit" for a Federal judgeship "without even knowing me, approaching me, or hearing any defense."

Eberharter's nomination by President Truman to be a Federal judge for the Western Pennsylvania district has been opposed by the association's judiciary committee. The Congressman said the committee's attempt to "indict" him was "done in open defiance of each of their separate oaths and obligations to support and defend the Constitution and its rights, if not also in violation of the ethics to which they profess to adhere so firmly."

Myers Praises Candidate

Eberharter made his statement to a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee which is considering his nomination.

Senator Myers (D., Pa.) described Eberharter to the committee as an outstanding member of Congress whose legal ability and sincere concern for the public welfare would make him a fair and conscientious judge.

Numerous witnesses—including Majority Leader McCormack (D., Mass.) of the House, Chairman Doughton (D. N. C.) of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Judge Clair F. Ross of the Pennsylvania Superior Court—also testified in behalf of Eberharter.

Indorsements Received

Numerous letters from Allegheny County officers and judges of the Alleghany County Court of Common Pleas indorsing Eberharter were introduced into the record.

Others who spoke in behalf of Eberharter were Representative Simpson, dean of the Pennsylvania Republican delegation; former United States Senator Guffey of Pennsylvania; Judge Harry E. Kalondner of the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit; Representative Fulton (R., Pa.); Representative Jenkins (R., Ohio) and James A. Wright, Pittsburgh lawyer and former Congressman.

Steel Workers Get Flat 'No' On Pensions

Pittsburgh, June 16 (AP).—U. S. Steel Corp. today handed the CIO United Steel Workers a flat "no" to the union's demand for bargaining on pensions.

Vice President John A Stephens, of U. S. Steel, said in a statement the contracts with the union "are reopenable at this time only with respect to rates of pay and insurance benefits."

He added:

"By the terms of these contracts they cannot be reopened to permit the union to make a pension demand."

President Philip Murray of the steelworkers, said in a statement:

"The United States Steel Corp. is morally, legally and contractually obligated to bargain with the United Steelworkers of America on pensions as well as the other proposals made by the union."

The negotiations, called under a provision which permits reopening of wage issues, did not break down over the pension refusal.

Senate Votes For Boss' Oath

Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), offered his own proposal, permitting either 60-day injunctions or seizure of struck plants in national emergency strikes. Douglas promptly offered his plan, strictly confined to seizure authority, as an amendment to Taft's.

Then Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.), offered his plan, requiring the President to submit each critical strike to Congress for settlement, as a direct amendment to the bill.

Temporarily, the Ives plan became the pending business, but not for long. Douglas again sent his seizure proposal to the desk, this time as an amendment to the Ives plan.

"In the language of cards," he told Taft and Ives, "I'm trying to trump both your suits."

The Administration's bill, authorizing a 30-day cooling-off period, doesn't provide for either injunctions or seizure. The compromise effort is directed at finding something somewhat stronger (than the bill's language) that the President will sign.

Taft opened the debate with a defense of the T-H injunction procedure. He denied it has caused any "serious interference with individual liberties." He criticized the Douglas and Ives proposals as ineffective.

"The injunction does get results," said Taft. "One union leader has cost his union a lot of money defying injunctions. I doubt very much if that injunction is going to be repeated by other labor leaders or by himself."

Douglas said there are three known ways of dealing with national emergency strikes—compulsory arbitration, injunctions or plant seizure. He called his own seizure proposal "the least evil."

"I don't like any of them," he said. "This method (seizure) isn't ideal . . . But I believe it will effect settlement of the vast majority of such disputes."

Press Union Hearing Record Gaps Probed by House Group

NYHT News Service

The possibility of sabotage of the transcript of a House labor hearing was ordered investigated yesterday by Representative John Lesinski (D., Mich.).

Lesinski, chairman of the House Labor Committee, said he had instructed Representative Andrew Jacobs (D., Ind.) to conduct a full study of circumstances surrounding important omissions from the official transcript of testimony taken before a subcommittee. Jacobs, chairman of the Subcommittee on Democracy in Unions, discovered the omissions Tuesday.

After his discovery, Jacobs ordered the Legislative Reporting Service, Inc., of Washington, the firm that makes transcripts of hearings, to produce the notes of the stenographer who took the testimony. The hearing involved the subcommittee's investigation of the International Printing Pressmen's Union and manipulations of union funds by its late president, George L. Berry.

The stenographer, Russell Nicklin, furnished six additional pages of testimony yesterday, according to Jacobs. The new pages, double spaced, were gleaned from his notes.

Lesinski said that the stenographer had pleaded that he had been overworked and was tired when he covered the hearing on June 4. Jacobs said after an initial check with the stenographer that too much testimony was missing to be "inadvertent." He repeated that assertion again yesterday.

One of the most glaring omissions from the transcript was an admission by George L. Googe, vice president of the Pressmen's Union, that the 1948 convention of the organization was misled into approving payment of $26,960.47 in back tax claims against Berry. Googe said that the convention was led to believe the payment covered only $2587.

Old-Age Benefits For 12 Million More Under Plan

By The Associated Press

The House Ways and Means Committee may be nearly ready to recommend that about 12 million more workers be blanketed under old-age insurance. That was the unofficial word yesterday from secret committee meetings.

The newly covered workers are not expected to include five million farm operators and 3,500 farm workers.

This was reported to be the tentative action on President Truman's proposal that 20 million additional workers be insured. About 30 million already are qualified for old-age benefits under this phase of social security.

CIO Phone Union Starts Campaign For Recognition

Chicago, June 16 (AP).—The CIO Communications Workers of America announced today a campaign for recognition by the Bell Telephone System, to be backed by a Nation-wide strike, if necessary.

Delegates at the CWA's third international convention approved a motion instructing the union's executive board "to take such action as may be necessary" within the next 90 days "to make effective all division contracts now being violated and dishonored by the companies and to restore recognition of the divisions as bargaining agents."

FBI Moves to Halt Terror in Alabama

Birmingham, Ala., June 16 (U.P.). The FBI moved in on Alabama's hooded terror today while in Georgia a new "hate" group was reported to have sprouted on the model of the defunct Columbians, Inc., race-baiting gang.

Some Birmingham citizens, led by flog victim B. G. Stovall, bought arms to shoot it out with the next intruders in white. Sheriff Holt McDowell said marauders might descend on any home on the pretext its occupants were "misbehaving."

An affidavit filed with Judge Clark Edwards in Elberton, Ga., named Homer Loomis, jr., convicted organizer of the Columbians, as a leader of the alleged "American Bilbo Club."

The new club was believed to have backing by "foreign and subversive interests," the affidavit alleged.

In addition to Loomis, jr., Homer Loomis, sr., Emory Burke, Ira Jett, Ralph Childers, et al, were named as leaders. Homer Loomis, sr., New York shipping attorney, defended his son during the Columbians trials. The others named were former Columbians leaders.

The elder Loomis, the affidavit said, devoted a lot of time during a recent trip to Georgia "in the formation of and the securing members for the American Bilbo Club."

All facts on the three recent depredations by hooded raiders in the Birmingham area have been forwarded to the Justice Department in Washington, local FBI Agent George King announced.

The Justice Department's interest is whether the three victims' civil rights were abridged in violation of Federal law.

In each case the sheeted hoodlums censured their victims and punished or intimidated them.

Sheriff McDowell gave the citizens a mandate to shoot to kill in defense of their homes.

Stovall, 31-year-old Navy veteran who was flogged 20 times with a leather strap Tuesday night, bought and loaded a gun. He and his waitress wife, Roxie, both said they would shoot the raiders if they made a threatened second visit to "beat them black and blue" for allegedly leaving the children alone at night.

The Stovalls denied they have neglected the children. A neighbor said she came in and looked after them when it was necessary for both parents to be away at work.

Clarence H. Knight, a brother-in-law of Loomis, filed the affidavit with the same judge who presided at Loomis' trial on riot charges.

The affidavit was filed in opposition to Loomis' plea for new trial

Pander Gets Into Trouble Over Woman

Ellis (The Sheik Wright, 45, 1404 Swann st. nw., who was quoted as saying he had been "putting girls to work" for him for 30 years, yesterday in District Court was convicted on five counts of pandering.

Testifying against Wright was Kathleen B. Horton, 1600 20th st. nw., who told the court that Wright had enticed her into prostitution a number of times during February and March.

She said she gave Wright $81 in proceeds from four "dates."

On another occasion she said, Wright beat her because she left a place of prostitution. Angered, she complained to police.

The woman testified she was making an "honest living" as a phone operator when she met Wright. She asserted Wright told her he had plenty of "police connections" and that he could have her locked up whenever he chose.

She said Wright told her he feared only one judge—John P. McMahon—"and he's dead now."

W-L Celebrates 200th Birthday Beginning Today

Lexington, Va., June 16 (AP). Washington and Lee's three-day national bicentennial celebration got under way today—with about 1500 of the old grads from classes dating from 1878 dodging showers to participate in the activities.

From all parts of the United States, Latin and South America and Europe the alumni have come to help the institution observe its 200th birthday.

Visiting dignitaries, including members of a United States commission established by joint congressional resolution, are to participate in the formal convocation Saturday.

Alumni will march in a grand parade tomorrow, and it will culminate in a barbecue on the front campus for 2000 persons.

Rains in East Ease Threat To Crops

Chicago, June 16 (U.P.).—Rains came to the relief of the parched and crop-threatened East today, while in some Western areas farmers battled grasshoppers and bugs.

The Eastern rains were expected to break a three-week drought which had raised crop threats and forest fire hazards along the Atlantic seaboard from Maine to Virginia.

Truck crops were in danger in some States and vine crops already had begun yellowing. Forest fires were reported in New Jersey and an outbreak of blazes was feared in Maine and New Hampshire.

[Thirty deaths of New Englanders were attributed to the five-day siege of heat and humidity, according to the Associated Press.—Editor's note.]

New York City marked its twenty-first day without rain for its longest springtime drought.

Most Western growing areas had plenty of rain, and in some cases too much, but faced another peril in the summer onslaught of crop-destroying bugs.

At Gillette, Wyo., planes dropped poison bombs on part of a grasshopper nesting grounds covering 1,500,000 acres. First reports of the bombing were good and officials planned raids over an additional three million acres of farm and range land in Wyoming and Montana.

As many as 2000 half-grown 'hoppers were reported per square yard in the area.

South Dakota farmers battled a plague of "green bugs" which were sucking the life out of small grains over hundreds of thousands of acres. Some farmers reported losses of 10 to 15 per cent of their crops. Ironically the State needed a dry spell to arrest development of more green bugs.

VA Says He's Dead but Beane Denies Report

McCoole, Md., June 16 (AP).—The Veterans Administration office in Richmond, Va., says Roy L. Beane, 26, of McCoole is dead, but Beane denies it.

Mrs. Juanita Beane, the alleged widow, received a letter from the VA office declaring "it is with regret that the Veterans Administration has learned of the death of Roy L. Beane and is taking this opportunity of offering assistance in application of benefits."

Mrs. Beane had talked with her husband only a few hours before when he left for work at the plant of the Celanese Corporation of America near Cumberland.

The Beanes had not quite finished laughing about the communication when a second letter arrived.

The second paper went into detail about how the widow could secure burial allowances.

Beane was discharged from the infantry in November, 1945, after seeing action in Europe where he was wounded twice.

How came all this to pass? the VA was asked.

The Beanes used to live at Keyser, W. Va. Recently a benefit check to Beane was returned from Keyser to the Treasury office here stamped "veteran deceased." The Treasury turned it over to the VA. The VA set the customary machinery in motion.

"That's all there was to it," a VA man said. "It happens every once in so often."

Widow of Envoy, 80, 'Spells' News Vendor So He Can Lunch

New York, June 16 (AP).—Every day at noon the white-haired lady, in her wheelchair, trundles out of her apartment building on New York's fashionable East Side.

She heads straight for the newsstand on the corner. A few minutes after she arrives, the operator goes off for his lunch and Mrs. E. Burd Grubb—of the Social Register—is in charge.

She makes change quickly, urges newcomers to return, has a cheery word for old customers, apologizes for the temporary absence of a Racing Form. Many in the neighborhood know her but no one blinks an eye.

Mrs. Grubb is the widow of an Ambassador to Spain, mother of a former president of the New York Curb Exchange, and sister of T.-O.M. Sopwith, the millionaire English yachtsman and airplane manufacturer.

She holds the Royal Order of Maria Louisa, conferred on her half a century ago by Queen Maria Christina of Spain. She explains "it gives you private entree to all the courts of Europe" but adds, "of course, there are so few courts now."

Mrs. Grubb had a bad accident which required five or six operations about two years ago.

"I found I would never walk again," she said. "I would come in my wheelchair and sit on this corner. And one day I said to the man who ran the stand, 'when do you get your lunch?' and he said, 'well, some days I don't.' So I began spelling him. That's how it all started.

"I get too much credit for doing so little. This has helped me more than it's helped the one I relieve. Because it made me feel that I was of some use again."

Spotty Rain Brings Area Some Relief

The clouds continued to drop pin-point bombardments of rain on Washington and nearby Maryland and Virginia yesterday.

Parched pastures and farmlands were thirsty for the rain after a record spring drought of 17 days and farmers were further cheered by the promise of more rain in the next 24 hours.

Late yesterday a Weather Bureau spokesman announced: "We expect some pretty good showers tonight and more tomorrow." Continued humid weather and a high of about 80 were also predicted here today.

The Weather Bureau said the rain which fell Wednesday and shattered the dry spell has been very spotty. There have been a number of spot showers since then. A shower would deluge one small area while a mile away the sun would be shining.

But all of the spots at one time or another received rain, the Weather Bureau reported.

Illustrative of the spotty nature of the rainfall was the Wednesday night shower which fell at National Airport where the Weather Bureau is located. A few miles away, at Griffith Stadium, the baseball game proceeded without rain.

As of 2:10 p. m. yesterday, the Weather Bureau station at National Airport had measured .39 of an inch of rain for the preceding 24 hours.

However, 60 miles south, at Gordonsville, Va., almost an inch of rain fell in the six-hour period between 7:30 a. m. and 1:30 p. m.

Farmers welcomed what rain did fall but want to see more, lots more.

At the office of Fairfax County Agent Joseph E. Beard it was said there probably had been enough rain to help cultivated crops but not enough to help pastures and second crops of hay. It was not thought the drought had been intense enough to cause any permanent damage to crops, with the possible exception of the second hay crop, if the county gets some rain now.

W. Lawson King, Montgomery County dairy farmer, said the spotty rain had not given much relief to the dairy farmers. Growth of the second hay crop has been retarded about a third, King estimated.

Berlin Russians Halt Traffic by Mistake

Berlin, June 16 (AP). — Russian highway guards gave Berlin a new case of blockade jitters today.

Guards on the Autobahn outside Berlin halted Western Allied traffic without explanation for almost two hours this evening. Later the Russians said it all was a mistake.

A half dozen British and American automobiles were stopped and told they could not proceed.

There were immediate rumors that the Russian land blockade which lasted from June, 1948, to May 12, 1949, was on again. They proved false.

A Russian colonel reported to the American checkpoint on the highway that a mistake had been made. He told an American sentry that his enlisted men were "new and untrained."

The Allied cars were told at first they needed travel documents stamped by the Soviet high command to go through the Russian zone from the Western border at Helmstedt to Berlin.

Such a requirement would have amounted to a new blockade.

By mid-evening, traffic was flowing normally.

In His Palace

Church Head Believed Held At Prague

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 16 (U.P.).—Reliable church sources reported tonight a police guard had been posted in the palace of Roman Catholic Archbishop Josef Beran and two members of his staff had been arrested.

It also was said Beran had been forbidden to leave the palace. The government ministry of information said it had "no information" on the matter. No one answered the palace telephone.

According to church sources, representatives of the Communist government installed themselves in the archbishop's office and were checking all correspondence and communications.

Beran has been embroiled in a bitter church-state fight with the regime. Church sources said four officials from the ministry of education and national action committee showed up at the palace Tuesday, claiming that under law they were permitted to install officials to control all church papers. The archbishop replied that he could not permit the installation of government supervisors.

Beran then called a meeting of Catholic bishops. Ten police arrived and demanded the keys to the consistory. The archbishop finally surrendered them and police search of the palace continued until late in the night.

Thieves Get Loot Worth $36,600

Baltimore, June 16 (AP).—Mrs. Anna Behrman, one of the country's largest dealers in automobile parts, today reported to police thieves had taken $36,600 worth of jewels and furs from her home yesterday.

The loot included scores of diamonds, rubies, platinum pieces and two mink jackets, Mrs. Behrman said. The loses are covered by insurance.

Jewish-Arab Peace Talks In 'Deadlock'

Mark Ethridge, American representative on the Palestine Conciliation Commission, reported to President Truman yesterday that Jewish-Arab peace talks are "deadlocked."

Despite this, he said, the three-nation commission will present a plan to the United Nations Assembly in September for internationalizing the holy city of Jerusalem.

Ethridge also told reporters he would submit a formal resignation and return to his post as publisher of the Louisville Courier Journal.

He said Israeli and Arab representatives must adopt "entirely new approaches" if they are to attain peace treaties formally ending the Middle East conflict. But, he added, "I am not certain they will find a new approach."

The State Department, meantime, denied it was seeking a settlement in Palestine that would deliberately favor either the Arabs or the Jews. Press Officer Lincoln White made the statement when questioned about remarks attributed to Israel Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett in the Parliament at Tel Aviv on Wednesday.

Ethridge said there is "not a word of truth" in reports that he is quitting because he is unhappy with the backing he has received from the State Department.

Israeli and Syrians Resume Truce Talks

Mishmar Hay Yarden, Palestine, June 16 (AP).—Israeli-Syrian armistice talks were resumed today in a friendly atmosphere after a month's interruption caused by a deadlock.

Reds Ready New Textile Strike in Italy

Rome, June 16 (U.P.).—Communist union leaders today told Italian workers to stand by for new strike calls.

The Textile Workers Union told its 400,000 members they would be ordered to quit work if industrialists stuck to their decision to break off national contract negotiations.

One million seasonal farm workers continued their 4-week-old strike, but the two million regular farmhands who struck for 24 hours in sympathy with them yesterday returned to the fields today. Some migrant workers near Foggia set up picket lines around farms and refused to let the regular farmhands go back.

Premier Alcide de Gasperi's middle-road government was faced with another threat today. The right-wing Socialists opened a special congress to decide whether they will remain in the coalition cabinet.

The congress was expected to bring a showdown between party leader Giuseppe Saragat, Vice Premier and Merchant Marine Minister, and the movement's extreme leftists, who think the government has failed to deliver promised social reforms.

4 Satellites Attack U. S. in WHO Session

Rome, June 16 (AP).—A priest-politician from Communist-dominated Czechoslovakia led a Soviet satellite attack today on United States policy in the World Health Organization.

His charge of American "double-dealing" was echoed by delegates from Hungary and Bulgaria at the WHO Conference here. All three intimated their countries might quit the organization as the Soviet Union, White Russia and the Ukraine did last February. At that time the Russian members said WHO was ineffective and cost too much.

The attack was led by Father J. Plojhar, Czechoslovak Minister of Health who has been suspended by the Catholic hierarchy of his country for refusing to quit the government after the Communist coup. The Vatican also has denied him the right to say mass here.

Dr. Irene Domanska, Polish delegate, joined the other satellite representatives in charges that the United States was withholding medical supplies, equipment and scientific know-how.

The satellite attack today concentrated on what the Eastern delegates called attempts by the United States to use the WHO for ideological purposes. The health organization is a specialized agency of the United Nations.

The Czechoslovak delegate charged the United States refused to license certain medical equipment and supplies for export. This may have been a reference to the refusal of the American Government to send radioactive isotopes to Iron Curtain countries.

American Envoys Are Dupes of Socialists, Right-Wing Paper in England Complains

London, June 16.—The extreme right-wing British weekly, Truth, today labeled three high-ranging American diplomats "ventriloquist's dolls" for the ruling Socialist government.

It expressed amazement at "their capacity to be duped and humbugged and bamboozled."

The three are Lewis Douglas, United States Ambassador to Britain; W. Averell Harriman, roving ambassador in Europe for the Economic Recovery Administration, and Thomas K. Finletter, United States administrator of Marshall aid in Britain. It said: "Their intentions are undoubtedly excellent. Unfortunately, it is not their intentions that matter.

"Objectively, Mr. Douglas and his two colleagues are—however unconsciously — betraying the American way of life . . . Because of credulity and ignorance."

The writer complained that all three praised the "extraordinary effort of recovery" by the Socialist government. They ignored mentioning, he said, that Britain "has been kept afloat from the beginning by American dollars and by nothing else." He said of Douglas: "He seems to have swallowed the Socialist policy at one gulp; he is the complete marionette."

A Socialist victory in 1950, the article continued, "will mean the end of free enterprise in Britain. It will put this country so far on the road to totalitarianism that there will be no turning back. Does the United States want that?

"The answer, presumably, is no. Let the United States, therefore, tell Messrs. Douglas, Harriman and Finletter to stop acting as the chief unwitting propagandists for British socialism. If the Socialists win the 1950 election a very large part of the responsibility for that disaster will rest on the shoulders of these three Americans."

Britain Faces New Strike

London, June 16 (AP).—Progress was made today toward ending Britain's railroad labor problem, but Londoners faced the threat of a power blackout.

Railway workers voted to call off their wildcat "Sunday only" strike which, for the last four weekends, has paralyzed traffic in northeastern England and Scotland.

This apparently paved the way for a resumption of deadlocked talks on railroaders' complaints about wages and working conditions.

The railway executive, which runs the country's nationalized railways, broke off negotiations with the rail unions last week. It said it could not deal "under the duress" of an unofficial strike.

Meanwhile, there was a possibility of a new unofficial walkout by London members of the Electrical Trades Union. If it develops, the city's home and streets would be thrown into darkness and its electric transport system crippled.

Hoffman Sees U. S. Trade Hit

a cut on the European recovery effort itself. He said a spiral of reduced imports, reduced production, reduced exports and reduced imports again would have a multiplying impact on Europe "of the order of 7 to 11 billion dollars a year."

"A setback of this magnitude at this time would surely make it apparent that we have given up hope of achieving recovery in Europe," he said.

Hoffman estimated a billion dollar slash would mean these cuts in dollar purchases here:

Wheat, 30 million dollars; fats and oils, 25 million dollars; dairy products, 30 million; other foods, 40 million; corn, 75 million; protein feeds, 10 million; tobacco, 50 million; cotton, 100 million; fuels, 100 million; metals and ores, 85 million; lumber, 35 million; other raw materials, 63 million; machinery, 125 million; freight earnings of United States flag vessels, 50 million.

Wherry had also requested information on the likely impact of a 500-million-dollar cut, and Hoffman produced another itemized table on how that would affect dollar purchases.

The ECA administrator said the effects of a 500-million-dollar cut would be "identical in character and only proportionately less serious in magnitude than . . . a billion-dollar cut."

Exports Slowed

Dollars Get Still Scarcer, Cripps Finds

London, June 16 (U.P.).—Great Britain's dollar problem is "temporarily" growing worse because the world no longer offers a sellers' market, Sir Stafford Cripps, chancellor of the exchequer, said tonight.

The changed situation, Cripps said, gives Britain increased difficulty in selling goods and getting American dollars.

Cripps spoke at a dinner of the Pilgrims in honor of Thomas K. Finletter, retiring chief of the Economic Cooperation Administration in Great Britain.

Cripps joined Finletter in crediting the ECA with turning back communism in western Europe.

America's unprecedented financial help "changed the whole political as well as economic outlook of Europe," Cripps said.

Finletter called for a continuing drive to tear down barriers against travel and trade.

"Those which affect the movement of persons could be done away with tomorrow," Finletter said.

Bomb Material Hunt Related at Inquiry

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

An ultramodern detective story of a search for the mysteriously missing explosive that makes atom bombs was spread upon the record of the Joint Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee yesterday.

In the end the heroes appeared to be the youthful William Bordon, staff director of the committee, who first suggested where the missing container might be, and FBI Agent W. Rulon Paxman, who insisted the scientists pull it out of a special dump at the University of Chicago on the off chance it might be the missing bottle.

Still unsolved, however, is the question of what has become of 3.49 grams of the U-235, out of a total of 30 grame which originally disappeared. The rest has been recovered from a laboratory waste can.

A Bottle or a Jar?

Through pages of testimony the committee was led back and forth over the question of whether or not the container was a brown laboratory glass bottle, as originally described, or whether it really was the plain glass pint Mason-jar type of laboratory bottle as recovered from the steel casket where radioactive materials are buried.

All the elaborate scientific tests of the Atomic Energy Commission and the full scientific apparatus of the Federal Bureau of Investigation were put to work, according to testimony, and came up with the answer that the plain glass bottle had in fact once contained the missing U-235 in its oxide.

In addition, two Argonne laboratory chemists yesterday appeared before the committee and identified photographs of their own handwriting on the label of the plain Mason-type bottle as describing its original contents.

Start of the Confusion

The confusion about the brown vs. clear glass bottle appeared to have arisen, the committee was told, because several witnesses originally told the FBI and other assorted sleuths that they thought the missing material had been in a brown bottle.

In addition, as in best detective-story tradition, there was an extra twist thrown in by the vitamin-eating habit of Chairman Brien McMahon (D., Conn.). He once held up a bottle of vitamins in a brown bottle and told reporters the missing container was something like this. So brown it was.

At any rate, Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), who has charged AEC Chairman David E. Lilienthal with "incredible mismanagement," said he is still not satisfied with what happened to the bottle—and whether it was brown or clear.

Wants the Contents

The committee's own scientific expert was not so much bothered about the bottle.

What he is concentrating upon is the still missing 3.49 grams of missing uranium.

The committee's expert, Dr. Ernest W. Thiele, assistant director of research for the Standard Oil Co., said at the conclusion of his testimony that the committee now knows as much about what happened to the missing 3.49 grams as it knew several weeks ago—in short, nothing.

Hickenlooper insisted there is still a possibility of espionage being involved.

Dr. Walter H. Zinn, chief of the AEC's Argonne laboratory in Chicago, said the FBI told him they had ruled out espionage. Furthermore, said Zinn, if he or anyone else familiar with the laboratory were bent on stealing some U-235 for espionage purposes, there was a much better way to do it. McMahon said he needn't tell that one in public.

An Urgent Experiment

Zinn, who built the first atomic-reaction pile in this country, said the enriched U-235 was lost in the metallurgical department at Argonne where it had been sent in connection with an "urgent experiment." He did not elaborate on the nature of the experiment.

After the work was done, he continued, "machine chips" of the U-235 were put in a bottle which was deposited in a vault with a three-way combination lock. Ordinary, unenriched uranium was kept in the same vault.

Then, on September 16, 1948, materials in the vault were shifted to a central vault for "dead storage," he said, but the U-235 was left out although a voucher indicated it was part of the shipment.

Zinn said a young employe who packaged the uranium for shipment did not fully understand the complicated bookkeeping involved well enough to know that something had been left out.

"A slip was made," he said, when the shipment was not checked before going into the dead storage vault to find out what the package contained.

He said an audit is now made both when sending and receiving uranium.

Inquiry Is Demanded

Later in the afternoon Representatives Chet Hollifield (D., Calif.) and Melvin Price (D., Ill.) demanded an investigation of what they thought was a cabal to attack Lilienthal.

They wanted magazine articles and a writer investigated, and they made references to "trigger-happy" admirals and generals whom they said wanted to gain control of the A-bomb.

Lilienthal told the committee that the AEC's working relationships with the military are "as good, wholesome and wholehearted as I have seen anywhere in the public service."

He has asked FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover to investigate the magazine article for "security leaks" Lilienthal declared.

Army to Ask Defense Fund For A-Plant

Representative Jackson (D., Wash.) yesterday said the Army soon will ask Congress for 29 million dollars for defenses at the Hanford atomic plant in Washington State.

He said the money would be for defense equipment and to build garrisons to house troops to be assigned to guard the plant.

Jackson is a member of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee. He said he could not divulge the number of troops.

Jackson said the first of the garrison buildings will be ready in September, 1950, and the others will be completed in 1951.

2 GOP Aides Grow Cool to Atom Probe

By Robert S. Allen

Two Republican members of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee don't think very much of Senator Hickenlooper's probe so far.

They are Representatives Carl Hinshaw (Calif.) and Representative W. Sterling Cole (N. Y.).

A third member, Representative Melvin Price (D., Ill.), says flatly, "It's a complete bust. It was purely political in origin and has consistently laid an egg."

The three investigators voiced their views although the end of the weeks-long inquiry is still not in sight. The observations also coincided with two reports circulating in GOP quarters.

One is that Hickenlooper had appealed for aid, in his crusade against Atomic Chairman Lilienthal, to Senators Guy Cordon (R., Oreg.) and Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.).

The other report credits Senator Arthur Vandenberg with having remarked privately: "Hickenloooper overstated his charges against Lilienthal. He hasn't made out a case so far and it doesn't look like he will."

While critical of the investigation, Representatives Hinshaw and Cole were restrained in their comments.

"I doubt whether there will be anything spectacular before the hearings end," Cole said. "I think Hickenlooper may have something in charging a certain amount of mismanagement. But he has overstated his charges."

Another authoritative pronouncement is forthcoming on the hotly controversial question of the unemployment trend.

The Public Affairs Institute will issue a report predicting unemployment will reach six million this year and soar to eight million next year if the "present rate of economic decline continues."

The institute is an independent research organization. It is financed chiefly by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

Scientist at Bottom Of Vesuvius' Crater

Naples, Italy, June 16 (U.P.).—An Italian scientist today said he had touched the bottom of the crater of volcanic Mount Vesuvius after trying for five years.

Prof. Giuseppe Imbo, director of the Vesuvius Observatory, said there were no signs the volcano would erupt soon.

He said he and two assistants were lowered 900 feet by ropes to the floor of the crater three days ago. The crater, he said, was a silent mass of lava with the only noise an occasional hiss through a crack in the bed.

150 Rebels Killed In Burma Oil Fields

Rangoon, Burma, June 16 (A.P.).—The government said today the army had killed 150 rebels and captured 140 in the Yenangyaung-Chauk oilfield area on the upper Irrawaddy River last weekend.

It also reported seizure of big quantities of arms, ammunition, motor transport and stores and nearly 80,000 rupees (about $26,000) believed stolen from the Burmah Oil Co.

Rebel forces let the oil company operate while they held Yenang-Yaung but were accused of taking its income.

Free Thought Endangered, Rotarians Told

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—A pioneer in atomic research raised the fear today that science in the United States might become as shackled by "political thought" as it once was in Germany under Hitler.

Dr. Arthur Holly Compton, chancellor of Washington University in St. Louis, told the closing session of the Rotary International Convention that many scientists are asking "whether even in the United States thought can be free and humane motives be supreme."

He said progress demands the "self-discipline" of free men, agreed on a common goal but each having a "chance to know the situation so that he can choose intelligently what his own part shall be."

"Many scientists," Dr. Compton said, "left Nazi Germany because science was not free. Knowledge that brought mere understanding or which was equally useful to all mankind was labelled the unimportant 'Jewish' science. Only that which gave distinctive advantage to the Reich earned the name of 'German' science.

Military Pay Measure Gets Start in Senate

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Senate consideration of the military pay bill got off to a flying start yesterday, with only one really formidable obstacle in sight—the congressional economy drive.

Hearings before the Senate Armed Services Committee opened on the House-approved measure under these favorable circumstances:

1. Defense Secretary Johnson made a personal appearance before the group to urge quick action, terming pay legislation "the most important' defense bill before the Senate.

2. Senate Majority Leader Lucas of Illinois said the measure will be considered on the floor as soon as the committee reports it. He called the bill "absolutely needed" and predicted its passage.

3. Chairman Tydings (D., Md.) brought the measure before his committee with dispatch. Normally, legislation passed by one house lies over anywhere from a few days to several weeks before hearings are set before a committee of the other body. Tydings did not wait for the House bill to be referred to his group, but had hearings under way the morning after the House acted.

Johnson appeared before the group to back the House bill as a "just and reasonable pay and retirement program." He was followed to the stand by John Hoen, executive secretary of the Hook Commission, a civilian group which drafted the pay system on which the bill is based.

Personnel chiefs from the Pentagon had just begun explaining the measure in detail when the committee adjourned until today. Charles R. Hook, who is chairman of Armco Steel, will be the first witness this morning.

It appeared likely yesterday that the chief threat to passage of the bill is an effort of a bipartisan Senate bloc to cut appropriations and avoid either new taxes or deficit financing.

Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.), chairman of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on the Armed Services, told reporters yesterday he believed the 1950 military spending bill could be cut by a billion dollars. He suggested taking much of it out of Air Force procurement.

Senator Byrd (D., Va.), a ranking member of the Armed Services Committee, is a strong economy advocate, as is Chairman Tydings. The latter has not yet indorsed the bill, despite his scheduling of hearings on it. Republican policy makers have backed a Tydings proposal calling on the President to cut appropriations by from 5 to 10 per cent.

Johnson Gives Reasons

Johnson yesterday advanced these reasons for prompt passage of the bill:

1. It provides "pay commensurate with responsibility," doing away with juniors receiving more than their seniors.

2. Abolishes special pay, which costs a great deal of money without providing an incentive to advancement.

3. Equalizes physical-disability retirement and the quarters-allowance system between officers and enlisted men.

4. Makes needed reforms in the physical-retirement system.

5. Most important, it is aimed at attracting oustanding young men to choose military service as a career.

Truman Sees Spy 'Hysteria'

it might be a good thing to clean out of the FBI files all unsubstantiated allegations, Mr. Truman declined comment.

Might Favor Ban on Disclosure

He said the Attorney General had not taken up with him the difference of opinion between Hoover and Dr. Edward U. Condon, head of the National Bureau of Standards, because there was no reason to do so. Condon had demanded that Hoover apologize to Mrs. Condon because of a reference to her in an FBI report made public in the trial of Judith Coplon.

The President agreed there might be something useful in a reporter's suggestion that investigative reports be protected by law from publication. He said such a law would relieve the executive branch of making decisions about release of such reports.

Milton Berle Reweds Joyce Matthews

New York, June 16 (AP).—Milton Berle, stage and television comedian, was remarried today to his former wife, Joyce Matthews, in a quiet wedding.

They were divorced in Reno on October 22, 1947. With their 4-year-old daughter, Victoria, they plan to leave Friday for Hollywood, where the comedian will begin work on a new picture.

Truman Answers Press Query By Citing Herblock Cartoon

"Okay—Now To Find Somebody That Can Read"

President Truman yesterday let Herblock, The Washington Post's prize-winning cartoonist, answer a question for him at his news conference.

The President was asked if he saw any threat to educational freedom in a suggestion of the House Un-American Activities Committee that schools and colleges furnish it with a list of their textbooks.

That question, he replied, was pretty well answered in a cartoon in The Washington Post of the same morning. He suggested the reporters look at it and promised it would entertain them.

Coalition Sweeps Poll In British Columbia

Vancouver, British Columbia, June 16 (U.P.).—Final returns in the British Columbia elections gave the coalition of Conservative and Liberal parties a total of 41 seats in the Legislature today against 7 for the Socialist and Labor parties.

The Cooperative Commonwealth Federation (Socialist) won only six seats in the 48-seat provincial Legislature—a loss of six places.

Sunday Flights Halted

Toronto, Ontario, June 16 (U.P.).—Trans-Canada Airlines today suspended Sunday excursion flights over Toronto today after a church group charged it violated the "Lord's Day" Act.

Judith Coplon Swears She Never Stole Secrets to Transmit to Russia

torney Palmer said across the room.

The mother of Judith Coplon burst into tears. Her daughter, kneeling at her feet, held hard to the pale, bony hands.

Palmer walked over to his line-up of throat lozenges on the jury rail, selected an orange mint and crammed it in his mouth.

"Clear a pathway, clear a pathway . . ." the marshal's call was heard from the corridors.

The 75-year-old Judge Albert L. Reeves entered the court as the crowd outside spread apart for him.

The jury followed him.

The courtroom doors were closed.

Palmer's voice carried through the court:

"Judy, take the stand."

It was 3:05 p. m.

"You solemnly swear . . . the truth, the whole truth, nothing but the truth."

The girl in green, black-checked crepe dress replied in a low voice, "I do." She stepped into the witness box and sat back. Her brunette curls rested on the collar of her dress.

Her throat showed at the V neckline of her dress. Her bosom moved in a breathing that seemed just slightly harder than normal. She sat with legs together at first, then crossed them, a black shoe dangling. She wore brown-with-black tone silk stockings.

"Give your name," Palmer addressed her.

She leaned forward and whispered it to the clerk. Palmer asked her to speak up so the jury could hear.

"Judith Coplon . . . 108 Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"You have to feel as comfortable as you can under strange circumstances," Palmer said. "I know, you've never been in a court before."

"Judy, you were indicted on. . ."

"False," She Replies

And the rotund defense lawyer read the first count brought by the grand jury here, charging her with "from on or about December 10, 1948, to March 4, 1949" copying and taking Government documents "with intent and reason to believe that the information was to be used to the injury of the United States and to the advantage of a foreign nation. . ."

"Is that true or false?" Palmer asked.

"False."

Palmer read the second count, charging she removed FBI data slips "containing intelligence reports relating to espionage and counter-espionage activities in the United States."

"Is that true or false?"

"False," the defendant replied.

"Are you an American?"

Denies Ever Being Communist

"I am."

"Judith Coplon, are you or were you ever a Communist?

"I was never and I am not now."

"Were you ever involved in subversive activities against these United States?"

"Never."

Palmer waited a moment, took two steps towards the witness box, stopped.

"I ask you, Judith Coplon, before this jury before which you are being tried, are you guilty of any offense against these United States?"

"I am not," Miss Coplon replied.

Miss Coplon was asked by Chief Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., to speak more loudly. Palmer suggested she take a drink of water from the glass on the witness box. She smiled and declined the water.

"I don't know how loud to talk."

He asked her: "The night you were arrested and questioned in New York (March 4), did you know what for?"

"I had not the slightest idea," Miss Coplon said, shaking her head.

"You were with Gubitchev?"

"I was."

"When was the first time you ever met this man Valentin Gubitchev?"

"Labor Day weekend, 1948," Miss Coplon said, "—on a Saturday."

Palmer then took Miss Coplon through various phases of her recent life: Her five years of employment in the Department of Justice. Before that Barnard College in New York on a scholarship, managing editor of the Barnard Bulletin, a major in history, mainly American history, a cum laude graduate. A camp counselor in summer vacations.

Her father was in the Spanish-American War and her brother in World War II, he had her bring out.

Her father had been ill for four or five years, was pretty much an invalid and has died since her arrest . . . his widow sobbed as these matters were related, her hands twisting under the white handkerchief.

"Were you ever in Russia at any time in your life," Palmer asked.

"Never," Miss Coplon replied.

Q. Judy—you told us you met this man Valentin Gubitchev—where."

A. The Museum of Modern Art, New York.

Q. Now, tell us, in your own words, how.

"It Was Modern Art"

A. I went to the Museum this day—Saturday, Labor Day weekend. I was looking around at the pictures. It was modern art, a lot of surrealistic, cubistic and so forth pictures.

Q. By the way, are you interested in art?

A. I am.

Q. Music?

A. I am.

Q. Since how long?

A. As long as I can remember.

Q. You often go to museums on your days off?

A. Yes.

Q. You'd been living in Washington, how long?

A. About four years.

Q. During that time you'd lost sight of most of your friends in New York?

A. Yes.

Q. So here you are looking at the pictures in a museum. Now tell us how Mr. Gubitchev first came to your attention.

A. I was standing looking at a picture—they have a whole gallery of cubistic art. . .

Cubism Discussed

Q. For my own benefit, that's art about the future, isn't it?

A. (Miss Coplon smiled.) No, that's surrealistic, I'd say. Cubistic is more in planes.

Q. So you're looking at the pictures. . .

A. Yes, a small group of us at first, and a man said to me, "What do you think of that?" I said "Not much, it's rather confusing." That turned out to be Mr. Gubitchev.

Q. Then what?

A. We continued walking around, looking at the pictures, discussing them.

Tells of Her Work

Miss Coplon subsequently told the jury of her work in the Justice Department as a political analyst—"someone who does research and has knowledge of various political trends." She testified that Raymond P. Whearty, now one of her two prosecutors, was once head of the Foreign Agents Registration Section in which she worked.

It was Whearty who once got her a raise, who called her "Judy," who along with other coworkers gave a luncheon for her at Hogate's before her trip to Europe. Earlier in the day he had testified he had asked to be let off prosecuting her because he felt a "degree of relationship there." He said he was asked to "go ahead and do your duty." He testified he would not be prosecuting her if he did not believe in her guilt.

Palmer went ahead to touch on one of the main defense explanations why Miss Coplon had FBI slips in her purse when she was arrested.

Q. You had occasion night after night to bring work from the Department of Justice to your own apartment?

A. Yes.

Q. This was ths usual course?

A. Yes—so far as I know.

Q. Why did you take it home?

A. So that the work would get done.

Q. What did you do with it then?

A. I brought it back.

Her work as a political analyst, she said, dealt with the Slavic countries among others. She testified that she told Gubitchev only that she was employed in the Department of Justice in Washington. She had been cautioned, she said, not to tell people that she worked in the Foreign Agents Registration Section.

Gubitchev never asked questions about her employment or the nature of it, she said, and the only thing she ever discussed with him about her work was a personal problem in connection with it.

Between their first meeting before a modern painting in New York on Labor Day weekend, 1948, and January 1, 1949, she saw Gubitchev about six times, Miss Coplon said.

Miss Coplon traced the romance she said she had with the 32-year-old Russian. After the first meeting he called her in Washington the latter part of September, she said, and she went to New York and met him.

Q. What did you do?

A. We went rowing in Central Park.

Q. Did he do the rowing?

A. (smiling). Mostly—I'm not very good at it.

Tells Where They Ate

Q. After that . . . you seem to eat a lot, did you go some place to eat?

A. Yes, we went to Longchamps.

Q. Now, during all this time you've been in Government service, you'd not met the man you'd fallen in love with or he had fallen in love with you—successfully, I mean.

A. (A slight laugh.) That's right.

Q. But you found Gubitchev a charming person?

A. I did.

Q. Now, tell the jury how he impressed your female heart and mind—let the jury hear it from your own lips.

A. I thought he was attractive. He had an enormous knowledge of art, literature and music—I'd never met any other person who knew so much about them. He was a sensitive, intelligent person, a gentleman . . . I thought he was charming.

Ate in Greenwich Village Next

Q. So this charm grew on you . . . now we have you rowing in Central Park . . . When did you see him next?

A. October. We ate in Greenwich Village.

Q. Had he taken you home on any occasion before?

A. The Central Park time, he took me up in the elevator to the apartment my folks have in Brooklyn. He didn't come in.

Another rendezvous occurred the end of October at Columbia University, where, Miss Coplon said, Gubitchev's work as a U.N. construction engineer from the Soviet delegation took him.

'He told me he had some work to do on a U.N. construction problem," she said. "He was using the large library in South Hall."

A Mild, Pretty Day

But it was a mild, pretty day, she said, and afterward they walked down nearby Riverside Drive and Gubitchev suggested they visit the Cloisters.

Q. The cloisters? Describe to the jury what the cloisters are.

A. They're a collection of medieval cloisters, parts of medieval churches which have been brought from all parts of the world and restored. Not all parts are authentic, but some are.

Q. And medieval art, also armor, things of that sort?

A. Yes, there are knights in armor.

Q. So you went there with him. You spent the time examining art, cloisters . . .

A. Yes. But it was also beautiful outside. You can look down from the cloisters and see the George Washington Bridge. It's a beautiful view and we didn't stay all the time inside, we went out and looked at it.

The important defense questions came:

"He had informed you in words or manners that he was in love with you?" Palmer asked.

"Yes, he had," Miss Coplon said.

"And you—you had returned his affections?"

Miss Coplon hesitated, her face rather drawn now, her lips together, while a deep quiet settled over the courtroom. The defense had arrived at one of its main contentions.

"I thought I was in love with him, yes," Miss Coplon said.

So went her romance, Miss Coplon testified . . . Judith making trips from Washington to see him in New York.

Yet another time, she said, they met last Christmas Day.

"It was at Rockefeller Center," she said to an avidly-following audience, "right near the skating rink. We went into a place on 6th ave. and got some coffee.

"He had been operated on not long before that, he felt ill and said he could stay only a short time. I asked him again if he could come over and see my family."

Word "Intend" Is Important

Q. Judy, the Government claims you had these papers . . . did you ever intend to give anything to Valentin Gubitchev?

(The word "intend" is important—the Government does not charge that Miss Coplon passed secret FBI documents to Gubitchev on March 4, only that she had them in her purse when she was arrested with the Russian.)

A. Never . . . that Christmas Day I gave him a tie I'd bought in Washington.

Q. What else?

A. Some Toll House cookies.

Q. Judy, did Mr. Gubitchev from all the times you first met him up to the last time you ever saw him . . . did he ever kiss you?

A. Never. Except on January 14 he tried to when I got so upset—that's when I got so furious.

Her tantrum that night, she said, came from her discovery that Gubitchev had a wife. She'd never known, he'd never told her before, she said.

January 14 Is Date

January 14 is an important date in the trial. Besides being the date on which Miss Coplon says she first learned she was having rendezvous in New York with a married manfi, it is also the first of the three nights on which, according to testimony thus far, FBI agents trailed her and Gubitchev in New York.

The scene in which Miss Coplon said Gubitchev informed her of his marital status took place with an FBI agent looking on and watching their every move.

Miss Coplon testified about the January 14 meeting, by the fact that the FBI agent who watched her that night sat not fifteen feet away in the courtroom watching her again as she told about it. He is Special Agent T. Scott Miller.

The Night of the Scene

Miss Coplon related about the night and the scene:

She and Gubitchev were leaving the restaurant in New York. Thinking she was in love with him and having heard from him that he loved her, she had asked him out several times to see her family in Brooklyn. Always he had excuses. As they were eating, she pressed him again to come home with her and see her parents. He said he had to leave in a hurry. They finished eating and went outside.

Q. What happened then?

A. He told me there was something he had to tell me. He said he couldn't keep on this way any longer. He told me he was married and started telling me how miserable he was with his wife. But I was so astounded, so furious . . . I felt so imposed on that he had kept it from me all the time that he was married . . . I just let loose. I started crying. I had a newspaper and I started brandishing it, hitting at him. . . .

Q. What did he do?

A. He started saying I was provincial like other American women. He told me his life was miserable . . .

Q. Judy, agents have testified that on Sherman avenue you beat him with your fists . . . You lose your temper at times?

A. I guess so.

Q. When you feel hurt, you do cry, you do hit?

A. I was so indignant, I wasn't sure what I was doing.

Miss Coplon was on the stand for 55 minutes yesterday and will be there again today when the court reopens at 10 a. m.

Tryst Details Told By Judith Coplon

from Kelley, who prosecuted Axis Sally.

Miss Coplon appeared calm on the stand yesterday, the more so as her testimony went on.

Her hands, with which she occasionally gestured, did not shake, nor did her voice. She wet her lips from time to time but never turned to the glass of water at her side.

Her face was dead serious except for an abrupt smile at some ironic suggestion. As when Palmer observed: "You were intrigued at first coming to Washington—but not since."

Most of the time her head was held back, high.

Denies Discussing Job

To her knowledge, she said, she never during that trip associated with Communists or persons engaged in subversive activities.

Nor did she, she said, even discuss her job with anyone. Her passport listed her as "analyst."

"Everyone thought I was a psychoanalyst," she said, smiling briefly, "and I didn't discuss my job so as not to confuse anyone."

In Europe, it was art that fascinated her. The Vatican Galleries in Rome, the Uffizi in Florence . . . "and all the art that they have in Italy right in the streets and the churches."

It was this famous gallery, she said, that really set off the conversation in September with Gubitchev. For she had been there not long before, her boat having sailed from France July 14.

It was art and such things she discussed with the Russian, she said. Never their actual work. She didn't talk about hers and "he couldn't tell me much about his."

The 55 minutes' testimony went along with almost no prosecution objections, a striking contrast to the situation there has been with other witnesses, with objections bursting by the scores from both sides.

Kelley did object at one point.

Palmer had asked Miss Coplon what she and the Russian did when they left the Museum of Modern Art together.

She said they had ice cream sodas at a place on 5th ave.

Palmer then stopped to offer in evidence a descriptive catalogue and postcards of the museum.

"Doesn't prove anything," Kelley said. "Anyone can buy them by the hundreds."

"Your honor," Palmer flared up, "will you be so good as to tell him to act like a gentleman. He's so anxious to convict this girl he'll say anything."

The line at District Court formed hours before the trial resumed yesterday. Housewives, Government girls, and now and then a Marine captain or an Army major were telescoped against the wall, waiting for seats.

"Where's Judith? Where's Judy?" the whispers hissed through the corridors as the hour for trial was at hand.

Communist Editor Must Stay in Jail

JOHN GATES
Can't get bail

'Worker' Man Denied Bail By Jackson

Justice Robert H. Jackson of the Supreme Court yesterday refused to order release on bail of John Gates, editor of the Daily Worker and a defendant in the Communist conspiracy trial in New York.

On June 3, Federal Judge Harold R. Medina cited Gates in contempt for refusing to answer a question under cross-examination. He ordered Gates jailed for 30 days, or until he answers the question.

Gates has appealed to the United States Circuit Court in New York. His attorney, Harry Sacher, asked Jackson to free Gates on bail. He said that the decision of the Circuit Court may not be given until after Gates has completed his sentence.

Quadruplets Born In Jersey Hospital

Long Branch, N. J., June 16 (AP). Monmouth Memorial oHspital announced that quadruplets, two boys and two girls, were born there today to Mrs. Raymond Caffrey of Union Beach.

The babies were premature and are in critical condition, the hospital said. The births followed a five-month pregnancy.

Mrs. Caffrey, wife of Raymond Caffrey, was listed as in "good" condition.

Wadleigh Admits Giving Papers to Chambers and Red Spy Ring

denying that he gave documents to Chambers, in early 1938, and also denying that he saw Chambers after January 1, 1937.

Asked, "Were you ever a Communist?" Wadleigh today replied, "I collaborated with the Communists . . . I was never a member of the party."

"Would sympathizer be the correct term?" asked Prosecutor Murphy.

"Yes," answered Wadleigh.

Wadleigh appeared in the United States District Court here after Ramos C. Feehan, an FBI expert, testified that 64 of 65 typewritten copies of State Department documents—which Chambers had in his possession—were prepared on the same typewriter which was once owned by the Hisses.

Feehan compared the typing with letters sent by the Hiss family, and said there was no doubt they were typed on the same machine. The typewriter involved is an old standard-sized Woodstock. Hiss said he had such a typewriter until some time in 1938.

Wadleigh testified that he came to the State Department in March, 1936, as an economist in the Trade Agreements Division. That division came under the general supervision of Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre in 1938 when Hiss served as assistant to Sayre.

"Did there come a time," asked Murphy, "when you were working for the Government that you took documents out and gave them to unauthorized persons?"

"Yes," replied Wadleigh, without emotion," . . . as soon as I entered the State Department."

"I delivered from the documents that came to my desk," he said, "the ones that I thought to be of interest."

About once a week, said Wadleigh, he would take the papers in a briefcase to a designated corner and turn them over "to a man identified to me as David Carpenter," and occasionally, to Whittaker Chambers, who was "introduced to me by Carpenter."

The following morning, after the documents had been microfilmed, he would meet the Communist courier on the corner, he said, collect the briefcase and documents, and return them to the State Department.

David Carpenter has been identified by Chambers as one of the men who microfilmed documents for the espionage ring he worked with.

Carpenter on Daily Worker

A man called David Carpenter, who was identified as a copy reader and book reviewer for the Communist Daily Worker, appeared before the grand jury here last December 8, but refused to comment to reporters.

Wadleigh said Chambers was known to him as "Carl Carlson." Chambers has admitted using many aliases during his Communist service, but this is the first time this name has appeared in the trial. Chambers said he was known to Hiss only as "Carl." Hiss, flatly denying any Communist activity, says he knew Chambers only as a free-lance writer named "George Crosley," whom he befriended.

During the Hiss trial, now in its third week, defense attorneys for Hiss have sought to emphasize that there were dozens of persons within the State Department who had access to documents which Chambers has produced to back up his charges against Hiss.

Doesn't Recall Pumpkin Papers

Wadleigh's name has frequently been brought up during the course of the trial, with the implication that he might be one of such persons.

Today, Wadleigh was handed several copies of documents reproduced from microfilms in the mysterious "pumpkin papers" which Chambers hid last November on his Westminster, Md., farm, and his first comment was:

"I find no reason to modify in any way the conclusion I reached last December . . . There is a possibility that I may have handed these to Chambers, but I think it most improbable that I did.

"I have no recollection of having seen these partciular documents." One of them concerned a 1938 German trade statement, and Wadleigh said he did not work on that subject at that time.

The microfilm in evidence is in addition to the 65 typewritten documents produced by Chambers, plus four handwritten papers containing official messages from department files.

Hiss has previously said that at least three of the four handwritten memoranda appear to be in his handwriting, and his chief defense attorney, Lloyd Paul Stryker, today flatly conceded that all four handwritten notes are in Hiss' writing.

Asked by Murphy if he ever typed out documents for the Communist couriers, Wadleigh said "No."

When Murphy inquired if he ever wrote out any papers, Wadleigh said, "I might have . . .," but he said he never would have turned over such verbatim handwritten documents — "only summaries."

Examining two microfilmed cablegrams from China he said they were not the kind of documentst which came across his desk.

Another microfilmed document, dated January 13, 1938, a Paris telegram from former Ambassador William Bullitt, captured Wadleigh's attention.

With keen interest, he said. ". . . while I have no recollection of having seen this cable, if I had I would have regarded it as an extremely interesting one . . ."

Defense Attorney Stryker leaped to his feet at this point, to object to Wadleigh's comment, but was overruled.

"It is sufficiently interesting," continued Wadleigh, "that I would have regarded it as a rich find, an unusually rich find, if I had seen it at the time—and I have no recollection of having seen it . . ."

This 1938 document discussed reports of Soviet aid to Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government in China and read in part:

"Dr. Tsiang stated that . . . the Soviet Union was being much more generous in its support of China by munitions and supplies than he had expected.

"Russia first demanded gold from the Chinese in payment for supplies, but when the Chinese had insisted that they were unable to pay gold, the Russians had agreed to supply them everything possible on credit."

As Wadleigh testified, there was something incongruous about his demeanor. His appearance brought what was far the most dramatic testimony heard in this trial, and the spectators, counsel, Federal Judge Samule H. Kaufman—and defendant Alger Hiss and his wife, Priscilla—listened to him with tense interest.

However, except when he came across the Bullitt message, Wadleigh generally spoke in the kind of selfless manner that might be used by a professor answering students' questions.

He said he was born in Greenfield, Mass., and went to Europe with his parents at the age of 3, not returning to this country until he was 25. He received a master's degree from Oxford University, later studied at the London School of Economics (and also the University of Kiel, Germany, according to Washington records).

When he came back to the United States in 1929, he took postgraduate work at the University of Chicago. At that time, he said, " I was impressed with the Fabian (a theory of socilism by degrees) point of view."

In December, 1930, he joined the Federal Farm Board in Washington; two years later transferred to the Department of Agriculture; served in the Site Department from 1936 to the fall of 1943, when he joined the foreign Economic Administration left there at the end of 1944 to return to Agriculture; resigned from Agriculture in the summer of 1946 to join the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitations Administration and after a year there "joined the office of the Italian government that handled economic relations" with the United States.

Describing his disillusionment with the Communists, he said:

"After the Nazi-Soviet pact, . . . I had very serious misgivings and was not willing to take risks and the other difficulties involved. . . ."

He hesitated, and though a moment. "Difficulties," he said, was not the right word to use, ". . . after all, there was something distasteful about the procedure involved in this sort of thing (supplying documents) . . . and I was not prepared to incur these things after the Soviet pact."

Asked by Murphy if he ever gave Chambers any documents in January or February, 1938, he said:

"There was an interval for some weeks prior to leaving for Turkey that I was instructed by Chambers or Carpenter—I don't remember which one now—not to deliver any documents for the time being."

Wadleigh stressed during his testimony that the supplying of documents was purely a "voluntary" action on his part.

Stryker cross-examined him closely as to whether he ever picked any papers off anyone else's desk to deliver to the Communist ring, and Wadleigh, with some resentment, denied this.

Q. "Sometimes you took papers from Mr. Hawkins' (Harry Hawkins, then chief of the Trade Agreement's Division) desk?"

A. "No, not without authority."

Q. "On grounds of being caught?"

A. "I just never thought of doing it, and never did. I never debated in my mind on what grounds that would be."

Q. "Whatever papers that came across your desk that you thought would be helpful to Whittaker Chambers, you stole and gave to him?"

A. "That's right."

"You never used any other material at all?" Stryker asked him at another point.

"No," replied Wadleigh.

Asked by Stryker if he thought it "would be fair to assume" he would take any documents he could find anywhere, because he was "adroit" in his work, Wadleigh replied firmly:

"No, it would not be fair to assume that. I was doing the thing voluntarily and naturally I was trying to do it efficiently as well."

Asked if the reason he did not go to other people's desks for documents was "on grounds of scruples," Wadleigh countered that it was not a question of scruples. Taking documents only from his own desk, he said, "was standard operating procedure."

Stryker asked if he ever visited the offices of either Sayre or Hiss, and Wadleigh said he had done so frequently.

"You would have had the slightest conscientous scruple about taking documents from other desks?" Stryker pressed.

"Conscientous scruples," declared Wadleigh, leaning forward in the witness chair, "occur when one contemplates doing something." Inasmuch as he never contemplated this, he said, professorially, "your question is a hypothetical one."

"I don't have the benefit of an Oxford education," put in Stryker, sarcastically.

Stryker, a few minutes later, abruptly ended the exchange by reading from testimony before the House Committee on Un-Amercian Activities in which Wadleigh replied to many of the committee's questions:

"I refuse to answer the question on the grounds the answer might incriminate me."

Asking Wadleigh today if he gave that reply, and receiving an affirmative answer, Stryker, with a wave of his hand, called out, "that's all."

Wadleigh, who had been testifying for about an hour, strode quickly out of the courtroom without looking at Hiss, whom he passed on the way.

FBI agent Feehan, in identifying the typewritten documents in the case, compared them with four typewritten letters and reports sent from the Hiss home.

These included a letter to Paul Banfield, headmaster of the Landon (Md.) School for Boys, concerning Mrs. Hiss' son by her first marriage, Timothy Hobson, and a report made by Mrs. Hiss upon completion of her service as president of the Bryn Mawr Club of Washington, 1936-37.

Displaying photograph enlargements of all documents on large stands placed before the jury box, Feehan pointed out what he described as typing irregularities appearing both in the Chambers' documents and the Hiss' family papers.

He noted 10 letters of the alphabet which appeared in all the documents, with indendations, variations in printing, or other distinguishing characteristics.

Judge Kaufman and opposing attorneys in the case moved to the jury box to examine the exhibits at close hand.

Only one of the 65 typewritten documents in evidence, said Feehan, was copied on a different typewriter.

Feehan then turned to the microfilms, and stated that of the 58 pages involved, 17 were definitely direct carbon copies of State Department originals on display.

The remainder, he said, dividing them into separate categories, were either photographs of State Department originals, or photographs of carbon copies with the same word count as the originals, with the exception of two. These two, he said, were prepared from stencils.

Defense Attorney Stryker declined to cross-examine Feehan on any of his statements. Stryker had previously stated that the defense has located the typewriter which the Hisses once owned, but has not indicated what the defense reply will be to this evidence.

Reds Take Futing In Drive to South

Canton, China, June 16 (U.P.).—Communist troops were reported today to have captured Futing, strategic government stronghold in Fukien Province, in what appeared to be the opening thrust in a renewed Red drive into south China.

Nationalist military spokesman Gen. Chang Yi-ting said intelligence reports indicated Communist troops in central and southeast China yesterday completed preparations for a full-scale invasion southward.

The capture of Futing, 100 miles northeast of Foochow and only 20 miles from the China coast, opens the way for a Red assault on the Nationalist ports on the southeast coast, the government's last remaining sea links with the outside world.

A large number of Nationalist officials have evacuated the capital of Canton to Chungking in west China, in anticipation of the Red thrust into the Hongkong-Canton area.

General Chang said the floods in southeast and central China, which have stymied major military operations for the last three weeks, were receding.

Praises Russia

Paul Robeson Back, Critical Of America

New York, June 16 (AP).—Paul Robeson returned today from a four-month tour of Europe, expressing criticism of American foreign policy and praise of Russia.

The singer said he was eager to testify for the defense in the Communist conspiracy trial now in its twenty-second week.

"I consider the trial a complete test of American civil liberties," he told newsmen at LaGuardia Field. "If the civil liberties of the 12 go and they are jailed, then 12 million Americans may be jailed.

"This is a type of domestic fascism. There are strange goings on in Foley Square (site of the Federal courthouse). You bet your life I will be there."

In referring to "the 12," he included William Z. Foster, national chairman of the Communist Party, who was indicted with the other 11 defendants but was granted a severance because of his health.

Robeson was asked if he had heard anything good said about the United States on his tour, which included a visit to the Soviet Union.

"I found nothing but affeting friendship and good will for the workers and progressives of America," he replied.

"I could find no liking for the Marshall Plan, anywhere. There is a feeling that a group of American big business is trying to take over Europe."

The second defendant to testify in the Communist conspiracy trial denied yesterday that his party in 1945 adopted a program advocating the violent overthrow of the Government.

Gilbert Green of Chicago, the party's Illinois chairman, was the witness.

The American Communist Party was reconstituted in 1945 after a wartime interlude under the guidance of Earl Browder when it was known as the Communist Political Association.

Green said the national leadership brought back the party "to prevent the action of the trusts against the constitutional liberties of the people and democracy in this country."

Hiss Machine Typing Shown

tion the defense today called to the witness stand two of what is expected to be a long line of character witnesses who will appear for Hiss.

They were John W. Davis, Solicitor General of the United States from 1913 to 1918, and in 1924, unsuccessful Democratic candidate who opposed Calvin Coolidge for President, and Dr. Stanley K. Hornbeck of Washington, former chief of the State Department's Far Eastern Division.

Davis and Hornbeck were permitted to appear today because they will be unable to be present later.

Both testified that Hiss was known to be a man of integrity and good character.

Hornbeck was political adviser for the State Department when Hiss became his first assistant in 1939.

Asked by Murphy on cross-examination if he ever heard anyone challenge Hiss' loyalty, he said, "a close personal friend of mine came to me on one occasion in about 1943 or 1944. He told me that he had heard that Mr. Hiss was a fellow traveler."

Murphy asked if he reported this to his superiors, and Hornbeck said he did not, as the friend said he had no proof of the charge. Hornbeck said: "We didn't think a fellow traveler was a serious thing at that time."

Cougar Too Hungry

Dalles, Oreg. (U.P.).—A 6-foot mountain lion killed a milk goat on a farm near here. The goat was so tasty the cougar couldn't quit stuffing. It ate to the point of stupor and went to sleep. Dogs came and the big cat was barely able, sluggishly, to climb a tree. There the farmer, Albert Cook, killed it with ease. He collected $60 bounty.

Big Four Fail To Agree

Bevin and Schuman to attend a conference of foreign ministers of the Brussels Treaty countries in Luxembourg this afternoon and Saturday.

The Western Foreign Ministers sought a yes-or-no answer from Vishinsky on an agreement for temporary control of Berlin and a plan to get a treaty to restore Austria's independence ready for signature about September 1.

'Closer to the End'

Hope had been high for agreement, at least on Berlin and Austria, but it was indicated Vishinsky received instructions which constituted another obstacle.

Asked whether the Big Four got anywhere nearer agreement at their night meeting, a Western diplomat remarked wryly as he left Talleyrand Palace:

Red Government Painting Rosy Picture Of Polish Recovery Through Six-Year Plan

Warsaw, June 16 (AP).—The Polish government is painting a rosy future for this country.

From President Boleslaw Bierut on down, everyone who has anything to do with running Poland gushes with enthusiasm over the new six-year economic recovery program.

The new program is scheduled to start about December 1. That's the tentative date fixed for completion of the first three-year plan which started in 1946.

The government now claims all production targets have been reached or exceeded and the next five months should show national recovery far in advance of what was originally anticipated.

So now the accent is on what comes next.

The Communist-dominated government predicts that by 1955 these things, among others will have happened:

National income will be 97 per cent higher than in 1949.

Production in state-owned industries will rise by 114 per cent.

Agricultural output will increase by 45 per cent.

Poland will be producing 110,000 motor vehicles annually, including 66,000 trucks.

Production of sugar will jump from an expected high of 620,000 tons in 1949 to 900,000 tons.

Six hundred thousand new homes will be built at a cost of 725 million dollars.

Educational facilities will be extended by 181 per cent. Radio receiving apparatus will be increased from the present one million sets to 2,500,000. The Polish merchant fleet is to be tripled. Health centers will be increased from 1200 to 3100 and Polish hospitals equipped with 15,000 beds.

Whatever Poland needs in the form of capital goods for expanding industrial recovery, she expects to get largely from Russia during the next six years. Under the existing trade pact with the Soviets, goods valued at 450 million dollars are to be supplied to the Poles.

President Beirut told the recent Trade Unions Congress in Warsaw that by 1955, the nation's production would be three and one-half times the best prewar figures. He said the government's investments in industrial and economic expansion would quadruple any figures of prewar years.

The Council of Ministers announced the sum set for investments runs about 10 billion dollars and said the government was determined to do everything possible to obtain the "maximum development of creative forces, the maximum rise of living standards, and the construction of the foundations of socialism in Poland."

The council's statement said that expansion under the six-year plan was not being confined only to industries presently operating.

"The plan also provides for a wide range of goods not hitherto manufactured in Poland. Particularly extensive in this respect are the plans of the metal and chemical industries."

Other highlights of the six-year plan as envisaged by the government include:

A 56 per cent increase in the number of pigs in Poland, bringing the total to nine million, and a 50 per cent increase in cattle.

A 63 per cent increase in the movement of railway freight and 28 per cent boost in passenger travel.

Tripling of the present network of inland waterways and rapid expansion of railway rolling stock and equipment.

Farms owned by the state are to become "model Socialist holdings."

Sharett Determined To Hold Jerusalem

NYHT News Service

Tel Aviv, June 16. — Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett today pledged Israel's determination not to accept internationalization of Jerusalem nor to surrender territory and readmit a substantial number of refugees for the sake of a peace settlement with the Arabs.

He warned the United States it would not serve the interests of peace by applying political pressure on behalf of the Arabs. Under no circumstances, he declared, would Israel revert to territorial boundaries of the United Nations partition plan.

Awaits Pilgrims

Dr. Buchman Has His Eye On Germany

Caux-sur-Montreaux, Switzerland, June 16 (AP).—Two thousand Germans will make their way to this breath-taking mountain resort this summer to meet Dr. Frank N. D. Buchman, 71-year-old apostle of Moral Rearmament and "inspired democracy."

Although Dr. Buckman never attacks communism frontally in his pronouncements, he makes it clear that these German pilgrims—ranging from minister presidents to miners—are expected to return to Germany with "superior ideology." Germany is the focal point of Moral Rearmament's program this year.

"Germany is one of the nations that is going to teach the world," Dr. Buchman said in an interview. "Moral rearmament is the answer in Germany."

Asked why he rarely mentions communism in his statements although the whole program of MRA is designed to "give the answer to both fascism and communism," Dr. Buchman said: "You don't have to talk about communism. You've got something better. And it works."

Dr. Buchman, the founder of the Oxford group which later adopted the name Moral Rearmament, speaks always in short, sharp sentences. He is friendly and sociable.

To the casual visitor, some of the phrases which sound and resound in the large ballroom of the movement's hotel headquarters here may sound grandiose and puzzling.

Dr. Buchman is apt to talk about "God control." The word "change" is one of the most frequently used—"economic change, social change, national change, international change. All based on personal change." A book of Dr. Buchman's messages is entitled "Remaking the World."

The Gallup Poll

Family of 4 Needs $50 a Week Minimum, Spends $25 on Food

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 16.—The smallest amount of money that a family of four needs to get along on in the average community today is $50 a week, in the opinion of men and women in all walks of life questioned by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

People living in big cities set the minimum amount higher—$55 a week. Farm and small-town voters put it a bit lower for their type of community, around $35 to $45 a week.

Twelve years ago, in 1937, $30 a week was considered the minimum by persons questioned in a similar poll, and two years ago, in 1947, $43 was the amount. Approximately a year ago, in July, 1948, the minimum named was the same as today—$50.

The trend follows:

"What is the SMALLEST amount of money a family of four (husband, wife, and two children) needs each week to get along on in this community?"

1937	$30 a week
1947	$43 a week
1948	$50 a week
TODAY	$50 a week

The variation in the replies by size of community is as follows:

	Per Week
Farmers	$35
Towns under 10,000	45
10,000-100,000	50
100,000-500,000	50
500,000 and over	55

Many people would consider it impossible for a family of four even to try to live on $50 a week in a city. It should be remembered that the poll asked for the smallest amount needed. Many families with children do, however, get along on less than the $50 named as the minimum.

The weekly food budget of American families has skyrocketed since the early period of the war.

Another question in today's survey brought out the fact that the average nonfarm family spends approximately $25 a week for food, including milk. This figure shows no change from last July. It compares with $21 two years ago, $17 three years ago, and $11 in 1942

Bank Robbers Lock Man in Car Trunk

EUGENE F. C. WAGNER
Thought he had a sale

Baltimore, June 16 (AP).—Three gunmen almost got caught holding up a small branch bank today, but scooped up $1439 and fled in a stolen car with a hostage locked in the trunk.

Eugene F. C. Wagner, a salesman who had been demonstrating the car to two of the men an hour earlier, was freed unharmed from the trunk after the machine was abandoned on North Charles st. near Penn Station.

Two men who saw the robbery had been able to trail the bandits half way to the spot where they left the car. Police swarmed into the area in a few minutes. But the gunmen had disappeared.

Wagner said he was taking two prospects on a demonstration drive when one of them pulled a pistol. They forced him into the trunk and drove around for some time, making several stops.

Just after 11 a. m., two men wearing sun glasses sauntered into a northwest Baltimore branch of the First National Bank. They brandished sawed-off, double-barrelled shotguns and lined four customers and three bank employes up against a wall.

One man stood at the front door to intercept new arrivals and the other started scooping money out of a teller's working cash drawer.

He had barely started rounding up the cash when there was a commotion out front. Jack Blumenthal, driving by in a truck, saw what was going on and shouted "holdup."

Norman Cramer was walking past the bank at the moment. As he draw abreast of a car parked in front a man threatened him with a gun. Cramer ducked around a corner of the bank just as the two inside came out the front door.

Cramer shouted to William Doran, who runs a used car lot next to the bank, and they took out after the getaway car as it pulled away from the bank.

There was a fast chase through six or eight blocks of back streets before Cramer and Doran lost track of the bandits.

Wagner, pinned in the hot trunk, said it was a rough ride. As the car cut around corners he was slammed against one side of the trunk, then thrown back to the other.

The car stopped in a few minutes. Wagner waited. He waited for what seemed like an eternity then banged with his hands on the trunk. A passerby heard him and let him out.

Screams Save Woman From Intruder

Screams of a 36-year-old widow and mother early yesterday routed an intruder in her room who flung her violently against a wall and struck her on the shoulder.

Mrs. Catherine T. Burns, 36, 806 20th st. nw., said she was awakened about 5:30 a. m., by the presence of a man near her. After a struggle, she began screaming and he fled. Her landlord saw the intruder leaving the front door. She said $1 was missing from her wallet.

She walked to No. 3 Police Precinct nearby, to report the attack, and was taken to the Police Women's Bureau and then to Gallinger Hospital for examination.

The intruder was described as a Negro, 20 to 30 years old, 5 feet, 10 inches tall, weight about 180 pounds, wearing a dark gray sweater.

Grand Jury to Get Four Numbers Lottery Cases

Four persons were ordered held for the grand jury yesterday on charges of operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips by United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence. Bond was set at $1500 each.

The four were Frederick Douglas, 41, of 1436 W st. nw.; Charles Anderson, jr., 36, and Lydia Anderson, 31, both of 55 M st. nw., and Edward J. Green, 58, of 1250 8th st. nw.

Douglas and the Andersons were arrested June 2 in a raid on a candy store at 55 D st. nw. Green was arrested at his home June 9, in a separate case. Charges against three others arrested in the candy store raid were dismissed.

Clark Urges Enactment of Anti-Lynch Law

Attorney General Tom C. Clark yesterday urged the House Judiciary Committee to approve a new antilynch law and erase "a blot on our national life."

His views were expressed in a letter to Chairman Emanuel Celler (D., N. Y.), sponsor of the Administration's antilynch bill.

"In my judgment, the Federal Government today has the obligation to protect its citizens, and in fact all inhabitants of the Nation, from the forcible deprivation by mob action of the right to a fair trial," Clark wrote.

He said his department has done all it can under existing law to guarantee Americans the right to a free trial, but the law doesn't go far enough.

Man, Wife Held Under $6000 in 55c Yoke Robbery

A man and his wife yesterday were held in a total of $6000 bond for the grand jury accused of a 55-cent yoke robbery.

The couple, Leroy and Marian Chisholm, 704 N st. nw., were charged, before Municipal Judge Ellen K. Raedy, of the yoke-robbery of Melton Griffin, 33, of 1111 9th st. nw., early yesterday at 6th and L sts. nw.

Chisholm, charged with the actual yoking and robbery, was held in $5000 bond while his wife, accused as an accomplice, was held in $1000.

Missing Merchant Sued for Divorce

Mrs. Edna Schwartz Smith, 1474 Columbia rd. n.w., whose estranged husband, Percy, a businessman in the Columbia Heights section, has been missing since last December 6, yesterday filed suit in District Court for absolute divorce. Voluntary separation was given in the suit as grounds for the action.

Smith disappeared from his home, 1424 Park rd. n.w., leaving behind two notes hinting he planned suicide. The notes also spoke of financial worries.

15 Police Promoted; Detective Demoted

Fifteen policemen were promoted and one demoted yesterday by the District Commissioners acting on the recommendation of Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett.

Detective Sergt. Harold C. Huffman, 46, of 2017 32d pl. se., was demoted to the rank of private for conduct not "in the best interest of the service."

Major Barrett told reporters Huffman had submitted his resignation from the force Tuesday after missing duty on his assignment in the homicide squad. Barrett said he asked him not to resign because he was "a very valuable detective" and had worked on every major murder case here in the past six years.

Received 17 Commendations

The police head said the demotion would not be permanent. Huffman's record during his 16 years on the force includes 17 commendations, 14 since joining the homicide squad.

Precinct Detective Charles Burns, who was given an award of merit by the Commissioners in 1940, was assigned to the detective bureau in place of Huffman at $812-a-year additional compensation. Probational Detective Floyd A. Rabil was put in Burns' spot at $325-a-year extra and Pvt. Peter M. Zazanis was named probational detective at $163-a-year extra.

Other promotions were:

Temporary Lieut. John J. Boyd, to permanent lieutenant, $4278 a year; Temporary Lieut. Thomas C. Kelleher, to permanent lieutenant, $4278 a year; Sergt. James H. Gosnell, temporary promotion to lieutenant, $4278; Sergt. Wayland W. Whittemore, temporary promotion to lieutenant, $4278.

Other Promotions Listed

Corpl. Samuel W. Stickley, temporary promotion to sergeant, $3872; Corpl. Richard S. Best, temporary promotion to sergeant, $3872; Temporary Sergt. John F. Ash, to permanent sergeant, $3872; Temporary Sergt. Joseph V. Osterman, to permanent sergeant, $3872.

Pvt. Chester A. MacDonald, temporary promotion to corporal, $3669; Pvt. John H. Hayden, temporary promotion to corporal, $3669; Temporary Corpl. Robert H. Wolf, to permanent corporal, $3669; Temporary Corpl. John M. Thot, to permanent corporal, $3669. Thot received an award for personal bravery and meritorious service in 1946.

The retirement of Fire Department Pvt. Henry L. Sutphen, 39, of 1104 South Courthouse rd., Arlington, Va., was approved effective July 1 with pay at $141.58 a month. The private, who joined the force in 1937, was retred as physically incapacitated.

The city heads also approved the retirement of Police Pvt. John E. Glick, 47, of 3350 Ely pl. se., effective June 30 at $141.58 a month. The policeman, who was on the force 24 years, also was physically incapacitated.

To Combat Disease

Tick, Flea Study Urged On Animals

More intensive study of fleas, mites and ticks of wild animals may further man's progress against disease, Maj. Robert Traub, of the Army Medical Center, said here yesterday.

He spoke at a meeting of the American Society of Mammalogists in twenty-ninth annual conference at the United States National Museum.

Cites Value of Drug

Dr. Traub, assistant chief of the department of parasitology, Army Medical Department Research and Graduate School, said that without such special studies the value of the new drug, chloromycetin, could not have been demonstrated in Malaya.

He pointed out that Army medical workers, combating an epidemic of scrub typhus in that country, found organisms of the disease in some jungle animals and some of their mites. One species of rat, he said, was found to be "almost invariably infested with the chiggers or mites that transmit the disease."

"Our knowledge of the fleas, mites and ticks of wild animals is very scanty and these creatures and the rats and mice on which they live should be studied much more intensively, even in the United States," he declared.

Dr. Storer Elected

At the society's annual election yesterday, Dr. Tracy I. Storer, professor of zoology, University of California, Davis, Calif., was named president, succeeding Dr. Remington Kellogg, director of the United States National Museum.

Other officers elected include: First vice president, Dr. Lee R. Dice, professor emeritus of zoology, Laboratory of Vertebrate Genetics, University of Michigan; second vice president, Dr. William J. Hamilton, jr., Cornell University professor of zoology, and secretary, Dr. Robert T. Orr, curator of mammals, California Academy of Sciences, San Francisco, Calif.

Negro Press To Give Award To Dr. Bunche

Technical problems of Negro newspapers yesterday occupied opening sessions of the Negro Newspaper Publishers Association's tenth annual convention. The meetings were at Carver Hall, Howard University.

Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, United Nations mediator for Palestine, will receive the John B. Russwurm Award of the association and deliver the principal address at the annual dinner tonight. The award for "outstanding contribution to advancement of democratic ideals in 1948" is in memory of the publisher of the first Negro newspaper in America.

The meetings yesterday, attended by about 35 representatives of Negro papers, considered printing training, second-class mail rates, work of the public relations committee and future operation of affiliated organizations of advertising, circulation and editorial executives.

Cranston Williams, general manager of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, will discuss operations of that organization at a session this morning and new officers will be elected. The convention will continue through Saturday.

Howard U. Physics Researchers Get Grant of $3500

A new grant of $3500 has been awarded to Howard University to continue cooperative research in physics and chemistry, it was announced yesterday.

The sum was awarded by Research Corp., a nonprofit organization, out of $235,000 being distributed by the corporation to finance 64 research projects in American colleges, universities and scientific institutions.

The Howard University grant was allocated to Dr. Herman Branson, physics professor, for research with isotopes in problems of chemistry and physics. A continuing grant, it brings to $16,000 the total sum awarded the university project since its start two years ago.

Hospital Corp. Names 76 for Membership

Seventy-six residents of Alexandria and nearby Virginia areas have been nominated to membership on the Alexandria Hospital Corporation as part of an effort to broaden the base of membership on the corporation and board of directors.

The corporation, which voted recently to increase its membership from the present 35 to a maximum of 100 will meet July 6 to vote on nominees to both bodies.

Jawbone Discovered, Held Million Years Old

Johannesburg, South Africa, June 16 (AP).—Dr. Robert Broom, South African paleontologist, today announced the discovery of a jawbone which may have been from a human who lived nearly one million years ago.

"If this jaw proves to be human it may be the oldest human one known," Broom said. "It is probably 100 per cent human. Although remarkably small, it has typically human teeth. It cannot be said yet what its age is, but it may be in the region of one million years."

Effective July 1

Posey Heads Alexandria Fire Bureau

John E. Posey, 42, veteran Alexandria fireman, yesterday was named chief of the city's new fire prevention bureau.

Posey

Fire Chief Bernard J. Padgett said Posey's new job, which starts July 1, will include enforcing the new city fire code and educating the public as to fire prevention.

The code gives fire officials authority for the first time to inspect all structures except the interior of private dwellings for fire hazards. The code also makes it a misdemeanor to ignore instructions for eliminating hazards.

Padgett said John J. Kelley, city smoke control engineer, will be technical adviser to Posey, and that a fire inspector will soon be added to the bureau.

Posey has 25 years service with the fire department—first as a volunteer, and since 1930 as a paid fireman. He is now chief operator at No. 3 Truck and Engine company. Rae A. Edmondson, assistant chief at No. 2 firehouse will replace Posey at No. 3, Padgett said.

Youths Urge Sex Education In High School

Sex education and racial segregation got a heavy play as the YMCA-sponsored National Conference of Boy Governors thrashed out their views on current problems last night.

Unbuttoning their ties and rolling up their sleeves, the 19 State executivs, arnging from 17 to 19 years of age, considered more than 200 proposed bills submitted by the Boys' State Legislatures in their first work session last night in a Senate Office Building conference room.

As a group, they were emphatically in favor of sex education in high schools.

As Donald Phillips of New Jersey put it: "They ought to take the secrecy out of it in the schools so we won't have to depend on a back-alley education."

Charles E. Moylan, jr., of Baltimore, however, thought "We're pretty well adjusted and don't need sex education." To this, Conference Chairman Donald Cook of Pennsylvania said, "Yes, but we're exceptions."

Harley M. Albro blamed sex ignorance on the fact that several pregnancies had developed during the past school year in his Cortland, N. Y., high school.

On segregation the boys were frank and easy tempered, although the New Jersey representative complained that factions in the South "were back in Civil War days."

More conferences are scheduled today, but the highlight will be a 12:45 audience with President Truman. The boys will meet also with several Congressmen and Senators. The conference ends Sunday.

In another meeting, a total membership of 3,500,000 young men—and young women—in the Young Men's Christian Association was reported by Eugene R. McCarthy of St. Louis, president of the organization's national council.

He disclosed the all-time high membership on the eve of the annual meeting of the national council, which will be in session at the Hotel Statler today through Sunday.

The young women's part in the hitherto all-male organixation came in attendance at summer camps (46,000 girls among a total registration of 225,000) and in dormitories of some local units open to unmarried girls and married couples.

Woman Found Garroted in Car In Hollywood

Los Angeles, June 16 (AP).—The mutilated body of a 28-year-old Hollywood hairdresser was found today in her car abandoned since Monday.

Police said there was evidence of rape. She had been garroted with a piece of hemp rope.

The victim was identified as Mrs. Louise Coulter Springer, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Coulter of Los Gatos, Calif.

Police quoted an eyewitness as saying she saw a man calmly covering something in the back seat with white canvas Monday afternoon while two policemen gave a motortist a ticket across the street.

But the husband, Laurence, in a missing persons report Monday night, said he had picked his wife up at a department store where she worked until 8 p. m. He said she asked him to go back in the store for her glasses, and that when he returned, she and the car were missing.

2 Sisters Ask Divorce From Same Youth, 19

Los Angeles, June 16 (AP).—Walter Fisher, 19-year-old New York upholsterer, was sued for divorce today.

There were two plaintiffs, and sisters, at that.

Helen Blanc Fisher, 20, stated she eloped with Fisher to Las Vegas, Nev., March 16, 1948, that he deserted her an hour after the wedding.

Evelyn Blanc Fisher, 21, said she married the same man July 3, 1948, in Baltimore. She said they lived together three months. Evelyn wrote her sister, telling her of her marriage, and was surprised and to learn her husband was Helen's.

Hiring of RFC Aides Banned In Loan Bill

A Senate committee opened hearings yesterday on a proposal to require that any firm getting a Reconstruction Finance Corp. loan must agree not to hire any RFC official in the next five years who had a part in making the loan.

Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.) said the public questions whether things are "on the level" when a firm employs an RFC official while trying to get a Government loan. He is sponsor of the legislation, and is conducting the hearings as chairman of a Senate Banking subcommittee.

Fulbright said that 20 RFC employes have gone into industries which either had received or were trying to get RFC loans.

He outlined three cases:

One $10,330-a-year RFC man left to take a $30,000-a-year job with the Waltham Watch Co. After it had received a $6,000,000 loan.

Another $10,330-a-year man went to the Plywoods-Plastics Corp., of Hampton, S. C., at $18,000 plus a percentage of earnings. This company had borrowed more than $2,000,000 through RFC.

A $7,193-a-year man went to the Lustron Corp., of Columbus, Ohio, at $12,000 a year and is now making $18,000. This company has received $32,500,000 in RFC loans.

RFC director Harvey J. Gunderson told Fulbright there is nothing wrong about that. He said people are looking for "an evil that doesn't exist."

Gunderson strongly denied that any company's employment of an RFC official had any connection with the loans that were made.

As for Fulbright's bill, Gunderson said:

"We do not think this legislation is either necessary or desirable."

Hearing Set On Pepco Plea To Make Loan

District Public Utilities Commission will hold a public hearing Wednesday at 10 a. m. on a request by Potomac Electric Power Co. to be permitted to lend 13 million dollars to the Braddock Light & Power Co., Inc., to complete a major construction program.

The transaction involves an intra-firm operation since Braddock is wholly owned by Pepco and supplies most of the output from its Alexandria, Va., generating plant to the Washington firm.

The loan would be secured by 3½ per cent demand promissory notes. The Pepco firm has already loaned 14 million dollars to Braddock for construction of a new generating plant in Alexandria. The installation of the first 80,000-kilowat unit is nearing completion and is expected to be placed in operation next month.

The new loan is to cover cost of a second unit of the same size to be placed in operation in 1950, as well as intake and discharge water facilities, coal handling and storage equipment.

About $7,700,000 would be advanced during the remainder of 1949 and $5,300,000 in 1950.

6 Students Given Prizes for Essays On Jefferson

Six Arlington school students are winners in an essay contest on "Thomas Jefferson, a Force for Democracy in the Twentieth Century" sponsored by the Benjamin Cardozo Lodge and Chapter of B'nai B'rith.

Senior high school winners are: First, Suzanne Trimble, Washington-Lee; second, Sylvia Hedmond, Hoffman-Boston, and third, Barbara Heinbuch, Washington-Lee. In the junior highs, first-place winner was Sandra Campbell, Dolly Madison; second, Gordon K. Thomas, Swanson Junior High, and third, Eleanor Pratt, Swanson.

Wrist watches, cameras, a radio and a bicycle were awarded to the winners.

FREE! CARE-SWAN SOAP CONTEST

HELP THE KIDS GET THE SOAP THEY NEED

Says BOB HOPE

• RULES •

You can win a brand new bicycle and get free soap to the kids in Europe too.
It's easy. Here is all you have to do.
Collect as many wrappers from the cakes of Swan Soap as you can.
Urge your parents, friends and relatives to buy Swan Soap and give the wrappers to you.
When you have a bunch of Swan wrappers collected, take them to your nearest DGS Dealer. Attach a slip of paper to the wrappers. Write your name and the number of wrappers you have turned in on the paper. Wrap them all up together and tie them with a piece of string.
Leave the wrappers and the numbered slip with your DGS grocer.
The contest doesn't close until July 16th, so you have ample time to collect wrappers, but don't save them all until the last minute.
Turn your wrappers in every week, because every week a picture of the leading boy or girl and the store owner in the leader's respective district will be published in the newspapers.
The Lever Brothers Co. will send one bar of Swan Soap overseas to a European child for every two wrappers you collect and deliver.
The entire contest is under the supervision of CARE, Lever Brothers and DGS.
The boy or girl, ages 8-16, who has collected the most wrappers will win a free bicycle and will appear on a WNBW television program. Additional prizes will be announced from time to time.

Suit Asks ICC Rule Of Capital Transit

Capital Transit Co. bus operations between District and Maryland points would be subject to the authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission — from which they are now exempt—under a change in regulations asked by the Oriole Motor Coach Lines yesterday.

A Capital Transit official said that his company would "definitely oppose" any such change.

The change was asked in a petition to the ICC which pointed out that Capital Transit is the only motor carrier of passengers between the District and suburban points exempt from ICC regulation.

Economic Conditions Cited

The petition asserted the Oriole line cannot maintain "sound economic conditions" in its interstate service of Maryland points when Capital Transit a competitor, can start or discontinue interstate passenger services "at will" without ICC regulatory supervision.

Competition by Capital Transit may "seriously impair" the ability of the Oriole line to give adequate service to "persons and communities which have been neglected and ignored for a period of years by the Capital Transit Co.," according to the petition.

On Wednesday the Oriole Line, which does business as the Washington Suburban Lines, opposed a Capital Transit petition to establish service on Ager rd. to serve Lewisdale and Green Meadows in Prince Georges County, Md. It told the Maryland Public Service Commission the Capital line would duplicate its service on Ager rd.

Commercial Zone Involved

Oriole, doing business as the Washington Suburban Lines, operates bus service between the District and such Maryland points as Olney, Ashton and Gaithersburg via Rockville. Another principal route runs between College Park and Bethesda, Md.

The Capital Transit Co.'s present exemption is based on the fact that its operations, while crossing the Maryland boundary, are within the so-called "Washington commercial zone." They are subject to regulation by the District Public Utilities Commission and the Public Service Commission of Maryland.

The Oriole petition seeks removal of this exemption with respect to transportation of passengers within the Washington commercial zone.

Air Medal Given Posthumously to Gen. Daniel Sultan

Posthumous award of the Air Medal to the late Lieut. Gen. Daniel I. Sultan, Engineer Commissioner of the District from August, 1934, to September, 1938, was announced yesterday by the Army.

Gen. Sultan

The medal was presented to the general's widow, Mrs. Florence B. Sultan of 3133 Connecticut ave. nw.

General Sultan was wartime Deputy Commander in Chief of the China-Burma-India theater of operations and commanding general of the United States Army forces in the India-Burma theater of operations.

He was Inspector General of the Army from July, 1945, until his death at Walter Reed Hospital in January, 1947.

Builders Seek To Speed D. C. Inspections

A five-point program for further expediting operations of the District Inspections Department was proposed yesterday by a committee of the Washington Building Congress.

The Permit Procedure Committee, headed by Charles J. Harnett of Clarence W. Gosnell, Inc., said the department has made several improvements on its own and also as a result of a similar report by the local chapter, American Institute of Architects.

Further expediting of permit handling could be achieved, however, the committee said. This was particularly advisable before an avalanche of work resulting from enforcement of egress regulations is begun.

The program follows:

1. Add personnel such as computers and field inspectors.

Use Personnel Better

2. Make better use of existing personnel by naming a top-level man to screen out incomplete and error-laden plans which presently delay the processing of other applications.

Also leave present staff free to maintain a steady pace by hiring professional engineers temporarily during peak loads.

3. Designate officials who may may make preliminary approval of building plans and then permit this to stand while final drawings are completed, thus ending uncertainty for builders.

4. Clarify the building code by rewriting it in simple language, adding drawings and limiting official interpretations to few in number and making these available to the public.

5. Put on a drive to get the department on a current basis of operations before the egress plans begin flowing in. This should be done by either the Engineer Commissioner or one of his assistants working with department heads to clear difficult and delayed cases now.

Members of the committee, other than Harnett, were Louis F. Dieterick of Hubscher, Dieterick & Coleman, Inc.; Charles W. Humphreys of Mohler Construction Co.; L. L. Kemp of Davis, Wick, Rosengarten Co., and Russell B. Martin, Martin Bros.

Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Hayes, 3d, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, who supervises operations of the department, said the report has not yet been received, but will be carefully studied on arrival.

The AIA report, which was submitted last December, charged the department with inefficiency and lengthy delay in handling building permits. At that time a new Central Permits Bureau had begun operations and other changes were made later.

Postman's Life Not Happy

Salem, N. H. (U.P.).—Rural letter carriers of southern New Hampshire have something new to combat beside the traditional rain, sleet and snow. Carriers complained that swarming hornets have nested in the letter boxes and drive them off when they try to deliver the mail. They asked residents to spray poison in their boxes.

Virginia Phone Rate Hearing Is Continued

Richmond, Va., June 16 (AP).—The State Corporation Commission today set September 13 to begin cross-examination of witnesses who have testified for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. to bolster its plea for a rate increase.

SCC Chairman H. Lester Hooker continued the case after a summary of testimony and additional facts on the company's working capital were given by Robert W. Michie, vice president of four C. & P. Telephone companies.

Michie said the Virginia company must go forward, if its financial situation permits, with additional gross construction of 40 million dollars in the next few years to meet demands for telephone service.

He declared the company's level of earnings is now 4 per cent or less, and substantially below prewar. In the absence of further inflation, he said, it appears that increases in telephone rates must be kept substantially under the 70 per cent peak reached by consumer prices since the war.

Michie said original cost less depreciation reserves was not an appropriate rate base for the company because of the "practicalities" of the situation. Demand for telephone service "has forced us into construction in a big way, and we have been computing costs of this construction on an unrealistic basis by using original cost in our calculations," he said.

"What contractor in private industry would take a job today on which his payment would be based on the average wage rates and material prices he has paid over the last 20 years?" he asked.

Arthur W. Harrison, general commercial manager of the Virginia company, and D. R. Belcher, treasurer of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. which totally owns the C. & P. of Virginia and other Bell System companies, also testified.

Harrison recalled that the rates asked are designed to produce additional net earnings, after taxes, of $2,384,000, or additional gross revenues of $4,041,000. He declared it was significant that the gross increase asked for, added to the amount obtained in the company's two preceding rate cases in 1947 and 1948, "is still less than the annual savings to our subscribers from rate reductions made between 1926 and 1946."

Harrison testified that changes for residence and business individual, party and rural service classifications range in general from 25 cents to 75 cents per month on residence and from 50 cents to $2 per month on business phones.

The principal objectors to the increase are the League of Virginia counties and 26 cities and towns represented by Morton L. Wallerstein.

Bids Ordered For School in N. Fairlington

Bids for construction of Arlington's long-delayed elementary school in North Fairlington will be advertised next week, the County School Board said yesterday.

Plans for the school were delayed for months while a site was being picked.

According to the School Board, the construction contract will have a clause requiring the builder to finish the job within six months. Thus, if bids are opened July 15 as scheduled, the school would be completed by January 15, 1950, in time for the second semester.

The 10-classroom school on an 8-acre site at S. Abingdon and 30th sts. was designed by the firm of McLeod & Ferrara of Washington.

The N. Fairlington school will be built to fit the contour of the site, will boast a 35 by 60-foot playroom and auditorium, and provide natural light from both sides of the classrooms.

Prisoner Escapes Road Gang on Arlington Job

A road gang prisoner who escaped from an Arlington construction job at 4 p. m. yesterday was being sought last night by county police and camp guards using bloodhounds.

Police gave his name as Roy Webb, 24. They said he was serving a four-year term for grand larceny and was confined at State Road Camp No. 30 in Fairfax County.

Although details were not immediately available, police said Webb apparently walked off from the construction crew, working on sidewalks in the Halls Hill area of Lee hwy. in Arlington.

D. C. Request For Cancer Aid Turned Down

District Commissioners yesterday approved a Health Department request to accept $6000 to conduct a one-year survey of lung cancers here—but the money was gone.

Neither the Health Department nor the Commissioners knew that the application for the funds had been turned down Wednesday by the National Advisory Cancer Council, the funds' approving body for cancer projects financed by United States Public Health Service.

A spokesman for the National Cancer Institute yesterday disclosed that notification of the rejection was in the mails, even as the Commissioners deliberated.

No reason was given for the council's rejection, but it was emphasized that only a fraction of all applications for cancer control funds can be approved because of fund limitations.

The lung study project was officially requested by Dr. George C. Ruhland, admittedly more for national than local benefit. It proposed that a special study of lung cancer cases be made in the District for comparison with results obtained in similar surveys conducted in industrial cities.

NCHA to Aid Family of Eight In Southwest Eviction Case

The National Capital Housing Authority has come to the aid of a Southwest Washington family of eight facing eviction.

John Ihlder, NCHA executive officer, said yesterday Mrs. Lucinda Scott and her seven children are among four families eligible for four-bedroom, low-rent dwellings operated by the housing authority.

The dwellings are going to be available because 20 NCHA tenants with incomes exceeding $5000 have been given notices to vacate. NCHA tenants are not supposed to have incomes exceeding $3000 annually. There are only four four-bedroom dwellings among the 20 to be vacated.

The rest of the 20 vacated dwellings will probably be filled with other slum-evicted applicants providing the houses are big enough.

The Corporation Counsel's office has indicated that it is indefinitely deferring any court action to evict Mrs. Scott and her brood from their condemned dwelling at 114 F st. sw. The house was condemned on sanitary grounds last February.

The Board of Condemnation of Insanitary Buildings has just issued notices to owners of 14 alley dwellings in Naylor court nw., and a house at 1007 7th st. se. to show cause why they should not be condemned.

The board has about 90 dwellings now involved in condemnation proceedings.

Berlin Gets 'Clay Allee'

Madam Tells Of Payoffs

members tried to shake him down. Cohen disclosed wiretapping recordings of conversations between Miss Allen and vice squad officers.

In questioning by the district attorney's office, Miss Allen stated she had paid policemen $150 a week for each girl employed.

Her current troubles with the law began last summer when her place in the Hollywood hills was raided and she was arrested. Seized in the raid was a card index of patrons said to contain the names of "top people" in the movies and radio industry.

Miss Allen was sentenced to 180 days on charges of operating a house of prostitution. After that term she began a year's sentence on the pandering conviction which resulted from her soliciting a policewoman, posing as a prostitute, to enter her establishment.

She was taken out of her jail cell yesterday to open safe deposit boxes said to contain her financial records, including those of alleged payoffs to police.

2 Nonsegregated Playgrounds Open Today, Sponsored by Quakers, Recreation Board

Two nonsegregated playgrounds will be among some 30 District Recreation Board areas opening today with summer programs.

The playgrounds opening today will make a total of about 120 play areas in operation.

The two playgrounds operating on a summer-long interracial basis are the Rose Park Playground, 27th and O sts. nw., and the Garfield Parks area, 3d, 4th and G sts. se.

Their operation as an experiment is being carried on jointly by the American Friends Service Committee and the District Recreation Board. David Scull is acting chairman of the joint group.

The two playgrounds will be staffed by about a dozen AFSC workers, white and Negro, under the direction of Daniel Peacock of Richmond, Ind., and under the general supervision of Milo Christiansen, District superintendent of recreation. Peacock has had previous experience in interracial youth work.

The program at the two playgrounds will be similar to that at other District playgrounds "with such modifications as seem desirable to meet this particular situation," according to Scull.

Some District Recreation Board workers will work with the Quaker group. Each playground will be staffed at all times by about five persons.

The AFSC group has two problems: it needs about $500, and it is seeking a home where its 12 or 15 playground workers can live together. The committee asks that any contributions be sent to the American Friends Service Committee, 1825 R st. nw.

Heinz Oven-Baked Beans Are The Kind Your Menfolks Really Yearn For!

Old-Fashioned Oven-Baking Makes Heinz Beans So Downright Tender And Mellow. Folks Just Naturally Hanker For 'Em! Heinz Fixes 'Em Three Wonderful Ways—Drenched In The Spiciest Sauces You Ever Tasted!

They Make Home Cooks Jealous

● Even the best home cooks admit Heinz Beans taste like the real old-fashioned kind! Heinz oven-bakes them—then drenches them in luscious home-recipe sauces! Try Boston-style—steeped in dark molasses sauce and flavored with pork. Or treat the family to Heinz Beans in a spicy "Aristocrat"-tomato sauce—with or without tender pork. All three kinds of old-fashioned Heinz Oven-Baked Beans are pretty wonderful eating!

Its Bouquet Tells Heinz Vinegar Is Better

● One whiff of winy, fragrant Heinz Vinegar and you're sure you've something rather special! Clear, sparkling, patiently aged to uniform strength, Heinz Vinegar is economical, too—actually costs you less to use because it goes further. Are you well supplied?

Babies Say "Yes" To The Finer Taste And Quality Of Heinz

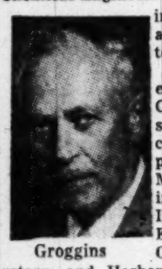
Engineer Club Elects Groggins

Phil H. Groggins, authority on applied organic chemistry, has been elected president of the Chemical Engineers Club of Washington, it was announced yesterday.



Groggins

Other officers elected include George Armistead, jr., local consultant, vice president; D. O. Myatt, managing editor of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, secretary, and Herbert W. Yeagley, Monsanto Chemical Co., treasurer.

Groggins, of 1709 Surrey lane, nw., is technical assistant to the chief, bureau of agricultural and industrial chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture.

He is a member of the American Chemical Society, the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and the Torch Club of Philadelphia.

Corning Plan On Home Rule Gets Approval

The Board of Education yesterday side-stepped the controversial question of an elected school board while considering the stand it should take on home rule proposals.

By a special poll of members the board unanimously approved a nine-page analysis prepared by Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning on how the proposed legislation will affect operation of the schools.

The board previously had split on the Corning recommendation when it contained a section opposing election of school board members. All but passing mention of election of school board members was dropped in the statement approved yesterday.

Corning Statement

In discussing methods of filling vacancies as they occur on the board for unexpired terms, the Corning statement said that the present method by appointment of District Court judges "seems entirely satisfactory."

The statement listed six main objections to home rule legislation.

Proposed legislation, Corning said, would give members of the District Council the right to overrule decisions made by the school board. This would result in a board with less authority than it has at present.

Other phases of the bill objected to were:

Transfer of the enforcement of laws regulating child labor from the school board to a Department of Labor.

Appointment of a superintendent of schools for less than the present three-year term.

More Objections

Transfer of clerks, secretaries and custodians from authority of the board to that of the Civil Service.

Setting up under the Board of Education a vocational rehabilitation program separate from the educational program of the public schools and administered by a commission having no responsibility to the board or the superintendent of schools.

A proposal to pay board members $20 for each meeting attended. Corning described the pay as "woefully insufficient to attract capable people t othe service.

"At the present time the public service freely given places service on the board on a very high plane which is challenging to the people who serve on the board," he said.

Hitchcocks Visit Mining Town Family of Bride

Windber, Pa., June 16 (AP).—A visit from her Cinderella daughter and wealthy socialite son-in-law didn't even phase Mrs. Steve Turk, wife of a coal miner. She was out on the lawn yesterday hanging clothes as usual.

The visitors were tall, willowy Stephana Saja Hitchcock, 24, and husband, Francis Hitchcock. It was the first trip home for the bride, who eloped in Georgia with Hitchcock.

Stephana pitched right in and helped with the cooking.

Hitchcock said the visit was "very pleasant," and added: "In fact, we're going to look around for a house somewhere in the vicinity of Windber."

Teague Opens Inquiry Into Cadet Corps

Representative Teague (D., Tex.), wartime Infantry officer, has begun an investigation of the District's waning high school cadet program.

The young Congressman, decorated 11 times for bravery in the war, said yesterday he has sent a questionnaire to District school officials asking what's wrong with the cadets.

In a letter to school superintendents, principals and the Board of Education, Teague expressed concern with "the apparent falloff and lack of interest displayed in the high school cadet program, as evidenced in the recent drills held at Griffith Stadium."

Teague, a member of the House District Committee, said that as a former college ROTC officer and as an infantry battalion commander in combat he was in a position "to personally view the benefits derived from group military training, such as sportsmanship, team cooperation and ability to live and get along with one another."

Pushkin to Be Honored In Saturday Program

The 150th anniversary of the birth of the poet Alexander Pushkin will be commemorated in a program at Pierce Hall, 15th and Harvard sts. nw., at 7:30 p. m. Saturday. The program is sponsored by the Russian St. Nicholas Sisterhood.

Boris Brazol, chairman of the Pushkin Society in America, will speak on the poet and Russia, and Dr. V. V. Gsovski of the Library of Congress will discuss Pushkin as a poet. Musical and ballet performances are also planned.

Hagerstown Blue Law Trial Postponed

Hagerstown, Md., June 16 (AP).—Trial of 19 persons on charges of violating a 225-year-old blue law applying to Washington County was postponed today.

Judge Joseph D. Mish of the county Circuit Court said defense attorneys had asked for a delay in start of the trial, which was scheduled to begin tomorrow. He set Friday, June 24, as the new date. The defendants are employes of movie theaters and an auto speedway whose managements have challenged the ancient statute.

Charles Countians at Indian Head Session Urged to Vote 'No' on Slot Machines Tuesday

Indian Head, Md., June 16 (Spl.). Residents of Charles County, Md., were strongly urged tonight to work and vote against legalization of slot machines at a referendum that will take place here next Tuesday.

Ministers and teachers called for defeat of the proposal, which they termed a menace to morals and honesty of the community and its citizens.

J. R. Wiggins, managing editor of The Washington Post, principal speaker at the meeting at the Lackey High School, discussed experience nationally with legalized slot machine operation.

He cited experience in Twin Falls, Idaho, where he said the community "licensed slot machines and got 50 per cent of the gross take and within a year repealed the law in spite of the fact that they took in $393,000 revenue."

It is significant, he said, that one day after Prince Georges County voters legalized the machines, the so-called "residence" clause was attacked in the courts. In St. Marys County, Md., he said, the tax rate has gone from $1.25 to $1.40 since machines were legalized despite promises of proponents to lower taxes.

"If law enforcement officers cannot enforce the law on the physical presence of slot machines," he asked, "how can they be expected to enforce a law involving calculation of taxes."

The Rev. C. E. LeGates of Indian Head presided for the Charles County Ministerial Association. Other speakers included the Rev. Harold Milstead of Waldorf and Miss Mildred Rice, principal of the Lackey High School.

Meanwhile, an advertisement paid for by a "private citizen" will appear at La Plata, Md., in the Friday issue of the newspaper Times Crescent, urging Charles County voters to approve slot machines in the referendum June 21.

Asserting that taxpayers have benefited from legalized slot machines in neighboring counties without "moral breakdown," the ad advises the county to profit by the "inherent instinct to take a chance or gamble," and ridicules those who "supinely hope for the ultimate purification of the moral atmosphere of our county."

Notables Sign Petition for DP Bill Passage

Washington notables are among the 250 signatories to a statement released last night which urges speedy Senate passage of the McGrath-Neely displaced-persons bill.

The Senate Judiciary subcommittee, headed by Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) is scheduled to hold its first executive meeting on amendatory displaced persons legislation today.

The statement, sent to Senate leaders of both parties, said passage of the McGrath-Neely bill would parallel the Celler bill in the House, which amended "most of the unjust and unworkable features of the 1948 Displaced Persons Act."

Washington signers included H. R. Baukhage, Marquis Childs, Lowell Mellett, Edgar Ansel Mowrer and Eric Sevareid of press and radio; Philip Murray and Harvey W. Brown, representing labor, and Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Morris Llewellyn Cooke, the Rev. A. Powell Davies, Joseph M. Dawson, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Melvin D. Hildreth, Eric Johnston, Robert R. Nathan and Dr. George F. Zook.

effort to seek publicity," he added. "We will continue this drive until every professional gambler is driven from Mount Rainier, and we'll make sure they don't return.

"Chief Wise has some plans for harassing those who refuse to leave and he will have my 100 per cent backing in efforts to maintain Mount Rainier as a decent place to live."

A reporter asked the mayor if his statement contradicted a report of a grand jury in October, 1947, that Prince Georges County was free of "widespread gambling in any form."

He replied that he knew nothing about the county at large or the situation over a period of years. His action stemmed, he said, from evidence he has found of gambling in Mount Rainier since he took office May 9.

Ground-Breaking At Lyon Village

A ground-breaking ceremony to launch the proposed new Lyon Village Community House in Arlington will take place Saturday at 9 a. m. at the center site, N. 20th and Highlands sts.

The building site and $20,000 were contributed by Lyon, Inc., builders. Area residents thus far have collected $3200 toward an additional $10,000 for the structure.

tion, for public use in Prince Georges County" the cash payoff machines approved at the June 2 referendum.

The State code provides for penalties against persons keeping gaming equipment, operating such equipment or permitting such equipment to be operated on their premises. It includes also a description of activities construed to be gaming in violation of the statute.

The code describes as gaming tables "all games, devices and contrivances at which money or any other thing shall be bet or wagered."

Judge Marbury's observation that the law may be invalid was made as attorneys debated the contention of C. Walter Hendrix, of Silver Spring, that restrictive licensing provisions of the law are "discriminatory" and "tend to deprive him of his constitutional rights."

The issue at hand was reduced to secondary importance when the jurist began questioning attorneys for both sides for opinions on the validity of the entire law.

Walter L. Green, attorney for Hendrix, said it was not his intent to question the entire law, adding he sought only to have his client's licensing rights determined by the court.

"Since your client has filed his suit under the Declaratory Judgment Act," Judge Marbury said 'it is broad enough to raise a question as to validity of the whole statute."

He asked attorneys for both sides to file briefs on validity of the entire law as well as the licensing provisions.

Following the hearing, Judge Marbury said he would rule, probably early next week, on one, and possibly two questions: 1. The validity of the slot machine law as a whole, and 2. If the law is upheld, the right of Hendrix to obtain slot machine license even though he is a nonresident of the county.

Truman Gets Power For Reorganization

President Truman scored a major victory in Congress yesterday when the Senate and House, after weeks of wrangling, approved a compromise bill giving him power to reorganize the executive branch of the Government.

Former President Herbert Hoover's commission on reorganization said the measure would save billions of dollars.

The bill authorizes the President to put any plan into effect for more efficiency and economy unless vetoed by either House within 60 days. No agency is exempt. Battles over what might happen to "pet" departments caused most of the congressional delay.

Mr. Truman has several reorganization proposals ready, but he has not revealed what they are.

Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio), a member of the Hoover commission, told the House yesterday that many of Mr. Truman's plans will be patterned after Hoover's recommendations. He declined to elaborate.

The House, and then the Senate, adopted by voice vote the compromise that had been hammered out in a month-long Senate-House conference committee struggle only Wednesday.

The House had wanted to give special treatment to the military establishment, the Federal Reserve Board, the Interstate Commerce Commission and several other departments and agencies. This provision was dropped by the conferees.

The veto problem was resolved by providing that any reorganization proposal shall become effective unless rejected within 60 days by a constitutional majority of either House—218 votes in the House and 49 in the Senate.

Mr. Truman, who has been pressing hard for final action, told a news conference he would begin sending his plans to Congress as soon as possible after the bill reaches his desk.

Cold War Note

Reds Warned Americanism Is Spreading

By John M. Hightower
Post Reporter

State Department officials found evidence yesterday that even the Communists feel they are now on the defensive in the cold war in Europe.

The clue to what may be a radical turn in Communist leadership estimates of the East-West conflict came in a bulletin of the Communist International Information Bureau.

As reported from Bucharest, Romania, where it is published, the bulletin declared it is now the "cardinal task" of Communists to block the spread of Americanism.

Officials here took an interested look at the defensive nature of this declaration. They said that this, coupled with the charge that the United States is trying to "poison" working classes with American ideas, indicates the Soviet-led Cominform is deeply concerned over the West's success to date in fighting communism.

This view of what the Communists themselves may believe is in accord with official American estimates of the cold war struggle. According to these, the next phase of the battle between western influences and Soviet communism—apart from Germany—may well lie in eastern Europe, with Yugoslavia providing the initial testing ground.

Negotiations are on between Britain and Yugoslavia for an 800-million-dollar trade agreement under which Yugoslavia would receive badly needed manufactured goods.

Diplomatic authorities here expect a continued loosening of American restrictions on trade with Tito, short of allowing him to buy materials having military value.

On the Communist side, all signs indicate that the Cominform is getting ready to try to crush Tito. This may take the form of intensifying the economic blockade maintained against Yugoslavia by the Russian-led eastern European Communist countries.

2 Jailed 6 Months In Attempt to Hold-up Motorist

Two men who were foiled in a holdup attempt when the motorist they were attempting to rob drove in the wrong traffic laine, were sentenced in District Court yesterday.

They were Louis Winston and Julian Swain, each sentenced by Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws to six months imprisonment. Winston and Swain had been tried for assault with intent to commit a robbery, but were convicted June 2 only of simple assaut.

The motorist, Payton B. Langley of 1620 Rhode Island ave. nw., and his companion, Elizabeth S. Thacker of 1631 Euclid st. nw., had just entered his car, parked near 14th and E sts. nw., about 1:30 a. m. March 20 when Winston and Swain forced their way into the car. Langley drove in a wrong traffic lane near 12th st. and Maine ave. sw. and attracted a policeman's attention.

12 Men Named To Survey Tax Laws in Maryland

Annapolis, Md., June 16 (AP).—Governor Lane today appointed a 12-man commission to survey Maryland tax laws and see if they contain any inequalities.

He chose Assistant Attorney General Richard W. Case to call members together so they may get organized quickly and work up a report in time for the 1950 General Assembly session.

The tax study was asked in a Senate resolution shortly after Lane's administration sent down orders late in the last session to put aside a half-dozen pending revenue measures.

What Wife Did to Him Rids Hair Expert of Her

London, June 16 (U.P.). — Raymond Steiner, a hair specialist, appeared in court today to testify in his suit for divorce on grounds of cruelty.

He charged his wife Elizabeth hit him with a milk bottle, batted him with a shovel, broke a glass tumbler on his head, knocked out one of his teeth with a plate, attacked him with a cane, yanked him downstairs by one leg, scarred him with her fingernails, pushed a lighted cigarette into his face, tossed a chunk of butter at him.

The divorce was granted.

W. & L. Trainer Dies While Working

Lexington, Va., June 16 (AP).—Bevie Lee Boyd, 49-year-old veteran athletic trainer at Washington and Lee University, died of a heart attack today while working in his back yard.

"Doc" Boyd joined the W. and L. athletic staff as head trainer in 1938 after serving as assistant trainer at the Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. Recalled to active service in 1940, Boyd returned finally to Washington and Lee in 1946.

Fred Daly Wins Manchester Golf

Dead Past

The story of past membership in the Communist Party told frankly and forthrightly to the House Committee on Un-American Activities by Dr. Frank Oppenheimer is a story common enough among honest men who were in their youth a decade ago. In the 1930s, many a young man, appalled by the "great depression" and the joblessness and misery that accompanied it, saw the illusion of a remedy in Marxism. It was even possible then, in good faith, to join the Communist Party, unaware of its absolute subservience to the Kremlin and its adherence to the ugliest doctrines of police state dictatorship.

In the 1940s, the true character of the Communist Party became too clear for men of integrity to remain in it. Like many others who were disillusioned, Dr. Oppenheimer quit the party in 1940. His subsequent services to the United States as well as his repudiation of Communist dogma attest his loyalty to democratic ideas. There is no more reason to condemn him now for his past Communist Party membership than for any other youthful folly long repented. His refusal to identify as Communists the long list of names submitted to him by the Un-American Activities Committee seems to us altogether respectable and consonant with a deep-rooted American tradition. This dead past may well be left to bury its dead.

Consumer Survey

The 1949 survey of consumer finances prepared for the Federal Reserve Board by the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan covers a representative sample of spending units and is designed to throw light on expenditures and buying plans as well as the financial position of consumers. This sort of information is of great value in appraising the future course of business. For it is the buying of consumers that determines the level of business activity in the long run. Production indices may be high, but if the product that finally emerges in finished form is not wanted, or if would-be buyers do not have enough money to make their demands effective, production will decline as surpluses pile up and losses have to be taken. Furthermore, if well-heeled consumers are unwilling to buy goods at existing prices, or for any reason change the character of buying, those changes also affect the future course of business.

On the other hand, so long as consumers are both able and willing to buy about as much as they did at the height of the business boom, the basis for a sustained high level of industrial activity exists, barring unforeseen adverse developments. To be sure since the current survey was made in the early months of the present year, there has been a decline in personal incomes and a limited rise in unemployment. But as we pointed out a few days ago, incomes are still at very high levels, and while buyers are more price-conscious than formerly there is as yet no sign of a buyers' strike. Hence there is no convincing evidence that consumer attitudes and incomes have changed materially since the beginning of the year, when, according to the Reserve Board survey, 68 per cent of the spending units reported that they were either as well off or better off than a year earlier. Most of them were also optimistic about the business outlook.

A majority of those interviewed expected prices to go lower, but very few anticipated heavy declines. Although there were indications that some buyers would wait for expected price declines before making purchases, consumers were planning to buy more automobiles, television sets and moderately priced houses than they planned to buy at the beginning of 1948. Judging from declared intentions, purchases of furniture, refrigerators, radios and washing machines will also be maintained at levels not much below 1948 figures. In short, the survey showed some shift in demand but "failed to disclose any significant slackening in total consumer demand for durable goods—assuming the availability of such goods at desired styling, quality and prices—as compared with 1948."

These findings are significant evidence of the underlying strength of the economy. Of course, if the business decline gains momentum and prices drop more than consumers anticipated a few months ago, buying plans may be adversely affected, either because would-be purchasers have lost their jobs, feel insecure, or have decided to wait for prices to go still lower.

Schoolbooks

Judging from its blunderbuss ventures into criticism of the motion pictures and radio, the House Committee on Un-American Activities is just about the least qualified body in the entire solar system to undertake censorship of the textbooks used in American public schools and universities. Allergic to ideas as they have shown themselves to be, the members of the committee would probably find themselves immeasurably shocked by anything more advanced than the McGuffey Eclectic Readers. In asking all the academic institutions of the country to submit to it lists of the textbooks they employ, the committee has apparently overlooked the fact that many of them have libraries which they actually go so far as to make available to students for reference and random reading. Some of these libraries contain volumes crammed with ideas even more dangerous than those expressed in the formal required texts.

Quite apart from the committee's manifest incompetence to appraise the worth of textbooks, there is the overriding consideration that this is an area upon which no agency of the Federal Government ought to trespass. It is scarcely conceivable that Congress, so determined to preserve local autonomy in education that it has hesitated to provide Federal funds for the aid of State schools, would attempt to legislate on the subject of textbooks. The Un-American Activities Committee has once more invaded a province over which it has no jurisdiction and with which it has no legitimate concern.

Mrs. Mildred McAfee Horton, retiring president of Wellesley College, told her graduating students the other day that "the very existence of this committee suggests a widespread fear." What the members of the committee are afraid of, she said, is that "you have been exposed to dangerous ideas. And of course you have, in this free market place of ideas." Today's heresies have a way of becoming tomorrow's truisms. And nothing can be more dangerous than an effort to suppress them. Education requires exposure to hated as well as to popular beliefs if only as a sort of inoculation to produce future immunity. Besides, no body of scholars, let alone of legislators, can be deemed to possess the wisdom or the vision to take on the awesome responsibility of banning books or burning them.

Clean Bill

After a month in conference committee a compromise reorganization bill has finally emerged, and both houses have quickly passed it. It is a good compromise, despite faults that we would rather not see in it. The President, who intends to sign the bill as soon as it reaches his desk, will carry some of the proposals into effect immediately. Others calling for congressional action he will prepare with dispatch.

It is a relief that the bill carries neither full exemption nor any sort of qualified treatment for such pet agencies as the Army Engineers. However, the bill includes the "single-house veto." If either house by constitutional majority disapproves one of the President's plans within 60 days after he submits it, the plan is dead. We have hitherto felt that reorganization is always such a difficult matter to get through Congress that rejection ought to require action by both houses. However, the provision requiring a constitutional majority in one house means that a plan automatically goes into effect unless 49 Senators or 218 Representatives vote against it. That raises the boom higher than the simple majority method, by which a relative handful of Senators or Representatives could have blocked action.

All in all, Congress is to be congratulated on a job well done—one that will pave the way for the streamlining of the world's biggest business, viz, the United States Government.

Chinese Visitor

Dr. Kan Chieh-hou, personal representative of the estimable Gen. Li Tsung-jen, President of the Nationalist rump in China, is in the Capital asking for military help in the present rearguard action in southwestern China against Chinese communism. Dr. Kan seemed to imply that he had a sympathetic reception from the State Department, even from General Marshall; but the respect with which he was greeted should not be confused with support.

What American diplomacy, we should imagine, is keeping in mind is not how to deal with a regime that is going out, but how to deal with a regime that is coming in. That will require all the resourcefulness that diplomacy is capable of. It will likewise require the unity of the free world that is in evidence in Europe. That there should be unity in planning and approach—particularly over commercial relations—is clear from any knowledge either of Chinese history or of Communist tactics. To allow the Chinese Communists to play one trading nation off against the other would be to invite contempt and worse.

It may be said that the Western world is not regimented in its export trade for this political purpose. That is perfectly true, but in these days there is such an organization as the ECA, there is such a thing as an export license system, there is such a thing as the cold war, and there is such a thing as Asia-in-revolt. Any signs of Westerners trying to pick up trade with the new Communist regime either with American materials or with dollars earned in trade should, in these circumstances, be scotched. There was some diffidence in dealing with the Dutch in the matter of Indonesia, but what is at stake in China is much more significant.

Europeans might well ask as preliminary to parallel action in commercial dealings with Communist China that the Americans shall wipe the slate clean in its political policy in China. They would be right in so asking. A common policy involves a winding up of the aid-Nationalist business which has left American policy bankrupt and in a state of palsy. This, indeed, is the first step. It means going back to the traditional American policy in China of nonintervention and the open door. This does not preclude working relations with whatever authority in broken China happens to be in charge in southwestern China or any other part of peripheral China. This has been done since the days of the Canton hongs. But it does mean the liquidation of plans and hopes of arming or supporting warlord armies.

It should be made clear that the United States is not interested any longer in a Chinese policy let alone in a southwestern Chinese policy, but only in an American and a Western policy toward the new China.

Two Victims

The strange case of the unhappy young typist of Chicago who shot and seriously wounded Eddie Waitkus, first baseman of the Philadelphia National League Baseball Club, differs from other current excitements of the news by having no evident social or political implications. As far as any crime may be said to be without motive, this one was. Mr. Waitkus and the girl were not even acquainted. According to her relatives and friends and to her own statement to the police, she had never seen him except on the field at Wrigley Park, where he had formerly played for the Chicago Cubs. On his part Mr. Waitkus seems to have been wholly ignorant of her existence until she telephoned him at the hotel. But for some reason, incomprehensible to ordinary minds, he had obsessed her imagination ever since she first saw him in a game nearly three years ago, and she felt that nothing but his death could deliver her from the obsession.

It was, no doubt, rather naive of young Mr. Waitkus to permit himself to be talked into visiting the young woman in a hotel bedroom. A worldlier or more sophisticated celebrity upon receiving such a request might have mistakenly suspected a blackmail trap, perhaps some version of the ancient badger game. Evidently Mr. Waitkus' curiosity had been aroused by the strange note he had received. Even so, it would have been wiser had he agreed to meet her in the lobby or in some other public place. It is, of course, not improbable that the girl might have attempted to kill him even there, but her chances of succeeding might have been somewhat less.

Thus, as far as Mr. Waitkus is concerned, the only possible moral seems to be that he is the innocent victim of the publicity and the spirit of hero worship upon which the commercialized game of baseball thrives. What happened to him at Chicago is one of those occupational hazards to which all ballplayers, actors and other highly admired public performers are subject. At this writing his surgical prognosis seems favorable, and it is possible to hope not only that he will recover but that he will be able to play again.

But the girl, though less clearly innocent, is also in some sense a victim. That she is demented seems obvious both from her actions and from her statements after arrest; yet even dementias do not occur without causes. It may not be altogether rash to conjecture that in her agonized infatuation she is a tragic sacrifice to the prevalent American ethos, cynically nourished by Hollywood, that encourages us all to hope for what we know in our hearts to be unobtainable.

Words And Music

When Paul Robeson told the Paris conference for peace and cultural castigation a month or so ago that Negroes in America would not fight in a war against the Soviet fatherland we kept our peace. It seemed appropriate not to get excited about a silly statement by a leftward-wandering minstrel. But now Mr. Robeson has gone too far. It is reported from Moscow, where he is an honored guest, that he wants to change the words of one of our favorite songs. This is no ordinary song, either, but a sort of national anthem which Mr. Robeson himself sings better than anyone else. It is Ol' Man River from the Jerome Kern-Oscar Hammerstein 2d operatic masterpiece, Show Boat.

The line about the levee worker who is tired of living and afraid of dying, says Paul, ought to be rewritten to say, "We must fight to death for peace and freedom." This is an admirable sentiment, though what it means in Moscow, where since June 1 the entire population has been mobilized in paramilitary formations, is something different from the meaning conveyed in this country. Esthetically and even ideologically, however, we can't see that it improves the song at all. In fact, the suggested revision fits neither the rhyme nor the rhythm of the original.

Mr. Hammerstein's caveat that Robeson "write his own songs and leave mine alone," is sounder on legal than on musical grounds, we think. If the proffered line is a sample of the way Paul Robeson writes songs, we think he had better give up the whole idea. With our own apologies to Oscar, the best line for Mr. Robeson would be something like this: He don't say nothin'; he just keeps singing along.

Morton E. Kent

May I make an observation on the public and private work of Morton E. Kent whose tragic death has inexpressibly shocked me. Since our Government service in Board of Economic Warfare days in 1942, we have had no very close relations. Our infrequent meetings have been invariably by appointment. In his work for BEW which I observed at close hand, he was indefatigable, devoted and competent.

Our last meeting, not more than a month ago, was arranged to give him an opportunity to develop for me a very imaginative and, I believe, sound idea as to the possible printing requirements of backward nations to be held under President Truman's Point Four. While doubtless he hoped that the private concern with which he was associated might in time profit, he presented the idea with so much force and regard for the public values involved that I felt that I had been educated and was grateful for the opportunity.

I am convinced that in seeking to get access to the Bulgarian representative, Morton Kent had only the same purpose in mind as he had in seeking me out. It's a dreadful thought that public opinion and Government action can lead to striking down the innocent and the loyal. Eternal vigilance, yes but—let us take heed lest further irreparable damage be done through groundless gossip.

Hawaiian Strike

Our gratitude for the stand you are taking in our longshoremen strike.

Too many people, in far too many States, know absolutely nothing about these Hawaiian Islands. It isn't all ukulele playing, hula dancing, and Waikiki Beach. There are the acres and acres of pineapple fields, sugar cane fields, and the once thriving ports where shipments of goods were loaded for the Far East . . . or our own vital military bases.

Now we lie deserted, plagueridden with the pestilence of insecurity, fear, and probably hunger. I am no longer sure I am really in America.

The shameful talk of sending relief food ships to Hawaii is a case of who's kidding who? We have ships in our harbor loaded with food. Highly perishable food. Onions, potatoes, 1725 tons of food.

I wish I could show you our mills lying idle, the unhappy people standing idle, I wish you could hear what the strikers have to say. Not many want this strike.

You know what the instigators of the strike are telling the people now? "Don't worry if your boss goes broke. The Government will take this mill, or these fields (whatever the industry is) over and you'll be better off than you ever were." But which government? That's the $64 question.

Government By Snooping

As an owner of some rental property I am periodically visited by young men from the FBI who in hush-hush voices ask me for intimate personal information about present and former tenants, and employes. They assure me that any information I may divulge, or statement I may choose to make, will be considered as confidential, that is to say, anonymous.

Government by snooping, now apparently an established procedure in this once free and favored land of ours, recalls a slap-happy topical song of an earlier day, entitled "Who Will Bury the Undertaker?" This might be revised and made currently applicable by paraphrasing it into "Who Investigates the Investigators?"

It has, heretofore, been a part of my traditional code to regard anonymous communications as unethical. But I feel sure that in the present circumstances it will be accepted as appropriate and fitting to adopt the FBI's own euphemism and sign this merely. CONFIDENTIAL.

This brief letter is prompted only by my California pride and refers to your fine editorial "Californian Echo" of June 12.

I refer to an error regarding Manchester Boddy whom you termed as "editor and publisher of the San Francisco Daily News . . ." Mr. Boddy is, and has been for a number of years, the editor and publisher of the aggressive—and progressive Los Angeles Daily News.

'Time Is Of The Essence'

"Time is of the essence," as you say editorially on June 14, if the District home-rule bill is to pass Congress at this session. But are you not naive in thinking that appeals to logic and principle will influence the little men who control the destinies of the home rule bill in House committee?

Men of larger horizons and interests have no appetite for such trivia as the disposition of stray dogs, the destruction of weeds and starlings, and the changing of street names. But such things are great stuff to the little men from Podunk Corners. It gives them delusions of grandeur to preside over our local destinies. Home rule would deprive them of much of their petty power and sense of importance. Surely you do not expect them to support democracy in Washington.

Egrets' Migration

Last year, in August, I remember that many of the papers gave quite a bit of space to the annual trip North of the American egrets, the large white marsh birds which were once almost extinct, when women used their plumes on their hats. Protection of these birds, led by the National Audubon Society, has resulted in a great increase in their numbers. Last year, I saw as many as 100 at one time on the Anacostia flats, by the Naval Air Station.

Well, the egrets are back—and rather early! I saw five recently at Four-Mile Run, just south of the National Airport.

"Russia In China"

I heartily agree with your June 10 editorial, "Russia in China." Ever since Russia, under the Czar, embarked upon an imperialistic course in China, finagling with Li Hung Chiang, after the Boxer Rebellion in 1900, to extend the Chinese Eastern Railway from Harbin to an ice-free port at Dairen, the Chinese have had every reason to be suspicious of Russia's every move. But Li believed in playing both ends against the middle, which is clever enough as a game, if it doesn't backfire. Unfortunately it did backfire in 1904 when Japan attacked Russia and drove the Russians out of Manchuria. In 1909 Secretary Philander C. Knox, speaking for the Harriman interests, proposed the neutralization of the South Manchuria Railway, which Japan had by then double tracked and modernized with American-bought equipment. The Japanese imperialists turned thumbs down on this proposal, which they regarded as nothing less than preposterously naive. Whoever heard of neutralizing anything gained with blood and tears? Much less anything in China!

But looking at the situation in retrospect, it would have been one of the most astute long-range security measures Japan could have taken at the time. Fifteen years later Vice Foreign Minister Debuchi suggested that we go in with Japan and form a partnership in developing China's resources, when the American firm of Siems-Carey, with a concession to develop Chinese mineral resources in any area not already preempted by foreign concessions, could not find a single square mile in China not so preempted by our State Department, still nursing the hallucinations of John Hay, which had just then been reinforced by the Nine Power Treaty, turned down Debuchi's proposal on the basis that it would violate the "open door" policy.

During all the time Soviet Russia, having relinquished all her concessions, as well as her extra-territorial rights in China, was singing the song of hate against the "capitalistic imperialists" in China.

It was not until Yalta that the scene changed. There we agreed to all Russia's terms regarding the future of China in order to insure her continuation in the war in Europe. The Cairo declaration and the Soong-Molotov treaty followed, as much through coercion from us as through persuasion from Russia. We literally took the Russian hook and put it into China's mouth.

At the end of her week of valiant fighting in which Russia, according to her own propagandists, "won the war in Asia" by accepting the surrender of a million Japanese in Manchuria, already cowed by the atomic bombs over Hiroshima and Nagasaki, Russia proceeded to implement unilaterally clauses in the Potsdam declaration which were to be carried out only after a treaty of peace with Japan had been signed. The rape of Manchuria, the arming of the Communists, with Japan's surrendered weapons from the Japanese, all followed.

Russia was not a party to the Cairo declaration. For us to act singly in denouncing it, or even in conjunction with Great Britain, who along with China was a party to it, would not have anything like the propaganda value that would a public call to the recognized government of China to join us in renouncing it. This would leave Russia and the Chinese Communists, if they went along with Russia, as the sole champions of the rape of Manchuria. And if the Communists in China joined us in denouncing it, then we should have the first definite indication that our present hallucinations regarding the Titoism of Mao Tse-Tung are indeed facts.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

ERP Scapegoat

The European Cooperation Administration here in Washington has a small staff of able specialists in trade-union organization and labor relations. Not long ago one of these specialists was talking to a conference of New England union officials about the Marshall Plan.

When the question period came, the business agent for the shoe workers in New Hampshire took the floor to make a few remarks and then put a very tough question:

"I just want to tell you that 41 GI's in one union are out of work. They've been out of work so long they can't make the payments on their homes and they're going to lose them. That means losing everything they put into them.

"Now, under this Marshall Plan we're sending hides to Europe and I guess maybe we're sending shoe machinery, too. Why can't we make shoes in this country and send the shoes over to Europe? That way we'd give our own people some work."

AT ECA headquarters they are acutely conscious of this attitude. It grows as unemployment grows. And the most serious unemployment today is in those manufacturing industries in which European competition eventually could be a factor.

"We ought to have a Marshall Plan for New England," said a woman textile worker at another conference as she pointed out that New England mills were either closing or putting labor on part time.

In Paterson, N. J., workers in the silk mills are complaining that the United States is shipping chemicals to Japan, making it possible for the Japanese to send this country dyed and finished cloth. Before the war, so the argument goes, the Japs sent raw silk, and American workers could weave it and dye it.

In Bridgeport, Conn., a manufacturer charged that the Marshall Plan had cost him a $49,000 order when a British firm underbid him on a contract for India. This was done, he said in an inflammatory statement, with the aid of raw materials shipped to England under the plan.

Every effort is being made by ECA to educate both unions and employers on the need of restoring western Europe's economy. The Marshall Plan is, of course, the core of American foreign policy and the chief weapon being used against Communist aggression.

"When workers are misinformed, or when they fear growing unemployment, they will look for a scapegoat," Clinton S. Golden, ECA labor adviser, said recently. "In such an atmosphere it becomes difficult to explain that European aid is not the cause for declining sales and jobs, or even to convince them that in many industries the Marshall Plan has been beneficial by creating sales and jobs that otherwise would not have existed."

FOR 10 YEARS the United States has been virtually without foreign competition in the home market. During the war years, imports, except for urgently needed strategic materials, dropped to almost zero. In the postwar period the pent-up demand at home and abroad made it a sellers' holiday.

In that unnatural decade American business forgot about the foreign competitor. Now, with the revival of foreign competition, thanks in part to the Marshall Plan, the real danger is a revival of economic isolationism determined on keeping foreign goods out of American markets.

The tendency is to cry even before there is any hurt. A manufacturer of machine tools recently announced that he was starting a plant in Britain. This announcement came about the time his American plant closed temporarily. The local union immediately complained about foreign competition, even though the British plant was not yet in the drawing board stage.

The Communist foes of the Marshall Plan are exploiting this in two opposite ways with typical Communist cynicism. Here at home the line is that the Marshall Plan is building up competition to take away American jobs. The European worker is fed the propaganda that America wants to maintain domination over all markets so that Europeans always will be dependent on goods from this country.

Often, interestingly enough, the Communist line coincides with that of the reactionary businessman who wants to cut foreign spending so that taxes can go down.

It will take a lot of reasonableness and understanding to prevent a stampede in the direction of economic nationalism. Such a stampede could undo everything that America has attempted thus far in bringing order and peace to a chaotic world.

"Criticism of Odlum"

Answering the June 11 letter of Zora W. Butler I wish to say that I admire and respect Drew Pearson for the work he is doing.

Mr. Pearson is perfectly right when he complains about Wall Streeters and other promoters who have been placed in high places of our national defense. Half of the appropriation money given to the War Department goes down a rat hole, because of the appointment of such men.

An honest investigation should be made of the plane contracts given to Floyd Odlum's company.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

Our Portly Hope

DALAT, Indo-China.—On the cool verandas of a rather scrubbly little villa overlooking pine-clad mountains that would be more at home in Maine than southeast Asia, there sits one of the hopes of the Western world. He is a thick-set, plumply portly man in his late thirties, with straight, jet-black hair glistening with oil and a bland, flat, totally expressionless face.

He speaks faultless Parisian French, but he speaks seldom. He becomes animated only when he is pointing to some spot in the surrounding mountains where he killed a tiger or trapped an elephant or bested a fierce gaur in single combat. Besides the extermination of wild beasts, his other recorded enthusiasm is the corps de ballet of Hongkong's taxi dance halls. Such is his Imperial Majesty, Bao Dai, last descendant of the ancient line that has ruled the richest part of Indo-China for many centuries, and the newly installed Emperor of Viet Namh, as his domain is now called.

BAO DAI is the hope of the West because he, in his plump person, offers about the last hope that Indo-China will not be gathered into the Soviet sphere. He is, in theory, the ruler of a fully independent Viet Namh. But most of his theoretical territory is already controlled by the wily Indo-Chinese Communist leader, Ho Chi-minh. If Bao Dai is finally defeated by Ho Chi-minh, Indo-China will go Communist. And thus the world catastrophe of the communization of all southeast Asia will become immediately possible, if not downright probable.

Bao Dai's task is simply to attract away from Ho Chi-minh the vast majority of Indo-Chinese who are now following the Communist chieftain.

It must be added that under his somewhat uninspiring surface, the Emperor of Viet Namh conceals certain assets for this exacting assignment.

Those who know him well say that he is fundamentally a man of intelligence and character. Certainly the visitor observes a certain impassive force about him. Undoubtedly also he has great personal courage. Ho Chi-minh has condemned him to death, and Ho Chi-minh's guerillas are everywhere. Then, too, he has the monarchy, religion, and a preponderance of military force all working on his side.

Most Indo-Chinese feel a lingering respect for Bao Dai's old line, although the French long used them as puppets. Bao Dai is himself high priest of Indo-China's Buddhists. His wife is a Catholic, with some appeal to the numerous Indo - Chinese Catholics who now support Ho Chi-minh. And he has the strong allegiance of a peculiar religious sect, confusingly called the Cao Dai. The Cao Dai professes to combine the best in all the world's religious teaching and, more important, boasts a following of a million and an efficient private army of 15,000 men. Finally, Bao Dai also has on his side the French army, without which he and his supporters would be ehivvied out of existence overnight.

THE TROUBLE is that the French army cannot win for Bao Dai. To understand why this is so, you must know something of his adversaries. Ho Chi-minh is a Comintern agent whom the French rate as an authentic political genius. They also rate his chief lieutenant, General Vo Nguyen Gap, as a military commander of great ability. Their whole appeal has been to Indo-Chinese nationalism. And by playing down communism and playing up nationalism, they have raised the country against the French and have nearly pushed the French into the sea.

They have done this although the French have been far better armed, have planned their military operations well, and have fought with superb courage and discipline in this war in which death always strikes suddenly from ambush. After three years' experience here, all the thoughtful French are therefore convinced that a revolutionary nationalist movement, armed with automatic weapons, and supported by most of the population, cannot be defeated by a foreign force. The only way is to fight fire with fire.

That is why the French have now conferred on Bao Dai more independence than Ho Chi-minh ever asked for, and have set him up, so to speak, as Ho's rival in the nationalist movement business. If Ho is to be defeated, it is now up to the Emperor to do so.

To be realistic, Bao Dai can only win if his regime attracts away from Ho many of the people who now follow the Communists from purely nationalist motives. This will be quite possible if the people of Indo-China, who hate and suspect the French with remarkable unanimity, can now be convinced that Bao Dai is the real thing, and not just another French puppet. To help to convince the Indo-Chinese people of this vital fact is thus the overriding American interest in Indo-China.

This in turn suggests important deductions as to future American policy in Asia. But while these deductions for the future must be deferred to another report, one thing may be said here about the past. In the existing circumstances, the indications of American sympathy for Ho Chi-minh in the immediate postwar period are now a little bitter to remember.

Idea Spreads for Aid to Boy, 4, Unaware He Is Blind for Life

Westernport, Md., June 16. (AP). "Mommy, take the bandages off my eyes so I can see."

Four-year-old Glenn Norman Di-Chiera has been asking his mother that for months now. He doesn't realize he is hopelessly blind—and will be for the rest of his life.

Cancer forced the removal of both eyes—the last one March 1. The youngster associates his lack of sight with the bandages he wore for so long and imagines the wraps are still there, keeping him in a world of blackness.

Although Mrs. Stella Di-Chiera has managed to keep up the modest home in Westernport, she recently has been both ill and unemployed.

But the small community took note. An interested group organized and began a fund drive to help Glenn. Perhaps he could get a "seeing eye" dog.

The idea spread. Pennies, nickels and dollars trickled in. About $300 already is in the bank, earmarked for the boy. Cumberland newspapers joined in the effort.

A Cumberland lawyer — also blind—became interested. Soon Edward M. Horchler was a close adviser to the committee handling Glenn's funds and Mrs. Di-Chiera.

Horchler advised against the seeing-eye dog—for the present—because of the youngster's age and the cost of the dog's upkeep. The dog, he believes, would consume $25 to $40 worth of food a month, and the Di-Chiera budget can't take that.

Instead, Horchler suggests, why not use the money to purchase toys and tools that would teach Glenn to use his hands and accustom himself to the blackness?

As yet, no definite plan has been worked out. The group is taking their time, to make sure its action is sure and sound.

Col. Nevitt Heads Guard

Col. Peyton G. Nevitt, adjutant general, has assumed temporary command of the District National Guard in the absence of the commanding general, Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox.

Before he left Tuesday for a business trip abroad, General Cox issued an amendment to a 1947 order which specifies who will command in his absence.

The amendment inserts the phrase, "by direction of the President," in the original order.

The insertion apparently is intended to bulwark the original order which names the adjutant general of the District National Guard as commanding officer during the absence of General Cox. The original order does not specify Colonel Nevitt by name, however.

Last year a controversy arose when Col. Le Roy S. Mann, commanding the 260th Antiaircraft Group, sought to assume command of the District National Guard during an absence of General Cox, claiming this right as the senior officer.

The dispute was carried to the White House and when General Cox returned the matter was referred to him for investigation. Control of the District Guard was transferred to the Army's National Guard Bureau but nothing was done about clarifying the order until now.

Afghans Send Bombing Protest to Pakistan

New Delhi, India, June 16 (U.P.).—Afghanistan has sent an urgent note to Pakistakan protesting the alleged bombing of an Afghan village by a Pakistini air force plane, it was disclosed today.

Sardar A. Khan, Afghan Ambassador here, said 15 persons were killed and 26 injured June 12 when the plane dropped five bombh into a crowd of tribesmen.

District CIO Council Blasts Board Action

The Recreation Board's refusal to end segregation outright brought a blast yesterday from the D. C. nIdustrial Union Council, CIO.

The statement called "particularly reprehensible" the action of the District Commississioners, unelected misrepresentatives of our voteless citizens, in instructing their representatives to vote against lifting the vicious discrimination policy."

The statement said "no thinking person can be eluded into believing that the mere opening of public schools and recreation buildings to interracial meetings after school hours represents a genuine program of 'gradualism' or even healthy compromise."

Dewey Ends 31-Day Tour of 7 Countries

New York, June 16 (NYHT).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey returned today from a 31-day tour of seven western European countries "with my own convictions greatly strengthened as to the necessity for American aid if we are to save Europe, and as to the need for a united Europe."

He repeatedly praised the "great progress" that he said the Economic Cooperation Administration had made in its "grim struggle" to beat back communism in western Europe.

Basing his remarks on interviews with top-ranking statesmen in England, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Switzerland, Italy and Germany, Dewey said of ECA:

"There are a great number of very fine and able men doing what is perhaps the most important job in the world to the best of their ability. Great progress is being made in every country we visited.

"The difficulty is that so much progress remains to be made. The people generally are living on wages that average one fourth to one sixth of those in the United States. The people of Europe are still suffering from grave inadequacies of all the essentials of life."

On prospects for world peace, the Governor reported "continuout tension in every capital, which waxes and wanes with the progress of the cold war."

"But," he added, "I didn't see many people who see any immediate prospect of war."

More Power From Niagara

Niagara Falls, N. Y. (U.P.).—Mighty Niagara Falls, under the guidance of American and Canadian utility experts some day may be harnessed to produce twice as much electricity as at present.

Exactly how much electricity Niagara will produce in the future depends largely upon a new international treaty to be negotiated between the United States and Canada. Among other things, the treaty will deal with water diversion in the Niagara River for power purposes.

In the immediate future, the Niagara Falls Power Co. plans to go ahead with a 60 million dollar project to generate more electricity if the treaty makes permanent the present emergency diversion of water for power purposes.

The water, taken from the river on both American and Canadian sides above the falls, would be carried downstream by canals four or five miles to obtain the advantage of the river's full drop of approximately 310 feet. Spokesmen said the diversion would in no way destroy the scenic beauty of the falls.

Bill Appeal Made to House

The House Un-American Activities Committee appealed to the House yesterday for permission to pay a $37.63-a-day hotel bill of former Communist courier Elizabeth Bentley.

The $526.85 bill was for the 14 days she spent here last year while the committee's star witness in spy hearings.

The men in charge of House money accounts first rejected the expense account because of a rule against paying witnesses more than their regular $6 daily allowance. Then it was disallowed this year on the ground it should have been paid out of last year's money allotment.

Sasscer Helps To Dedicate New School

Upper Marlboro's "booster" spirit was lauded last night by Representative Sasscer (D., Md.) as he helped dedicate the village's new one-million-dollar Frederick Sasscer High School.

The school was named for Representative Sasscer's father, a former superintendent of schools in Prince Georges County.

Representative Sasscer, whose home is in Upper Marlboro, compared the days when he accompanied his father in a horse and buggy on rounds of the schools with present swift transportation.

Population Has Doubled

Representative Sasscer, guest speaker at the dedication ceremony, said the county's population has doubled in the past eight years, a growth, according to Labor Department statistics, greater than any other county in the world.

"This has made our school problems extremely difficult," he said.

Representative Sasscer said when his father took office the county's school enrollment was only 5155, of which 68 were high school pupils. Today, he said the enrollment is 24,569 with 8248 high school students.

Invocation Given

He said completion of the new school was a perfect example of the "booster" spirit needed in every community.

The dedication ceremony opened with an invocation by the Rev. W. Curtis Draper.

After Representative Sasscer's address, G. Gardner Shugart, superintendent of county schools, formally turned over the new school to its principal, Wilbur A. Jones, who for nine years has been principal of Upper Marlboro High School.

The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. F. J. Loughran.

The program included also an introduction of guests of honor by Ralph W. Powers, president of the P.-T.A.; choruses by senior and junior high school students; solos by Miss Barbara Duley and an address by Mary Evelyn Wyvill, president of the student council.

The new school will serve students of Upper Marlboro, Mitchellville, Groome, Forestville and intermediate areas. Jones said the present enrollment of 345 is expected to jump to 530 in September.

The new school has 19 classrooms, an auditorium, gymnasium library and cafeteria. The old high school building will be used exclusively for the first six grades of elementary school pupils.

Reds Beaten Badly In Dutch Elections

Amsterdam, the Netherlands, June 16 (AP).—Communists suffered a crushing defeat in yesterday's elections in 23 municipalities, losing 33 of their 71 seats in the councils of cities over 20,000 inhabitants.

The Popular Party for Freedom and Democracy (Liberals) won 50 seats against its 32 seats in the old councils elected in 1946. The Protestant parties together increased their seats from 109 to 125.

The Catholic People's Party won 183 seats against the present 180 and the Labor Party 173, a gain of one over its present membership.

$17-Billion-a-Year U. N. Plan For Backward Areas Revealed

Lake Success, N. Y., June 16 (U.P.) United Nations recommendations that would require the world's underdeveloped nations to raise 17 billion dollars a year for the next four years to put life in their sluggish economies were announced today by U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie.

Lie took his figures from a report prepared by the U. N. Food and Agriculture Organization, which said that at least 4 billion dollars of the yearly financing would have to come from foreign investment.

The figures are based on national development plans and would cover such projects as dams, irrigation and power programs, roads, canals, railways, processing and refrigeration plants, and expanded production of farm machinery.

The technical-aid program, which would complement the "bold new program" set forth by President Truman in his inaugural address last January, will be taken up by the U. N. Economic Social Council in Geneva next month.

Lie recommended that countries benefiting by the U. N. technical-aid program should pay "a substantial, and in normal cases the major part" of the costs.

Safety Unit Picks Buchanan Again

I. Chance Buchanan, 800 N. Wayne st., has been reelected president of the Arlington Safety Congress. Also renamed to their old posts were W. A. Richardson, Andrew Jensen, and A. C. Scheffel, the first, second and third vice presidents, respectively.

Erle R. Kirby was elected fourth vice president and R. G. Buckrup, secretary. At the same time, the Hudson Supply & Equipment Co. of Arlington was given two awards by the congress, one for the greatest number of fleet miles operated this year without an accident, the second for the greatest accumulation of accident-free mileage.

This weather of ours...

Our Washington climate is mostly weather. All we can do is dress for it—and try to ignore it. Assignments of Priests Here Are Announced by Archbishop

New assignments for priests are announced by the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, in the Washington edition of the Catholic Review appearing today.

The Rev. Philip M. Hannan was appointed vice chancellor of the archdiocese. Father Hannan, who has been assistant pastor of St. Mary's parish, has been acting vice chancellor. He will be in residence at St. Patrick's parish.

The Rev. Milton A. Schellenberg was named to the newly-created position of director of news service, Washington edition of the Catholic Review. He has been an assistant at St. Matthew's Cathedral, and will become assistant pastor of St. Mary's parish.

Other assignments announced were:

The Rev. Leo J. Coady, who has been studying at the Catholic University, as assistant to the director of Catholic charities, in residence at St. Mary's Parish.

The Rev. John A. Lubey, from Immaculate Conception Parish, Washington, to Our Lady of Sorrows Parish, Takoma Park, as assistant.

The Rev. Thomas W. Lyons, from St. John's Parish, Forest Glen, to St. Matthew's Parish, Washington, as assistant.

The Rev. Robert O. McMain, newly ordained, to St. Francis Xavier's Parish, Washington, as assistant.

The Rev. John Francis X. O'Connor, newly ordained, to Immaculate Conception Parish, as assistant.

The Rev. Francis J. Veith, newly ordained, to St. John's Parish, Forest Glen, as assistant.

Jesuits' Appointments In District Announced

Announcement of the following appointments of Jesuits in Washington was made by the Very Rev. David Nugent, S. J., provincial of the Maryland Province of the Society of Jesus:

Georgetown University

The Rev. Francis L. Padner, who has been doing graduate work at the University of London, will head the department of geopolitics in the School of Foreign Service.

The Rev. Albert P. Grau, who has just completed studies at the Catholic University, will become professor of religion.

The Rev. Edward J. Hanrahan, formerly professor of metaphysics at Woodstock College, will enter the department of philosophy.

The Rev. Cornelius J. Herlihy, formerly at Gonzaga High School, will become director of athletics.

The Rev. Wilfred Parsons, who has been doing graduate work at the Catholic University, will become librarian.

The Rev. Edward A. Jacklin, head of the department of philosophy last year, will become dean of the college. He replaces the Rev. Charles L. Coolahan, who will become professor of philosophy at St. Joseph's College, Philadelphia.

The Rev. Thomas J. Love, recently at Woodstock, becomes assistant student counselor.

The Rev. William Michelman of Baltimore will come here from Pomfret, Conn., to replace the Rev. William Nuttall as assistant dean of men. Father Nuttall will go to the treasurer's office at Georgetown.

The Rev. Joseph Venckus comes from Scranton University as assistant professor in the biology department.

The Rev. Lawrence C. Gorman, formerly president of Georgetown, goes to Woodstock College as treasurer.

Gonzaga High School

The Rev William F. Horton of Baltimore will become student counselor. He replaces the Rev. Joseph Kerr of Baltimore, who will go to Scranton University as student counselor.

St. Aloysius Church

The Rev. Edward A. Kerr, formerly rector of Loyola High School, Baltimore, was assigned to St. Aloysius. The Rev. John Sullivan will come from Canada as assistant, and the Rev. Armand J. Guicheteau will come to St. Aloysius from St. Joseph's High School, Philadelphia.

Segregation Suit Against Airport Is Thrown Out

A $48,000 damage suit charging illegal racial segregation in Washington National Airport dining rooms was dismissed yesterday in Alexandria Federal Court for failure to prosecute.

Mrs. Lilly Cunningham of New York had sued Eastern Airlines, Inc., and Air Terminal Services, Inc., because the ATS-operated airport restaurant refused to serve her two years ago when she was a passenger on an Eastern Airlines plane.

Judge Albert V. Bryan ordered Mrs. Cunningham's suit dismissed after she had failed to appear in court Wednesday for scheduled hearings on motions to dismiss her suit and a similar one filed by Mrs. Helen Nash, 1330 13th st. nw. The judge has not yet decided on Mrs. Nash's suit.

Charles LaFollette Named by ADA to Top Executive Job

Appointment of Charles M. La Follette, former Republican member of Congress from Indiana, to its top executive position was announced yesterday by Americans for Democratic Action.

The 51-year old Hoosier, who served thirteen months until last January as military governor of Wuertemberg-Baden after his defeat in 1946 for the Republican senatorial nomination in Indiana, will be in direct charge of the ADA'S national political action, field organization and cooperative efforts with labor, farm and other groups.

Senator Hubert D. Humphrey, Democrat, of Minnesota, National chairman of the organization, said the appointment was approved unanimously by the ADA national board and to be effective July 1.

Senators Advance Bill Putting 15-Year People On Par With Veterans

A bill which would place nonveterans with 15 or more years of service on a par with veterans during lay-offs in Government was approved yesterday by the Humphrey Subcommittee of the Senate Civil Service Committee.

At the same time the subommittee approved the Humphrey bill to give greater job security to veterans who have a compensable disability of at least 60 per cent at the time of reductions in force.

This measure is intended to save the jobs of a number of amputee employes of the Veterans Administration who were given lay-off notices. The amputee group is solidly behind the Humphrey bill despite opposition from other veteran groups. The bill would give what amounts to absolute preference to veterans with major disabilities regardless of their status.

The 15-year bill would help nonstatus career employes. Hundreds of career people with 15, 20, and 25 years of service have been discharged recently. Veterans with a few years of service now have job preference in lay-offs. Both bills will be considered Tuesday by the full Senate committee.

LOYALTY: The constitutionality of the President's employe loyalty program will be tested in the District Court here next week. O. John Rogge, an attorney for 26 accused postal employes, will argue that the loyalty program is unconstitutional. The important case has been set for a week from today.

NOTES: Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, is returning to Japan to advise General MacArthur on civilian personnel problems . . . The Budget Bureau has given tentative lay-off notices to about 25 of its employes. Meantime, it's hoping the Senate will restore the cut in its budget made by the House . . . Dr. Joseph V. Karabinos has been appointed a research associate at the National Institute of Health here. He was head of the chemistry department at St. Procopius College, Lisle, Ill.

BILLS: The House Civil Service Committee yesterday approved the bill to give annual automatic promotions to part-time postal custodial employes. Another bill sent to the House would make Federal workers eligible for night differential pay at 6 p. m. on either daylight or standard time.

ECONOMY threatens the employes compensation and executive pay bills. The House Rules Committee yesterday decided to go slow in clearing bills that would add to Federal expenses.

The compensation bill, stymied in the Rules Committee, would grant more realistic benefits to employes who are injured on their jobs. Compensation rates haven't been changed in 20 years. Its sponsors, however, will continue to push for its approval.

There were enough votes on the Rules Committee to report out the executive pay bill. It was planned to delay action on it until after the military pay bill was approved. Even though the bill would cost less than two million dollars a year, it may now get caught in the economy drive.

And if the executive pay bill is stopped, Federal workers can forget about the general pay raise or reclassification bills to raise their salaries. Those bills won't stand a ghost of a chance for approval.

NLRB: The Civil Service Commission yesterday was accused of a "deliberate attempt" to prevent a fair hearing for seven examiners of the National Labor Relations Board.

The seven examiners, all with long Government experience, were among those who were rated ineligible for their jobs by a board of consultants. They accused the board members of economic and religious bias and prejudice.

Civil Service has scheduled hearings on their appeals to start next Monday. The attorney for the examiners, Charles A. Horsky and John R. Thompson, yesterday filed a motion with the commission to drop both the hearing and the charges against the examiners.

They were given only seven days to prepare for the hearing in comparison with the three years it took to set up the test for the examiners. If the hearing is held, the attorneys insist that a transcript be made of it. Civil Service says it has no available stenographers for that purpose and it has refused to allow the examiners to furnish their own stenographers. All of which the examiners insist is most unfair.

4-H Clubs Decorate Truman

4-H'ER FROM MISSOURI—President Harry Truman receives a 4-H Club leadership pin from Don Rutter of Shelbina, Mo., in recognition of his work years ago in organizing a 4-H Club in Jackson County, Mo. Present at the ceremony at the White House yesterday were Mary Bowers (left) of Payne County, Okla., and Carol Martin of Cheshire, Mass.

More than 200 4-H Club boys and girls from 47 States and Puerto Rico had a full day yesterday, the second day of their nineteenth National 4-H Club Camp, which will continue here until Wednesday.

They presented a leadership pin to President Truman in recognition of his work years ago in organizing a 4-H club in Jackson County, Mo., his home.

They were told by Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan that the Nation's farms—"not the atom bomb, nor the size of our Army, or Navy, or Air Force"—are the foundation of our strength.

They spent the afternoon touring the Department of Agriculture's Research Center in Beltsville, Md.

And last night they had a party at the U. S. Chamber of Commerce building in honor of 31 foreign young people attending the camp from nine different countries. The party included a ceremony in which the international group marched with massed colors, the boys and girls carrying the respective flags of their nations.

In their morning session, the young farm leaders had presented silver medallions to 11 civic and industrial leaders, and to six of their own 4-H leaders, for "outstanding service to the 4-H club movement."

After touring the White House grounds, they were received in the rose garden by the President, who thanked them for the pin they gave him and facetiously said it wouldn't remain in his possession long "when my daughter sees it."

The President said it was his privilege "many, many years ago—when most of you were babes in arms, and long before that—to be helpful in organizing the 4-H club in my part of the world."

Secretary Brannan, whom the President described as one of the ablest men the country has ever had in that position, told the young people the Nation had better make sure that farmers get a fair income, or all business will stumble.

The 4-H delegates, who are accompanied by 100 adult Extension Service agents, will visit Senate and House Agriculture Committee leaders at 9 a. m. today. After touring the Capitol, they will hear Representative Clifford Hope (R., Kans.) at 2 p. m. in the Departmental Auditorium. A discussion will follow.

Progress Reported Slight On New Transit Contract

Negotiations, Now In 7th Week, Face Deadline on July 1; Strike Held Remote

Negotiations on a 1949 work contract between Capital Transit Co. and its AFL operators and maintenance men have made little progress in seven weeks of conferences, it was learned yesterday.

With the present contract running out in two weeks, on July 1, the Nation's Capital is faced with a possible repetition of the 1945 walkout by the 4300 CTC workers.

Officials of the transportation company and of Division 689, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America (AFL), said yesterday that a strike was to be considered only as a "remote possibility," but a possibility nonetheless.

Both union and company were reluctant to release information on progress of the negotiations, but it was admitted that a critical meeting of the negotiators has been scheduled for next Tuesday afternoon. A Federal mediator has been participating in the discussions for the past three weeks.

The Washington Post learned through unofficial sources that the union originally asked for an increase of 25 cents an hour in wages, together with certain fringe items such as liberalization of the company's pension-welfare program.

Capital Transit countered by offering to extend the present contract for a year as to wages—a maximum of $1.48 an hour for operators, of $1.58 an hour for mechanics—along with changes in working conditions so as to improve efficiency of operations.

The union argued that the company's demands if carried out would lower the present working conditions of the employes. The company rebutted that the workers would be sure of taking home equal pay or even more wages under the new working conditions, and at the same time the company would be enabled to save $500,000 through improved efficiency.

Capital Transit rejected the union's request for 25 cents more an hour, asserting that the pay raise would cost the public utility company $2,900,000 a year, and the fringe requests would cost $1,100,000 additional, for a total of four million dollars.

The transportation company declared that it could not possibly meet the union's demands without getting an increase in fare rates to meet the additional costs. CTC asserted that under the present contract the company is failing to earn a "fair and reasonable" profit, which the Public Utilities Commission has in the past set around $2,225,000.

Both union and company have conceded a little from their original positions, but there's a wide gap between what the union still wants and what the company is willing to give.

A dispute between the company and union broke into a two-day strike early in November, 1945, and a one-day strike later that month. The second walkout was ended by Federal seizure of the transportation system under the wartime powers of the President.

Since the end of the war, according to a company official, the union has been granted three wage increases, totaling 45 cents. The 1945 contract dispute was settled through arbitration. Union officials said yesterday that the union is committed by its constitution to seek to settle the contract controversy through arbitration if the company is willing to arbitrate.

Tuck Asks Arbitration

Richmond, Va., June 16 (AP).—Governor Tuck today called for arbitration in a stalemated labor dispute that may bring a transit strike to the Alexandria-Arlington area on July 21.

Tuck made the request after receiving notice that negotiations had deadlocked between the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co. and Division 1131, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes of America (AFL).

Pay Increase In Classified Work Is Up

House Approval to Be Asked Monday On Retroactive District Measure

House approval will be asked Monday for $330 annual pay increases for District classified employes.

The increase would be retroactive to last July when Federal classified workers were given the $330. Also affected by the retroactive increase would be Foreign Service employes.

The bill won unanimous approval of the House Postoffice and Civil Service Committee in an executive meeting yesterday.

Plans to Ask Unanimous Consent

Acting Chairman Miller, (D., Calif.) announced the action. He said he would seek unanimous consent in the House Monday.

Miller pointed out that the House last Monday voted the $330 retroactive increase for all District government employes except those in the classified group. The legislation for the unclassified employes' pay boost is slated for Senate District Committee action next Tuesday. Senate District Committee Chairman McGrath (D., R. I.) plans to ask the committee to approve the legislation without further hearings.

Miller said that with the House approval for the unclassified salary increases, and with the revenue available from the new District tax law, he saw no reason for objection in the House to the classified pay-increase bill.

Language Question Noted

For the District classified employes, a chief purpose of the legislation is to remove any legal question about their getting the retroactive part of the pay increase.

District officials have noted that the language of last year's Federal pay act left a question whether the increase could be made retroactive without new legislation.

The new bill was introduced by Chairman Murray (D., Tenn.) of the House Postoffice and Civil Service Committee.

Boy Who Shot Himself in Car Already Wed to Girl, 15

A youth who shot himself fatally after pleading with his high school sweetheart to marry him had been secretly wed to the girl seven months ago at Ellicott City, Md., it was disclosed yesterday.

Action for annulment of the marriage now is on file in District Court here. Members of the family said yesterday the boy apparently believed the annulment had been granted.

The victim was 20-year-old John R. Transue, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Transue, 3919 McKinley st. nw. The girl is June Marie Joy Transue, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allan E. Joy, 3412 Quesada st. nw. She is a junior at Woodrow Wilson High School, where the boy had been graduated.

His death officially has been ruled accidental.

Wednesday he picked up the girl in his new car, at the school, drove her to a picnic ground known as Gobbler's Knob, across Rvier rd. from Congressional Country Club, west of Bethesda, Md. After pleading unsuccessfully with her to remarry him he took a .38 caliber pistol from the glove case, left one cartridge in the cylinder, then spun the clinder, as in a Russian roulette game.

Pointing the weapon upward behind his right ear, he pulled the trigger. It fired, and the bullet tore through his head, the girl-wife told Montgomery County police. She fled screaming for help.

The girl's father yesterday acted as spokesman for both families.

"The marriage has been in court for annulment for the past four months," he said. "It's because they were so young. It happened when she was 15. I felt that she was too young and the annulment was agreeable to both families, although youngsters. We feel the shooting probably not to the definitely was an accident. He apparently thought the annulment had gone through because he asked her to get married again."

Support for the accident theory came from other sources. A member of the Transue family called the shooting "a stupid piece of horseplay."

"We are convinced it was an accident," she said. "Guns had been his hobby all his life. He thought he knew so much about them. He always would take them apart and clean them lovingly."

The National Rifle Association said young Transue had been qualified as a marksman in a league tournament here.

The annulment suit, apparently in error, said that the marriage took place "on or about February 24, 1948. It alleged that neither John nor June Marie had their parents' consent. John was 19 at the time. The complaint said that the two returned home after the marriage, never lived together and kept the marriage a secret.

However, records in the office of the clerk of Court at Ellicott City show the ceremony was performed December 18, 1948, by the Rev. Emmett R. Spencer.

Montgomery County police yesterday said the case definitely is closed following a verdict of accidental death signed by Dr. Frank Broschart, county medical examiner. They said they believe the boy thought he was pointing the pistol at the top of the car, rather than the back of his head.

Funeral services will be at 2:30 p. m. today at the William Reuben Pumphrey funeral home in Bethesda. Burial will be at Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Policemen Advised to Make More Friends, Fewer Arrests

Once again Superintendent Robert J. Barrett has admonished Washington police to make more friends and fewer arrests.

In his latest effort to manicure the manners of police, Major Barrett, in a general order, warned that bluecoats who use "bad, ill-considered or ill-timed judgment" in arresting traffic violators will face "disciplinary action."

A police official explained that Barrett had in mind residents of nearby Maryland and Virginia who work in the District who might be stopped for minor offenses.

Police have followed a policy of arresting motorists with out-of-town tags as a means of making sure they do not skip town without paying fines.

In the case of area residents who work in town, warrants could be served at their places of employment, police pointed out.

The order was the third of its kind issued in recent months as an outgrowth of citizen complaints.

The order said: "Headquarters continues to receive frequent complaints concerning use of ill-considered and ill-timed judgment on the part of individual officers who insist on making summary arrests for violations of traffic regulations instead of courteously issuing traffic violation notices (tickets)."

"Only in the more serious or aggravated types of traffic violations should it be necessary to make summary arrests," Major Barrett said.

These include, he said, fleeing the scene of an accident, driving while intoxicated or drugged, reckless driving, driving without a permit or with a suspended or revoked permit and aggravated speeding.

Officers should accept "valid or prima facie statements" of identity rather than indiscriminately hauling all violators to the station house, the order said.

And "where it is necessary to proceed to the nearest precinct to check the statement of the motorists as to their identity," the officer should proceed "courteously" and "the necessary checks should be expedited."

House Passes Bill Which Gives D. C. 5 More Judges

The House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate a bill creating 24 new Federal judgeships, including five for the District.

The measure would add two judges to the 12-man District Court and three to the United States Court of Appeals here.

Three new jurists on the appeals bench would permit three panels of three judges each to work simultaneously. The extra judges were recommended by the Judicial Conference.

The omnibus judgeship bill cleared the House by voice vote after a proposal was beaten down to give Republicans one-third of the jobs.

The judges would be appointed by the President, subject to Senate confirmation.

Auto, Trailer Collide; Driver Critically Hurt

Harvey G. Zwally, 64, of 927 Gist ave., Silver Spring, was in critical condition at George Washington University Hospital last night as result of a collision between his auto and a trailer in Silver Spring yesterday.

Police said Zwally collided with a trailer attached to a Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. truck driven by Edward L. Harris, 25, of 9722 Colesville rd., Silver Spring, at East-West hwy. and Georgia ave.

The victim was taken to Washington Sanitarium and then to the hospital, where it was said he suffered a fractured skull and possible brain injuries.

A crash between an automobile and a truck at Crain and Defense hwys., Prince Georges County, resulted in critical injuries for David Smith, 19, of Wicomico, Va.

County police said Smith was a passenger in a truck driven by James E. Carmine, 20, also of Wicomico. It was in collision with an auto, police said, driven by Edward C. Magruder, 21, Severn Heights, Md. Smith was taken to Prince Georges General Hospital, suffering from a crushed chest, ruptured spleen and other injuries.

In Washington three persons were taken to Casualty Hospital and damage estimated by police at $2000 resulted when a skidding Capital Transit bus went into the front of a house.

The accident occurred at the home of Henry C. Settle, 2437 Nichols ave. se. Driver of the bus was Withrow V. Knode, 24, of 1526 Massachusetts ave. se. The skidding vehicle went over a curb, clipped off a hydrant, and wedged between a telephone pole and the Settle home. Residents of the home were frightened though uninjured.

But three passengers, Mrs. Maude F. Wallace, 27, of 903 12th st. se.; Samuel Beavers, 41, of 658 E st. se., and Walter Ranson, 48, of 87 N st. ne., went to the hospital.

In a collision of a truck and taxicab in front of 632 K st. ne., two women passengers in the cab were cut and bruised. They were Norma Trent, 24, and Helen Colbert, 30, of 1123 Browning pl. ne. Both were admitted to Casualty Hospital.

Police said the truck, driven by William E. Priest, 32, of 1133 8th st. nw., struck the rear of the cab, driven by Fred B. Smith, 37, of 5009 Just st. ne., when the cab slowed down. No charges were placed, but a hearing on the accident was ordered in the office of the Corporation Counsel on June 23.

Four-year-old Ralph Wright of 2700 P st. nw. was struck by a station wagon driven by Raymond F. Tartiere, 67, of 2725 Dumbarton ave. nw., while crossing 27th st. nw. in the 1500 block about 8:30 p. m. The boy was admitted to Georgetown Hospital for treatment of a fractured left leg. His condition was reported not serious.

A truck driver, Adolph J. Hammer, 54, of 1224 H st. ne., and his passenger, Andrew Waybright, 46, of 1359 A st. ne., were injured in a collision with an automobile driven by Mrs. Doris A. Phares, 25, of 4710 New Hampshire ave. nw., about 2:30 p. m.

Hammer, according to police, collided with the automobile when making a partial left turn from Kansas ave. into 8th st. nw. at the triple intersection with Varnum st.

Hammer, who was charged with failure to give right of way, suffered concussion and scalp lacerations. Waybright suffered a fractured right arm and scalp lacerations. Both were admitted to Emergency Hospital.

Judges Prepare to Select Ideal Father Contest Winner

There's evidently more to an "ideal father" than any already-happy wife or child would care, or dare, to dream.

Letters received by last night's deadline in The Washington Post's Ideal Father Contest now are piled high for consideration of the judges. It's a bundle that lists many qualities for the "best dad."

Some state simply: "My pop's the grandest person in the world," or "he's tops." He isn't just kind, considerate, patient or funny, but "the finest," "the best' and "the funniest."

The authors, (children, wives, aunts, neighbors, nieces) of the numerous letters made no concessions for doubt there was someone better.

One unique father is skilled as a "plumber, contractor, shoemaker, barber, painter, electrician and mechanic." A more domestic carpenter packs lunches, gets the kids off to school, does the washing, ironing and cooking—and is building a home.

Ministers, policemen, life-insurance agent, Government officials, baseball star, Navy and Army men and stepfathers were nominated. Good looks wasn't rated for much in the letters, but one young son scrawled: "My Dad's not bald and he's sorta handsome . . he teaches us to say yes ma'am and no ma'am and that stuff."

Nine of the family signed one letter, but the next day's mail had a father-of-13 candidate.

Two-year-olds had plenty to say about their dads, with mothers doing the writing. Little Kathleen printed all by herself she wouldn't exchange her "pal" for "a movie-star father who makes $3000 a week." "The most wonderful dad in the world" to Diane "sometimes give her the icing off his cake." And that was only one of her five reasons.

Does he work puppets? Play hide and go seek? Give piggy-back rides? Never get angry? Balance his money well? That's what the nominees are up against.

The name of the winning father will be announced in Sunday's Washington Post. A Sunday radio interview over WTOP with a family dinner at the Statler and a theater party will be the reward.

$100,000 Backed for Child Care

A $100,000 District fund for operating Washington's child day care center program through June 30, 1950, was approved yesterday by a joint Congressional conference committee.

The decision split the difference between the House figure of $50,000 and the Senate figure of $150,000.

The conference decision was announced by Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.), head of the Senate conference group. Representative Thomas G. Abernethy (D., Miss.) headed the House group.

Mrs. Smith pointed out that under the bill authorizing the $100,000 appropriation of District funds fees paid by parents also are to be allocated to the day care center program.

This will permit continued operation of all the present six day care centers, according to the committee aides.

This year's appropriation for the centers was $150,000. Of that, about $3000 is left unspent and about $32,000 is being repaid into the District general funds by the fees of parents.

Thus, of the $47,000 program, the District is paying about $115,000 net.

The compromise plan still must be approved by both houses. It would then become the basis for later appropriation of the 100 thousand dollar appropriation in separate legislation.

District Asked To Help Obtain Sesqui Loan

District Commissioners yesterday received a request from the Washington Sesquicentennial Commission for help in obtaining a loan of three million dollars to finance the proposed 1950 "Freedom Fair."

The city heads told Edward Boykin, director, and Carter T. Barron, vice chairman of the commission, that the attitude of city residents should be sought before such support is given.

Commissioner Guy Mason said that since the plan called for a loan by the District out of the United States Treasury, local taxpayers would be, in effect, lending money to the commission. Such a step should receive community support before approval, he emphasized.

The Commissioners in a public hearing or some other method of getting the opinion of taxpayers should be planned.

Under the Sesquicentennial Commission's plan, the loan would be repaid in part or in whole by receipts from the exposition.

The loan program was developed after the House of Representatives refused to advance two million dollars for the year-long celebration. The Senate had approved the fund, but House disagreement halted final enactment.

The Senate may act today on the House decision earlier this week denying the requested two-million-dollar fund to underwrite the celebration.

Senator McGrath (D., R. I.) has said he will not seek to have the item restored on the Senate side for two reasons: the House is "adamant" in its opposition to the fund and Senate refusal to give in would tie up further the second deficiency bill which carries payroll money for several agencies.

The commission already has said a public campaign could not raise the required amount for the celebration.

$75,000 Asked In Cyanide Gas Poisoning Suit

Claiming he was poisoned by cyanide gas used to fumigate a warehouse near his home, Austin W. Day, a research engineer, filed suit for $75,000 damages yesterday in District Court.

Named defendants in the suit were Smith's Transfer & Storage Co., Inc., 1313 U st. nw., and the American Disinfectant Co., Inc., 928 1 st. nw.

The suit contends that on June 22, 1946, Smith's, through its agent, the disinfectant company, fumigated a warehouse about 10 feet from Day's dwelling at 4821 Rhode Island ave., Hyattsville, Md.

The suit says Day was informed cyanide gas was used. Some of this gas, he claims, escaped into his home and poisoned him. He says his lungs and sinuses have been affected, his hearing has diminished and he has been unable to work. The suit says Day has lost more than $30,000 in earnings as a result.

The suit was filed by Day's attorney, Arthur Lambert.

Western Union Wins Clock Rental Boost

The District Public Utilities Commiss'n yesterday authorized a 25-cent-a-month hike in the rentals of 1296 clocks operated by the Western Union Telegraph Co. effective immediately.

The firm originally requested the rate boost in 1946, but the application was turned down for lack of sufficient substantiation as to increased costs. The increases were approved, however, in all States and yesterday's action brings the District into line.

The monthly rates range from $1.25 to $2.25 depending on the size of the clock. A 50-cent boost was granted yesterday on a 14-inch clock furnished with a regulated second hand, which has rented for $2.25 a month up to now.

In Student Role

Families Visit Farm Wives At Md. U.

Husbands and children were all over College Park yesterday to see their womenfolk back at school.

The "students," 1100 strong, are boning up in the University of Maryland's Rural Women's Short Course a week-long project which ends Saturday.

Yesterday, with their families looking on, they absorbed lectures on international affairs and juvenile delinquency and a program of folk songs in the evening.

They heard Dr. Grace Sloan Overton conjecture whether "Education is Underwriting Our Moral Code." Dr. Overton, who formerly taught at Columbia and New York universities and is the author of several books, said no—at least, not suffciently.

She observed that America spends two per cent of its national income on education, compared to Russia's eight per cent, and that last year, 125,000 children were born out of wedlock, 67 per cent of them to parents under 19 years of age.

Education must combat juvenile delinquency and prepare youngsters for family life, she declared, noting that juvenile offences ride their high crest during vacation times.

More civic training, more vocational training and guidance should be undertaken by schools, Mrs. Overton said.

In a talk on American relations with Russia, Representative Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.) said neither denunciation nor appeasement would work.

The Congressman said there are three chief methods of counteracting Soviet expansionism: rebuilding of American military strength, forging resistance to the spread of Communism, and the Marshall Plan.

He suggested that the United States improve on the training of its diplomats who do not always cut a favorable figure compared to the "superb skill" of the Russians in that field.

As the day grew on, the "studies" lightened for the women. They had a group sing in the afternoon and listened to an evening "Festival of Folk Songs and Ballads," presented by the Baltimore Folk Singers.

Bartender Fined $200

Johnnie F. Brame, 32-year-old bartender, of 411 S. Alfred st., Alexandria, was fined $200 and given a suspended 90-day jail sentence in Alexandria Police Court yesterday for operating a numbers game.

The court also confiscated $100 taken from Brame at the time of his arrest. He pleaded innocent to the charge.

4 Pay for Short Weights

Three storekeepers forfeited collateral and one was convicted and fined yesterday in Municipal Court, all on charges of selling at short weights.

The defendants were Alvin Goldstein, store at 1100 New Jersey ave. se., forfeited $175; California Market, Inc., 2160 California ave. nw., forfeited $100; Joseph Kaplan, store at 901 3d st. se., forfeited $50. Louis Zabrek, proprietor of a store at 1605 Montello ave. ne., was convicted and fined $150.

$1500 Bus Crash Award

Collision of one of its buses with a tax last year cost the Alexandria, Barcroft & Washington Transit Co. $1500 yesterday in Alexandria Circuit Court.

The judgment was awarded by a seven-man jury to Herman L. Blankenship, whose Yellow Cab Co. taxi was demolished when struck by a bus at Hancock and Alexandria aves. February 18, 1948. Blankenship's attorney, Leroy S. Bendheim, contended the bus was exceeding the speed limit and failed to yield the right of way.

Young Again Heads Board

John Russell Young, who was confirmed by the Senate Monday for a fourth term as District Commissioner, yesterday was reelected president of the Board of Commissioners by his two colleagues.

Young was sworn in for the new term Wednesday night at his home, 1834 Jefferson pl. nw., by Geoffrey M. Thornett, secretary to the board. He was first appointed a Commissioner in 1940 by President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Ernest Green

Baltimore, June 16 (AP).—Ernest Green, former postmaster of Baltimore, died in Bon Secours Hospital today after a year-long illness. He was 79.

After having served more than 45 years in the postal department, the last six as postmaster, Mr. Green retired in 1940.

An active Mason, he was past master of Sharon Lodge, a member of the Scottish Rite, past high priest of the order in Maryland, and a member of the board of managers of the Masonic Grand Lodge.

Fire Damages Warner Hall

Gloucester, Va., June 16 (AP).—The north wing of "Warner Hall," home of George Washington's grandmother, Mildred Warner, was gutted by fire today.

Firemen from Gloucester and West Point saved the center portion and south wing of the building. Of the north wing—a part of the original structure built in 1740—only the brick walls were left standing.

Warner Hall is owned by J. S. Crockett of Virginia Beach. The house caught fire about 3 p. m. when a spark from a chimney ignited the shingle roof of the north wing, firemen believe.

65 Graduated at Wilson Teachers College

The greatest challenge today is in the field of foreign affairs, Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) last night told the graduating class of Wilson Teachers College.

Declaring that the United States had been slow to take its place as a world leader, the Tennessee Senator told the approximately 65 graduates and their friends and relatives, "I have always had the feeling that if the United States had taken the lead we might have prevented World War I or World War II.

"Now the question is, are we going to have the courage and vision to prevent a World War III?"

The eighteenth commencement convocation was held in the auditorium of Woodrow Wilson High School, Nebraska ave. and Chesapeake st. nw.

Dr. Clyde M. Huber, acting president of the college, presented the candidates for degrees, and C. Melvin Sharpe, president of the Board of Education, awarded them their diplomas.

Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning, bade the class goodby as students and welcomed them into the ranks of teachers.

Rev. James H. Miers, D.D., minister of Fourth Presbyterian Church, gave the invocation and benediction, and Norman J. Nelson, first assistant superintendent of schools, in charge of senior high schools and the Teachers College, extended greetings.

Graduates of Miner Teachers College were told yesterday that American teachers stand in a strategic position to see that freedom remains alive in the world.

The speaker, Dr. Ernest O. Melby, dean of the school of education at New York University, said that teachers entering the profession today have a responsibility and opportunity to teach democracy never before faced in the history of this country or the world.

Democracy, he said, is more than a government but has something to say in the social realm of human relations.

Failures at Home

A recent tour of Europe convinced him, he said, that America is being underminded in her efforts to set up democratic forms of government because of her failure to practice democracy at home.

Eighty-one students were graduated from the school in exercises held in the Armstrong High School auditorium. Fifty-one degrees in elementary education and 30 in junior high education were conferred. C. Melvin Sharpe, president of the Board of Education, presented the diplomas. Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning welcomed the graduates into the teaching profession.

Concluding graduation exercises for this school year, 1047 students received junior and henior high school diplomas in ceremonies held yesterday in six schools.

First Assistant Superintendent of Schools Norman J. Nelson presented diplomas to 222 students at Western High School.

Ferguson Speaker

George A. Ferguson, 1938 graduate of Francis Junior High School and now attending the University of Pennsylvania on an Atomic Energy Commission scholarship, spoke at the Francis Junior High School exercises. One hundred and fifty-two students were graduated.

At Taft Junior High School 102 students received diplomas. The theme of the exercises was "The School, the Home and the Community." Six graduates were the speakers.

Fifty-eight of Eliot Junior High School's 123 graduates received citizenship awards at exercises at that school. A panel of students spoke on "Enduring Qualities of Life."

At Shaw Junior High School 163 students received diplomas, and at Deal 285 were graduated.

Early Newspaper Guarded in Boston

Cambridge, Mass. (UP).—An original copy of the 1rst issue of the 1rst newspaper printed in the United States cost its owner nothing.

Now he keeps it locked in a bank vault.

When Albert J. LeBourdais of Cambridge bought an old Bible for $15 some 25 years ago he didn't bother at 1rst to look at the yellowed sheet folded between two pages.

When he got around to it later, he found issue "Numb. 1" of The Boston News-Letter, published 245 years agi on April 24, 1704.

Published by Postmaster John Campbell, the News-Letter's main story was nearly four months old, even though it had come from London by "flying-post."

The dispatch noted the "increase in Papist and Jesuit priests lately come to Scotland from France," and noted that the French king might send troips there in an early version of an amphibious landing to give assistance to the Stuart pretender to the throne.

Other items in the two-page broadside, meant for distribution in Boston's numerous coffee houses, concerned a rebellion in Ireland and a speech before Parliament of Queen Anne.

Local news was chiefly nautical. It included an account of a bloody 1ght in which a "Capt. Toungrel-lo," apparently a Rhode Island privateer, took "1ve prizes" and was himself "wounded thro' the Body."

Further Benefits Urged at Rally By Marcantonio

Representative Marcantonio (ALP, N. Y.) last night urged an "Unemployment Rally" attended by some 250 persons to insist on extension of the unemployment benefits for veterans.

The $20 weekly benefits expire July 25, he said in asking support of his proposal to extend the program to 1952 and raise payments to $35 a week.

He spoke at a rally sponsored by the National Veterans Provisional Committee at Union Hall, 525 New Jersey ave. nw. Other speakers included Mrs. Paul Robeson, who denounced American foreign policy as war-minded, and Mrs. Theresa L. Robinson, grand directress of the Elks Civil Liberties Department, who urged Negroes to fight for civil rights.

Funeral Rites Set Today for General Wells

Funeral services for Maj. Gen. Briant Harris Wells, former Deputy Chief of Staff of the Army, will be held at 10:30 a. m. today in the Fort Myer Chapel. He will then be buried with full military honors in Arlington Cemetery.

Gen. Wells

General Wells died last Friday at the age of 77 in Long Beach, Calif.

The general was graduated from West Point with the class of 1894 and was a veteran of the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection and World War I.

General Wells was the Army's Deputy Chief of Staff from 1927 to 1930. He commanded the Army's Hawaiian Department from the Fall of 1931 until his retirement in January, 1935.

After his retirement, General Wells continued to live in Hawaii. He was visiting a son in San Marino, Calif., at the time of his death.

Walter Rogers Fuller, Jr.

Funeral services for Walter Rogers Fuller, jr., 45, long active in automobile sales here, will take place at 2:30 p. m. today at the Warner Pumphrey funeral chapel, 8434 Georgia ave., Silver Spring.

Mr. Fuller died Wednesday at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rogers Fuller, sr., 908 Sheridan st. nw. A native of Atlanta, Ga., he had lived in Washington since 1919. He was a member of Naval Masonic Lodge No. 4. During the last war, he lived in Tuscon, Ariz., for a time, where he was in radio manufacturing.

Surviving him besides his parents are his wife, Laura May Fuller; four children, Donald Rogers, Charlotte Rae, Caroline Lee and Mary Jane Fuller; all of whom live at 5408 Colorado ave. nw.; two brothers, Harrison M. Fuller, of Washington, and Lieut. Allen M. Fuller, USAF, Orlando, Fla.; and a sister, Mrs. Gladys Irons, Pearl Harbor, T. H. Burial will be at Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Col. J. E. Count de Salis

London, June 16 (AP).—Lieut. Col. John Eugene Count de Salis, former British third secretary in Washington, died here yesterday. He was 58.

Cornwell Burial Rites Held Here

Funeral services for Leon L. Cornwell, 76, of 705 N. Daniel st., Arlington, Va., who died on Tuesday at the National Homeopathic Hospital here after an illness of two weeks, were held at 3 p. m. yesterday at the Hines funeral home. Burial was in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

A retired Minnesota country banker, Mr. Cornwell had lived in the Washington area since February, 1946. He and Mrs. Cornwell, who survives, celebrated their 23d wedding anniversary last August 28.

Born on a farm near Pine Island, Minn., Mr. Cornwell served on a number of community government boards during his 25 years as a banker there. He attended Carleton College in Northfield, Minn., and served as school superintendent in Pine Island before entering the banking business.

After retiring from private banking a few years ago, he was employed for a time by the Federal Land Bank in St. Paul, Minn.

He was a member of the Masons and the Odd Fellows.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Mattie Sinclair Cornwell, he is survived by a son, Robert Maurice Cornwell of Mattoon, Ill., and a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Lewis of the N. Daniel st. address.

E. W. Scheer Dies; Retired Rail President

Edward W. Scheer, 73, retired president of the Reading Co., and the Central Railroad of New Jersey, died Wednesday night at the Washington Sanitarium Hospital after more than a year's illness.

Since his retirement in 1944, Mr. Scheer had made his home at Royal Oak, Talbot County, Md.

Mr. Scheer began his career as a messenger for the old Washington and Baltimore Railroad, now part of the B. & O. system. He worked his way up through various positions until, in 1920, he was appointed general superintendent of the Maryland district. In 1921, he became general manager of the road's Eastern lines.

He was elected vice president in charge of operations and maintenance of the Reading Co. in 1932, vice president of the Central Railroad of New Jersey in 1933, and president of the two companies in 1935.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Freda Scheer; two daughters, Georgia Scheer, Baltimore, and Mrs. John F. Harper, Portland, Conn., and a son, Edward W. Scheer, jr., Collegeville, Pa.

Funeral services will be held at the Oliver H. Bair Funeral Home in Philadelphia, Pa., Saturday. Burial will be in the West Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia.

James R. Willis

Roanoke, Va., June 16 (AP).—Roanoke's oldest citizen, James Robert Willis, died today at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Dora Spiers. He was 107 years of age.

Born in Franklin County in May, 1842, he spent most of his life in that county, where he was engaged in farming and later in the livestock business. He had said he could remember when there was no town on the present site of Roanoke.

W. J. Lauck Funeral Held; Ex-Lewis Aide

Lexington, Va., June 16 (AP).—Funeral services for William Jett Lauck, former economist for labor leader John L. Lewis, were held at the Presbyterian Church Cemetery here today. He died at his home near Port Royal, Va., Tuesday night.

Mr. Lauch

Lauck, 69 years old, was regarded as an authority on labor and management relations. He was the author of numerous books on economics, labor, finance and immigration.

Lauck was a graduate of Washington and Lee University here. He was a professor of economics and political science at Washington and Lee from 1905 to 1908.

Lauck was associated with Lewis when he was economist for the United Mine Workers in the 1930s. He was also economist for the CIO United Automobile Workers and various railway and other labor organizations from 1919 to 1939. Lewis was a frequent visitor to the Lauck home in recent years.

Surviving Lauck are his widow, a daughter, Miss Eleanor Lauck; two sons, Peter Lauck of Port Royal, and William Jett Lauck, jr., of Charlottesville, Va. Lauck was born at Keyser, W. Va.

Robert S. Allen
reports to you in The Post

Two words have always described Robert S. Allen—newspaperman and fighter. He started reporting while still in grade school and hit the top during his 10 years as co-author of the "Washington Merry-Go-Round" column. His professional fighting started at the age of 16 when he enlisted to serve in World War I; in World War II he served as colonel on General Patton's staff and was wounded in action.

Now the fighting reporter, whose Washington news sources date back two decades, is back in the newspaper field, and the news he develops will be in The Washington Post. His first appearance was Monday with a front-page story on unemployment.

Robert S. Allen brings you news background stories during the week and a special column each Sunday, exclusively in

Solvency Cited To Bankers as Defense Need

By S. Oliver Goodman

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., June 16.—The first line of defense of any country is its financial solvency, Washington bankers were told at the opening today of their thirty-first annual convention at the Greenbrier.

"A bankrupt country can never support an army, navy or air force," Representative Dewey Short (R., Mo.) asserted, adding "that we must—out of sheer self defense—maintain a strong military force until the United Nations becomes strong with an international police force to carry out its decisions."

Appealing for more Government economy, Representative Short said that we dare not reduce on essential national defense measures but "we must cut the cost of government to the bone, eliminate waste, and abolish overlapping and duplication of agencies . . ."

National defense, veterans administration, foreign aid and interest on national debt will approximate 35 billion dollars for the next fiscal year, he declared. These appropriations, he added, are for past, present or threatened future wars—without a dime for natural, normal expense of government.

Abundance Problem Recurs

"With all our wealth and population," he concluded, "we cannot continue to support the rest of the war-torn world . . . Always wanting to help the rest of the world, we dare not let this country go under, because it is God's last chance to save the world."

Marriner S. Eccles, member of the Federal Reserve Board, told the bankers that America again faces the old problem of abundance. Production has finally caught up with demand in most fields, he said, and the pipelines of business and industry again are well filled. The big question now, he said, is how to halt the recession.

Earlier Robert H. Lacey, in his annual report as president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, pointed out that while the Nation shows definite signs of a trade slump, Washington's business stability is not seriously jeopardized.

Speaking of the national situation, Lacey said the decline so far has been comparatively painless "and is likely to continue that way." Every indication, he added, points to an average decline of 15 per cent that will level off in 6 to 12 months. Citing figures to show that deposits and loans and discounts in Washington are not dropping to any extent similar to the national trend, Lacey said:

Decline in Nearby States

"The reason, of course, is that the Government is the District's principal industry or business. Shutdowns and unemployment elsewhere do not seriously affect our daily affairs."

The States around Washington apparently have been harder hit by the curent recession, according to Hugh Leach, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. Leach said that the decline in the Fifth Federal Reserve District has been more drastic than nationally.

Showers early in the afternoon failed to dampen the spirits of the golfers who played between the downpours. The more than 300 bankers, their wives and guests also attended President Lacey's reception in the evening.

Herbert D. Lawson, as president of the Washington Chapter of American Institute of Banking, reported that the chapter had 716 members and 484 class enrollments during the past year.

Tomorrow's program will include talks by Thomas R. Reid, vice president of the McCormick & Co., Inc., of Baltimore, and Raymond Rogers, professor of banking at New York University.

Climaxing the program Saturday will be election of new officers and a credit panel discussion.

J. A. Livingston is on vacation. His "Business Outlook" column will be resumed upon his return.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Lester S. Scott, former director of trade group activities for the Merchants & Manufacturers Association of Washington, has been appointed field representative of the National Appliance and Radio Dealers Association for Virginia, Maryland and the District . . . Frederick M. Eaton, an attorney, has been elected a director of the New York Life Insurance Co. . . . Alexander C. Nagle, president of the First National Bank of New York, has been elected a director of the American Sugar Refining Co. . . . Wilfred Schooler, Thomas E. Boyle and William Milholland of the Washington Division of the Franklin Life Insurance Co. have attained membership in the "President's Club," which is limited to the 20 highest individual producers on a national basis each month.

GAS SALES: Washington Gas Light Co. reports therm sales in May of 11,057,128 compared with 10,635,601 last year, an increase of 3.96 per cent. Sales for the first five months of 1949 aggregated 82,229,162 therms against 83,371,160 in 1948, a decrease of 1.37 per cent.

CONTROLLERS ELECT

Five hundred retail controllers at the twenty-ninth annual convention of the Controllers Congress, National Retail Dry Goods Association in Detroit elected W. E. Reitz, jr., executive controller the Hecht Co., to the board of directors of the Controllers Congress.

LaMotta Wins in 10th; Cerdan Injures Shoulder

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Blue Plate Special

GODOY AGAIN.—What promised to be a nice open date at Griffith Stadium June 27 has been despoiled by the Messrs. Al Weil and Goldie Ahearn who are moving in with their latest production—Arturo Godoy vs. Elkin Brothers at 10 rounds, or less.

There may be some demand for Brothers, a youngish and likely-looking heavyweight who battled Pat Comiskey to a furious draw in the same Stadium last month. But Washington fight fans were hopefully presuming that on May 15, 1945, they had seen the last of Arturo Godoy.

POVICH

That was the night he was credited with a five-round knockout over Buddy Walker. The D. C. Boxing Commission called a hearing after that one. Purportedly, Godoy threw a secret punch to floor Walker. In fact, it was so secret it was invisible. The referee said it was no punch at all—that Godoy butted Walker with his head. With the first invisible butt, too, no doubt.

Godoy is 37, the Ring Record Book says. Other sources say he is 40. At any rate, he is now fighting for the eighteenth year, the oldest continuous campaigner among the heavyweights. With his dull, crab-like style, he once went the route with Joe Louis. So did Natie Brown, for that matter. Washington doesn't deserve Godoy. It's too nice a town.

VIDEO SOUNDINGS—Broadcasting, the newsweekly of the radio-television industry, rears up on its hind presses to take a swipe at the baseball weekly, The Sporting News, following the latter's complaints of the ravages of television on baseball attendance.

Broadcasting takes The Sporting News' own figures to disagree with the baseball weekly's prediction that unless the ravages of television are checked they would make wastelands of the Nation's stadiums. It points out that despite the growth of television, the average attendance is far ahead of the two preceding seasons.

It calls Sporting News "a publication dedicated to the belief that Happy Chandler is a greater savior of his country than George Washington and sees an ogre rising over the country's baseball parks."

Where attendance is down, Broadcasting points to the lower standing of the teams and community economic factors, absolving television as a factor. It's a nice case the magazine builds up until its ill-guided comment on the Pirates, the only team without television. Pointing to the increase in attendance at Pittsburgh, Broadcasting says: "The Pirates have lately come into considerable publicity because Bing Crosby bought an interest." Not "lately" but three years ago, Crosby bought into the Pittsburgh club.

THE TRADERS—At this point, Clark Griffith is entitled to take a deep bow for the two big deals he negotiated on behalf of his Nats—the Vernon-Wynn deal with Cleveland last winter, and this week's shipment of Walter Masterson to the Red Sox.

Up in Boston the other day, Cleveland found it expedient to bench the .258-hitting Vernon, although Early Wynn has been doing nicely for the Indians with his pitching. Former Indian Eddie Robinson, however, has blossomed with the Nats as the top first baseman in the league and the Indians are wishing they had him back.

The early results of the deal with the Red Sox are heavily in the Nats favor. Masterson, as was his wont, promptly blew up in the eighth inning of his first start with Boston and was the losing pitcher. Meanwhile, Sam Mele proceeded to hit a hot .444 in his first two games with Washington, while Mickey Harris turned in a swell relief-pitching job at his first asking.

BEAR TO BULLDOG—The Chicago Bears got a nice price for Quarterback Bobby Layne and sold him to Ted Collins' New York Bulldogs of the National Football League. It must have been with no great sense of loss. Layne is a good football player, but so are Sid Luckman and Johnny Lujack, who also happen to be quarterbacks with the Bears.

Evidently the Bears were finding it too expensive to carry three $20,000-a-year quarterbacks and were eager to unload Layne. A year before, they tried to sell him to Pittsburgh, but he insisted on playing only for a T-Formation team. The Bears were not averse to strengthening the Bulldogs, who even with Layne, are no championship threat.

As a regular quarterback for the Bulldogs, Layne will be meeting up again with Harry Gilmer of the Redskins. The last time they were on the same field, they were quarterbacking Texas and Alabama, respectively, in the 1948 Sugar Bowl game. What was advertised as an individual duel was no-contest, so far did Layne overshadow Gilmer.

Jesuits Name Father Herlihy Hoya Faculty Sports Chief

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Father Robert Parsons, who in one year fired, juggled and hired practically a whole new coaching staff, has been replaced as Georgetown University's faculty athletic director.

His successor is Father Cornelius Aloysius Herlihy, a native Washingtonian and an advocate of a vigorous intercollegiate sports program.

Announcement of the change will be made today by the Maryland provincial office of the Jesuit Order, which has jurisdiction over faculty appointments in the District of Columbia.

Father Parsons will remain at the Hilltop as a teacher of logic. A replacement for Father Herlihy as assistant faculty athletic director will be named later.

In Father Parsons' one-year term, the Georgetown coaching staff underwent more changes than in the previous 16 years.

Rome Schwagel was fired as athletic director. Football Coach Jack Hagerty was relieved of his duties to replace Schwagel. And Bob Margarita, an assistant at Yale, was brought in to become head football coach.

Mush Dubofsky, assistant under Hagerty since 1932, quit, and

Nats Beat Browns, 5-0; Five-Hitter For Hudson

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Like incorrigible bullies, the Nats went out and beat their favorite playmates, the last-place Browns, again last night for the tenth time in 11 encounters this season. Mostly it was Sid Hudson who slapped 'em down. He pitched a five-hit shutout.

Hudson's first victory in three weeks was a 5-0 job in which he outpitched Red Embree of the Browns and nursed a 1-0 lead nicely until the Nats got scads of runs, four to be exact, in the seventh inning.

The Browns' second straight shutout at the hands of the Nats was not too much of a public disgrace, however. Only 5191 customers, the smallest night crowd of the year by a couple of thousand, braved the threat of rain to trek to the stadium.

Nats Get Mileage on Hits.

The Nats, themselves, made only seven hits off Embree and his successor, Al Papai, but they got a lot of mileage out of those blows which embraced nothing more than a single. Three bases on balls and a wild throw by First Baseman Jack Graham helped 'em to those four runs in a two-hit seventh inning.

For six innings, the run that Sam Dente banged home in the second stood as the only score of the ball game that rocked along as a tight duel between Hudson and Embree. Dente's single over second base followed consecutive singles by Eddie Robinson and Al Kozar. Robinson's hit was a flukey single to left while he was in the act of ducking a pitch.

Hudson rose above a pair of errors by Third Baseman Sherry Robertson, and a spell of his own wildness to keep the Browns from scoring. Robertson's wild throw for a two-base error on Spence's infield tap that opened the game had Hudson in early travail, but Spence was eventually wiped out between third and home on Priddy's grounder to Robertson.

Browns Threat Fizzles

The Browns filled the bases against Hudson with one out to threaten his 1-0 lead in the fifth. Anderson belted a single off the pitcher's shins and with one out Spence was safe on Robertson's fumble. Hudson walked Dillinger to load the bags and then bore down magnificently to fan Priddy and get Graham on an infield tap.

Again in the sixth Hudson invited disaster with walks to Kokos and Sievers before anybody was out, the Nats missed a double play on Lollar's grounder, but Eddie Robinson extricated Hudson from further danger with an unassisted double play. He speared Anderson's line drive and then doubled Lollar off first.

In their seventh inning, the Nats took all the pressure off Hudson. Kozar opened up with a single past illinger, and after Dente sacrificed, Evans was purposely passed. Hudson beat out a hit to deep short to fill the bases, and Embree walked Robertson to force a run home.

The game blew wide open then. Stewart rappe da grounder at Graham who was confronted with an easy force play at the plate, but his throw was far wide, and two runs scored as the ball ricocheted off the field boxes. The fourth run of the inning scored on Vollmer's infield out.

Hudson wasn't letting his first victory since May 24 get away. He didn't yield any kind of a hit to the Browns after the fifth inning, just to make sure.

IN SHORT . . . Eddie Robinson, hitless the night before when he was whacking luckless line drives at the enemy, discovered how to get a hit in his first appearance last night . . . He tried to duck an inside pitch and his bat got into the way of a clean single to left . . . Vollmer was the night's unlucky guy. The wind caught his tremendous drive in the second inning and dropped it into Seiver's glove at the base of the left field wall. Next time up, Vollmer drilled a fierce liner toward left, into Dillinger's glove . . . When Hudson's control of his fast ball deserted him in the Browns' fifth, he bravely switched to his curve and got it over the plate to get out of trouble with the bases full . . . The Nats move into faster company tonight, meeting the Tigers, who were cooled off by the A's in their last two games . . . Paul Calvert will pitch against Art Houtteman.

CERDAN INJURED EARLY—Marcel Cerdan, France, falls to the floor in the first round of last night's middleweight title fight with Jake LaMotta, New York, in Detroit. Referee Johnny Webber ruled that Cerdan was thrown down and there was no count. Cerdan's shoulder was injured in the fall and he could hardly use his left hand, and LaMotta went on to win the title

Frenchman Wrestled to Floor, Hurt In 1st Round

By Jack Cuddy

Detroit, June 16 (U.P.).—Jake LaMotta, the "Bronx Bull," wrested the world middleweight championship from Marcel Cerdan of Morocco tonight on a technical knockout in the tenth round, when Cerdan was unable to continue because of a shoulder injury.

Cerdan, attempting his first defense of the 160-pound crown, was unable to answer the bell for the 10th round because of pain in his left shoulder, which he claimed had been injured when LaMotta half knocked, half threw him to the canvas in the first round.

It was the first time in the Frenchman's long career that he had failed to last a scheduled distance, and it was his fourth defeat.

Regardless of the injury, the black-haired, gold-toothed French veteran appeared a beaten fighter when his handlers called Dr. Joseph Cahalan, physician for the Michigan Boxing Commission, into the ring after the ninth round to examine the shoulder.

Cerdan 8-5 Choice

LaMotta, compact, bull-shouldered and rugged, went into the ring before an estimated 25,000 in Briggs Stadium an 8-5 underdog in the betting because of the prowess Cerdan had displayed last September in winning the title from ancient Tony Zale on a knockout at Jersey City.

Unofficial figures placed the crowd at 22,000 and the gross gate at $190,000, far below Promoter Nick Londes' expectations.

LaMotta battered the veteran from Morocco into nearly complete submission in the seventh, eighth and ninth rounds. At the end of each of those rounds, the 32-year-old champion wobbled as he went to his corner. And he laid back on his stool and the corner ropes as if in distress.

There was no actual knockdown in the bout. In the first round while Cerdan was absorbing a terrific battering, La Motta half-threw him to the canvas.

Cerdan was staggered on several other occasions during the furious fighting, and Jake of New York was knocked back on his heels several times in the second and fifth rounds by Cerdan's short right hooks to the head. Those two were the only rounds Cerdan won on the Unted Press score sheet.

Slug Toe to Toe

They slugged it out toe-to-toe on even terms in the third and sixth sessions. La Motta Gashed Marcel's right brow in the first round, and the Frenchman cut Jake's right brow in the second. Neither cut bled much. Jake's left ear was badly swollen at the finish.

La Motta surprised the fans during the scheduled 15-round bout by peppering Marcel with left jabs in nearly every round. Cerdan, who used a shell defense of gloves and forearms before his face, seemed unable to get away from the jab, which kept needling between his gloves and into his reddened face.

Until the last minute of the sixth round, it seemed that Cerdan had an even chance of retaining his title, for he had rallied superbly from the first-round battering. But in the last minute of the sixth, La Motta rallied and gave Cerdan another terrific body and head battering from which Marcel never appeared to recover.

The bout was staged earlier than expected because rain threatened to prevent it. It had already been postponed 24 hours because of persistent showers. A light drizzle

Tribe Makes It 5 in Row, 6-3, Over Red Sox

Boston, June 16 (AP).—Cleveland World Champion Indians cashed in on four walks, an error and a Joe Gordon double for four runs in the opening inning today and defeated Boston's sliding Red Sox, 6-3, for their fifth consecutive victory and a sweep of a three-game series.

Three runners were aboard after as many walks and a force play when Gordon stroked a double off the wall in center. The hit bounced by Dom DiMaggio as three runs scampered across the plate. Gordon went to third on an error and scored on a fly out.

That was the ball game right there. The Sox were able to score only once in each of the third, fifth and seventh innings. It was the sixth victory for Mike Garcia who now has beaten the Sox twice this season.

Garcia, who was given a whiff of smelling salts and a swallow of water in the fifth because of the heat, was replaced by big Al Benton in the seventh after the starting righthander had walked two batters in succession.

Sanford Finally Goes Route

Chisox Upset Yanks, 10-6, Then Lose 5-4 Nightcap

New York, June 16 (AP).—The New York Yankees picked up a half game on the second place Detroit Tigers today despite splitting a double-header with the Chicago White Sox.

After dropping the opener, 10-6, the Yankees won the second game, 5-4, to increase their first place margin over the losing Tigers to four and a half games.

Fred Sanford, the $100,000 purchase from the St. Louis Browns, completed his first game of the season, holding the Sox to eight hits in the nightcap. He was helped by Johnny Lindell, whose home run and double featured the Yankees' last two runs.

The Chisox combined some lusty slugging with Tommy Byrne's wildness to score nine runs in the first two innings to sew up the opener. George Metkovich, playing his first game for the Sox after his purchase from Oakland, drove in four runs with a home run and two singles.

Martin Called Next Red Pilot

New York, June 16 (AP).—The New York Herald-Tribune in a dispatch from Cincinnati said tonight that Bucky Walters will resign as manager of the Cincinnati Reds within the next month and will be replaced by Pepper Martin.

"The actual date of the change is not known," the newspaper reported, "but it is said to be about the time of the All-Star game, which is scheduled for July 12 at Ebbets Field (Brooklyn).

"The reason for the change is the ill health of Walters. The current manager is not physically sound. This spring at the Reds' training camp he suffered a heart attack. Since then the conduct of his players on the field has been anything but conducive to easy living."

The Herald Tribune said Walters' future is uncertain, but that it is probable he will remain with the club in some capacity.

Walters became manager of the Reds late last season, replacing Johnny Neun.

Martin, known as the Wild Horse of the Osage, starred for the St. Louis Cardinals for many years. He is now managing Miami in the Florida International League (Class B). Miami is a Brooklyn Dodger farm club.

Warren Giles, president of Reds, says, "If Bucky plans to resign it's in his own mind but that (the H-T story) is the most absurd rumor I ever have heard. I've heard a lot of them but that tops them all. You can say as much as you like along that line. We never have for a moment considered making a change. Where did they come up with that?"

As to the heart attack, Giles says Walter's only illness in spring training was "just plain indigestion" one evening and that he was back on the practice field the next morning. Recall same thing was filed by locals baseball staffers from Florida.

—To Explain "Urge to Kill"

Girl Who Shot Phils' Waitkus Will Be Given Mental Test

Chicago, June 16 (AP).—A remorseful bobby sox fan who shot and seriously wounded first baseman Eddie Waitkus of the Philadelphia Phillies was held for a mental examination today.

Waitkus, 28, shot near the heart yesterday, was given a good chance to recover. He was a little improved and was able to read "get well" letters and telegrams, which poured in from throughout the Nation.

Ruth Steinhagen, 19, tall, dark-haired typist who bore a secret love for the ballplayer she had never met, was held on a charge of assault with intent to murder.

She said she shot Waitkus with a .22 caliber rifle after summoning him to her room in the Edgewater Beach Hotel to tell him "something important."

Judge Matthew D. Hartigan ordered her examined in an effort to explain the "urge to kill" that she said compelled her to shoot the man she admired from afar.

Dr. L. L. Braun, Chicago Cubs physician, predicted Waitkus will recover to play major league ball again, though perhaps not this season.

The bullet tore through the right side of his chest, through one lung and lodged near his spine. No effort will be made to remove it at this time. An opera-

Phils Beat Out Cubs In Ninth, 4-3

Chicago, June 16 (AP).—Relief Pitcher Alex Konstanty singled across the decisive run in the ninth inning to win his own game today when the Philadelphia Phillies edged the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 3, before a chilled crowd of 4899.

It was the fifth straight victory for the Phillies and the fifth loss in a row for the Cubs, the last four of which have come under the regime of Frankie Frisch.

Walt Dubiel was breezing along behind a 3-0 lead, piled up against Schoolboy Rowe, until the eighth when the Phils rapped him for four straight doubles to tie the score.

Schroeder, Mulloy Gain English Tennis Semifinals

London, June 16 (AP).—Six American tennis players—two men and four women—swept into the semifinals of the Queens Club Tournament today.

Ted Schroeder of La Crescenta, Calif., defeated George Worthington, 21-year-old Australian, 6—2, 6—2 and Gardnar Mulloy of Miami, Fla., scored over Nigel Cockburn of South Africa, 6—3, 6—2.

In tomorrow's semifinal, Schroeder will face Eric Sturgess, the South African, while Mulloy meets another veteran internationalist, John Bromwich of Australia.

Sturgess defeated Australian Davis Cupper Frank Sedgman, 6—3, 10—8, while Bromwich was putting out Felicisimo Ampon of the Philippines, 6—4, 6—3.

Bickford Wins 8th on Five-Hitter

Pittsburgh, June 16 (AP).—Vern Bickford hurled a snappy five hitter today as the Boston Braves beat Pittsburgh 7-2 to salvage the final game of the series.

It was Bickford's eighth win of the year and his third over Pittsburgh. He has lost three.

The Braves climbed on three Buc pitchers for 12 hits, including Pete Reiser's fourth homer of the season. The blow broke a 2-2 tie in the fifth and proved to be the winning run.

Ray Poat, making his first start since being obtained from the New York Giants, was charged with the defeat. He was shelled from the mound in the sixth when the Braves scored four runs.

Grace Lenczyk, Smith Play Today For College Title

Columbus, June 16 (AP).—Two tournament tots fired and fell back today before the defending champion and the runnerup in the Women's Intercollegiate Golf Tourney.

Grace Lenczyk of Hartford, Conn., a student of John B. Stetson College who won the college title last year, turned back the ambitious bid of Judy Baker of Lima, Ohio, a Rollins College sophomore, 6 and 5.

Marilynn Smith of Wichita, Kans., a University of Kansas sophomore who lost in the finals last year to Miss Lenczyk, defeated long-hitting Pauline Frey of Canton, Ohio, an Ohio State University swinger with little competitive experience. The margin was 5 and 3.

Rosecroft Trotting Trainer Acquitted of Drug Charge

Myer, Brother Are Exonerated

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Baltimore, Md., June 16.—The Maryland Racing Commission gave Jimmy Myer, trotting trainer whose recent Rosecroft winner showed a positive reaction to a saliva test, the "benefit of the doubt" and reinstated him after a hearing here today.

It was the first time in Maryland's brief harness history that a trainer was brought before the commission on a doping count. Two State chemists testified that the saliva test showed the presence of a barbital derivative.

The charge against Myer's brother, Alan, who drove the favored Miss Bonnie Lassie to victory in the first race at the Oxon Hill track June 9, was dismissed when testimony revealed that he was not a cotrainer.

Also vindicated by the commission's action was Owner Samuel S. Mather, Princeton, N. J., funeral director. All 14 horses trained by Jimmy Myer, under automatic suspension pending the hearing, became eligible to race again in Maryland.

In announcing the decision after the 2½ hour session, Chairman H. Courtenay Jenifer said the case had given the commission "great concern" and left many things to be clarified.

"We reluctantly find," Jenifer said, "the receiving barn itself was not adequately protected and management of it was not free from adverse criticism."

Later, Jenifer revealed that immediate steps will be taken by the commission to insure better protection of the horses in the paddock area. He also announced that in the future the trainer of a horse must be listed on the official program. And the listed trainer will have to bear full responsibility for the condition of his horse.

The Myer brothers denied any knowledge of how Miss Bonnie Lassie could have received any stimulant. Also protesting their innocence were Granville Banks, 52, Pittsville, Md., and Phillip Jones, 23, Bridgeville, handlers who work for the Myers.

Banks admitted that he had been on the track several times when the 4-year-old mare engaged in prerace warmups, leaving her water bucket and other paraphernalia unguarded in the paddock stall.

As much as anything, this seemed to influence the decision that was termed "lenient" by veteran observers here.

Under the "corrupt practices" section of Maryland racing rules, the trainer is responsible for the guarding, or causing to be guarded, a horse to prevent anyone from administering any stimulative or depressive drug.

He Is Given 'Benefit of Doubt'

And, if a drug is detected, the burden of proof rests on the trainer to show that he did not fail to meet his obligations.

Representing the accused was Attorney James Tunnell, jr., Georgetown, Del., son of the former United States Senator. In his summation, he pointed out that it was unquestionably bad practice to leave the water bucket in an unguarded stall. But he also pointed out that testimony showed that it was common practice.

He concluded, "If ordinary diligence was employed, I ask for leniency."

"We want owners and trainers starting to race in Maryland to understand we want our rules enforced rigidly. These rules are for their benefit as well as for the benefit of the public."

The other members of the commission taking part in today's decision were Frank Small, jr., and Wilbur R. Dulin.

Hamilton Has Record 63 at Detroit

Detroit, June 16 (AP).—Lanky Bob Hamilton, former PGA champion, cashed in on his devastating short game today as he fired a 63 to set a new course record and grab an early lead in the $15,000 Motor City open golf tournament.

Hamilton's 31, 32—63 was achieved in large part by his accurate short irons which consistently left him with putts less than 8 feet.

His 63 was labeled a new competitive course record for the Meadow Brook Country Club's 6616 yards par 71 course. Byron Nelson toured the Meadow Brook course in 63 during an exhibition match in 1946 but that was over a 6455-yard layout.

Hamilton's performance gave him a three-stroke lead over Dr. Cary Middlecoff, who won the National Open Tournament last week, and Henry Ransom of St. Andrews, Ill.

Otey Christman, Miami, Fla., pro, provided one of the major thrills of the day as he got a hole in one on the 165-yard par three thirteenth hole. He used a No. 4 iron, the ball hitting about 3 feet in front of the cup and rolling in. It was the sixth ace of his career and his first in a regular golf tournament.

Girl to Get Mental Test

tion to remove accumulated liquid blood from the right chest cavity is scheduled for tomorrow.

State's Attorney John S. Boyle said in court, however, that Waitkus "has only a fifty-fifty chance of living."

"For the first time I'm beginning to realize what I've done," the girl told newsmen as tears coursed down her cheeks.

"The urge to kill is gone now.

"If he dies, I will die also—mentally and physically. I realize now how much he is suffering. I admire him now more than ever before.

"He showed so much courage as he lay there on the floor. The way he looked up at me and kept smiling."

Asked if she wanted a mental examination, the girl said she was willing to leave everything to the police.

"Whatever I get I'll deserve," she declared.

Mass. Crew Wins At Annapolis

Annapolis, Md., June 16 (AP).—The three-man knockabout crew from Belmont High School, Belmont, Mass., today won the first of three final races for the Mallory Cup.

The competition is an annual affair sponsored by the Interscholastic Yacht Racing Association. The racing is staged in Navy knockabouts on the Chesapeake Bay and the Severn River. Leigh Quinn, 17, of Belmont, skippered the winning crew. Two more races will be held tomorrow.

Nig Clark Dies; Oldtime Catcher

Detroit, June 16 (AP).—Jay (Nig) Clarke, 64, old-time major league baseball catcher died last night. He once hit eight home runs in a single game.

Clarke, who died at his home in suburban River Rouge, played with Cleveland and the Pittsburgh Pirates in the early 1900s.

But his big claim to fame came at Ennis, Tex., July 14, 1902, in a Texas League game between Corsicana and Texarkana.

Clarke, an 18-year-old rookie catcher for Corsicana, batted eight times and hit eight homers. His team won 51 to 3.

George Murtaugh, another assistant, took over the 150-pound team. Jack Prendergast, Bill Battles and Joe Sullivan were hired as Margarita's new assistants.

After the basketball season, Coach Elmer Ripley resigned to take a similar job at John Carroll, and Buddy O'Grady was signed as a replacement.

Hap Hardell, veteran track coach, resigned in the spring because the school had not completed a promised track.

Father Herlihy grew up in the Swampoodle section of town near Union Station, and was a four-letter athlete at Gonzaga. He broke all his fingers playing football at Gonzaga in 1913.

He joined the Society of Jesuits in 1914, and later taught at Regis and Xavier High Schools in New York and St. Joseph's in Philadelphia.

He returned to Gonzaga as a Latin teacher, and in 1943 was promoted to athletic director and prefect of discipline. Under his regime at Gonzaga, every pupil was required to participate in some phase of athletics, and he revived boxing there. In 1946, Gonzaga enjoyed its first undefeated football season.

He was appointed faculty assistant athletic director at Georgetown last June at the same time Father Parsons became director. Father Herlihy is 54 years old, Father Parsons 57.

Black Tarquin Wins Gold Cup

Ascot, England, June 16 (AP).—Three British horses ganged up on the American favorite, Black Tarquin, today and beat him out of the Gold Cup, most prized race in Royal Ascot's turf extravaganza.

Lord Derby's Alycidon, a handsome chestnut, bagged the 10,540-pound ($42,160) first prize in winning by 5 lengths over Black Tarquin, pride of New Yorker William Woodward's English stable.

Phil Cavarretta Operated On

Chicago, June 16 (AP).—First-baseman Phil Cavarretta of the Chicago Cubs underwent a minor back operation at Illinois Masonic Hospital.

A slight muscle growth near the spine was removed. Cavarretta said he expected to leave the hospital in a day or two.

Jake LaMotta Wins Title, With TKO in 10th Round

fell during the two preliminaries that opened tonight's show in the Detroit Tigers' ball park. Then to prevent the main bout from being washed out, Promoter Nick Londes put on the main event.

The time change interfered with no plans, for the bout was neither broadcast nor televised in the Western Hemisphere. It was broadcast to France, however.

In the dressing room, La Motta's left hand was so swollen that he and his handlers feared he had broken its second knuckle. X-rays will be taken tomorrow.

In his dressing room, Cerdan explained through French interpreters that he had injured his shoulder when he threw his first left hook in the first round, and that he had aggravated it when he went to the canvas.

Dr. Vincent Nardiello, veteran physician of the New York State Boxing Commission, examined Cerdan's shoulder and said he had suffered "a pulled muscle."

Cerdan, scaling 159¼ pounds, tried to force the fighting in several rounds against Jake, 158¼, but at the opening of the seventh Marcel began to use sidesteps like those of Jersey Joe Walcott, and before that session was finished he was in full retreat.

LaMotta is under contract to give Cerdan a return shot at the title before October 1. Tomorrow he will have to deposit most of tonight's purse with a representative of the National Boxing Association to guarantee his meeting Cerdan.

Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York Boxing Commission, witnessed the bout and later went into LaMotta's dressing room and congratulated him on being the new world champion. Eagan's action settled any doubts about the New York commission's recognizing Bronx Jake as champion. Doubts had arisen because of Eagan's action in suspending two ring officials who had voted Jake an unpopular split decision over Robert Villemaine of France in Jake's last New York fight.

Harry Markson, director of boxing for Madison Square Garden, announced at the ringside that he would try to have the return Cerdan-LaMotta match staged in New York but James D. Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, declared that Detroit deserved the match and he would try to secure it.

Promoter Londes announced an unofficial estimate of 22,000 fans and a gate of $190,000. Those figures were far below what Londes had expected—40,000 and $300,000. Cerdan will receive 40 per cent of the net gate and La Motta, 13.

Development of plans for the nationally known aquatic classic to be staged in September will be presented as well as a report on the membership campaign by Col. Horace B. Smith, chairman.

Members of the Board of Trade's hard working river and harbor committee, under Ronald Orr, have come up with some excellent recommendations for future development of our waterfront. Included are dredging of Washington Channel, reclamation of the Anacostia flats and a study of possibilities of making Washington a port of call for luxury cruise liners.

In short: Ted Wege, Martin Lunsford, Frank Fragale and George Supplee lunched with Hudson Moses this week to tie up loose ends of their July 9 and 10 second annual regatta at Colonial Beach, Va. . . . Ike Hale, only D. C. lad to finish in the Albany-New York grind, took fifth place in his class by coasting over the line, figuratively . . . Old Dominion oarsmen are pointing for the People's Regatta in Philadelphia, July 4.

Maureen Orcutt Wins Golf With 240

Philadelphia, June 16 (AP)—Maureen Orcutt of Haworth, N. J., won the Women's Eastern Association Golf championship for the seventh time today when she finished the 54-hole competition at the Philmont Country Club with a 77, 77, 83—240.

She finished a stroke in front of Pat O'Sullivan, Orange, Conn.; Mrs. Catherine Fox Park, Glen Ridge, N. J., and Mrs. Mark A. Porter, Philadelphia.

Favorite Pays $5.80; Hal Is 2d

By Walter Haight

Charlestown, W. Va., June 16—Arthur Beall's Cy Dart, excellently handled by Jockey George Cardoza, won the James Sager Purse, featuring the Thursday program of the Charlestown Jockey Club.

Last away from the starting point, the son of Dartle forged into the wire 2½ lengths in front of the Shangrall Stable's Hal. Two additional lengths back came W. I. Jones' Grand Actress to be third in the field of seven.

Cy Dart, a winner here and at Pimlico before today, operated in the role of favorite and was aided by lady luck in getting home to the tune of a $5.80 mutuel. Hal, who moved with the winner, appeared headed for the front approaching the stretch, but bolted almost to the outside fence. Jockey J. R. Hill straightened the veteran gelding out and brought him on to be wearing down Cy Dart at the end.

For the first time in three weeks it rained here. A downpour visited the track before the first race and turned it from fast to sloppy, the condition that prevailed for the feature. Cy Dart was clocked in 1:18 4/5 for the slightly more than 6 furlongs.

Cardoza allowed Cy Dart to settle into stride as the field left the gate in good alignment. Grand Actress, not off as alertly as usual, was rushed to the front accompanied by Westward and Long Roll. Along the back stretch, the latter pair began to falter and Cabin Creek was rushed to serious contention.

Cy Dart and Hal then rallied and moved together on the outside. Jockey Emery Scott tried to keep Grand Actress going but the mare began to tire. It was at this point, entering the stretch, that Hal, lapped on Cy Dart, shot for the fence.

A long shot and a favorite figured in $116.80 payoff in the 7 and 5 combination in the daily-double. R. E. Caldwell's Queen Donna at $28.40, was the surprise winner of the first race, being aided when the favorite, L. M. Rhodecap's Tie Me, ran out entering the stretch. In the second race, Jockey Freddie Kratz guided V. T. Carter's Baby Billy home at a $4.80 mutuel.

Dear Folks:

Want to go into the horse business? There is a chance to buy a stable here Friday morning. Miss Elsie Morris will sell eight horses at the side of the paddock restaurant in back of the stable area starting at 10 a. m. Destined to go on the block are Veteran, Sunset Boy, Taubman, Milk Flip, The Girl, Stellas' Sun, Runaway and Leo McLaughlin. Here's a horse we won't have to bet on any more. He's Thormond and he dropped dead after a workout. Former Jockey Irving Anderson, once contract rider for Calumet Farm, was a visitor. The likable fellow is now farm manager for Jimmy McGee in Maryland. G. Gray Bryson, who became ill early this spring, has improved sufficiently to take walks around the Bel Air racing plant of which he is general manager. Many of the mutuel men here also work at the Rosecroft Raceway and they are getting plenty tired. BILL.

Budget Chief Heads Family Of Court Stars

By Jules Loh

United States Budget Director Frank Pace is the provider of an unusually tennis minded family. Mr. Pace himself has been tennis champ at Congressional for the past three years, while Mrs. Pace is top seeded among the women of the club, and is the mainstay on the ladies' team. That's not all, though, 6-year-old Paula is progressing rapidly in Hank Danilowicz' class at Congressional.

Although tennis is the budget director's forte, his athletic accomplishments are not limited to one sport. He's also a crack golfer and won the official Washington division of The Washington Post Celebrities tournament with a 36-hole total of 155.

Feature match in the D. C. girls' tennis championship, to be held at Kenwood starting next Monday at 10, is slated to be that between Carol Mortimer and Belmar Gunderson, seeded 1 and 2, respectively, in the 15-and-under division. Both girls intend to take a crack at the 15-to-18 group, also, after disposing of competition in the younger division.

Carol was the winner in the D. C. and the Sidwell Friends tourneys, beating out Belmar in the finals of both. The two girls will play on the same side of the net, however, in the doubles event of the coming tournament at Kenwood, and will be a hard team to beat.

Hank Danilowicz, pro at Congressional Country Club, is the author of something unique in local country club circles. He conducts a daily tennis class available to all members under 18 years old. The youngest in his present enrollment of 27 is 5-year-old Richard Everett, who swings his racket with the best of 'em.

Gil Bogley, national junior champion, who distinguished himself in last year's Middle Atlantic Tennis Tournament at Columbia Country Club, is Washington's big contribution to the Church Cup championship starting at 2 p. m. tomorrow afternoon at the Baltimore Country Club and continuing through Saturday.

Gil hopes to add his to the illustrous list of names inscribed on the cup. Traveling with Bogley to Baltimore are Robin Hippensteil, Barney Welch and Doc Johnson, all familiar names in local tennis circles.

Players from the New England, New York, Eastern and Middle Atlantic sections will participate in the tourney. The presence of Don McNeil, former National champ, and Sidney Wood, Wimbledon crown holder, both from the New York sector, are expected to provide for exciting matches.

British Open Horsebook

London, June 16 (AP).—The English Jockey Club today opened up its general studbook to foreign race horses.

In its official "racing calendar," the club announced that conditions which have barred non-British-bred animals from the studbook since 1913 have been rescinded.

It is generally assumed here that American and French successes in important British races forced the hand of the ruling body of British horse racing.

By mutual agreement from 1873 until 1913, horses registered in either the American or English studbook automatically were eligible for the other.

In 1913 American racing conditions were at the lowest point in history. All New York tracks had been closed since 1910 due to a reform rage, and racing was being conducted only in a few States. The breeding industry was almost ruined and many owners had been selling their thoroughbred stock in Europe and South America.

Fonder Returns To Lanham

George Fonder, leading point-scorer at West Lanham, Md., speedway for the past two seasons, returns tonight at 8:30 for the weekly midget auto racing program.

Among his competitors will be Steve McGrath, handsome 28-year-old Bostonian, who is pacing the Nation in feature events won. Others are Dee Toran, Len Duncan, Mike Joseph, Shorty McAndrews, Al Herman, Hawley Kight, Fred Peters, Jim Forte, Jimmy Jars, Ernie McCoy, Fred Moore, Bill Compton, Tony Martino, and Buddy Powers.

Terp Frosh Play Five-Game Slate

A game against the West Virginia Freshmen at Cumberland, Md., was on the five-game schedule announced yesterday for the University of Maryland Frosh football team next fall.

The Cumberland encounter will be a benefit affair sponsored by the Knights of Columbus on October 27.

The Terp Freshmen will be tutored by Bill Meek, former University of Tennessee star.

Ralph Bogart Makes Grade With 73

By West McLean
Post Reporter

Buddie Bowie shot an even par, 35, 35—70, to pace the qualifiers in yesterday's opening round of the Maryland State Amateur at his home course, Columbia Country Club.

Bowie, defying scattered showers throughout the day, led 32 survivors of a starting field of 80 into the match play rounds starting today.

Twenty-seven golfers finished under 80 and nine who were grouped at 80 played off for the remaining five places in a pouring rain.

Defending champion, Ralph Bogart, out to add the Maryland State amateur title to his Kenwood Invitational and Middle Atlantic amateur crowns, carded a 34, 39—73, to easily qualify.

First and second round matches, 18 holes each, will be played today with third and semi-final rounds tomorrow.

The 36-hole championship match is scheduled for Sunday.

This morning's pairings:

9:30, Buddie Bowie (70), Columbia, and Ken Scales (77), CC of Md.; 9:35, Jack Emich (74), Baltimore CC, and B. Patterson (79), Mt. Golf on Agenda

Touchdown Club Outing Set Today

The Touchdown Club sponsors its sixth annual outing at Prince Georges Country Club today.

General Chairman Bill Tobin announced that 150 golfers will tee off, starting at 8 a. m.

Maury Nee and Tommy Webb, two of the District's leading amateurs, are pretourney favorites. Others taking part include John and Mike Jankowski, Tom Carney, Parker Nolan and Jack Downey.

Charlie Wilson will supervise the horseshoe pitching slated for 2 p. m., while J. (Kip) Edwards will direct the track events starting at 3. A 50-yard unlimited open race, a 40-yard race for men of 50 years and over have been listed.

A tug-o'-war involving the club's letter and nonletter men begins at 3:30, and a softball game between letter and nonletter winners for 4 p. m.

Awards to winners of the various competitions will be made at the big dinner scheduled for 7 p. m.

Broach Wins Payton Golf

Virginia Beach, Va., June 16 (AP).—Nelson Broach of Richmond won the George Payton Memorial Golf Tournament today with a 140.

Six strokes back of the winner was Horace Baskette, 21, of Norfolk, who carded 146, followed by Tommy (Tick) Miller, 24, of Norfolk, who had 148. Connie Sellers of Covington was fourth with 150 and C. R. James of Richmond and Ray Loving of Charlottesville were bracketed in fifth place with 152s.

Two Horse Shows Set For Weekend

By Harry De Mawby, Jr.

Horse owners will have two metropolitan area shows in which to exhibit their mounts over the weekend. Saturday the third annual Forestville Horse Show will be held on Sidney Follin's "Dunrovin Acres," Forestville, Va. Sunday the Hyattesville Lions Club will sponsor their popular fifth annual show at Edmonston Road Park, Riverdale, Md.

The Forestville show is schedule to start at 10 a. m. and lists a card of 17 classes, with higher than average cash prizes in most events, for hunters, jumpers, saddle horses and ponies.

A $250 stake class in both the jumper divisions are the highlights of the day's program. Post entries will be accepted, though an advanced entry show at a higher entrance fee.

The Hyattsville Lions Club, who's 1948 show was one of the largest and most popular one-day affairs in the local area, is offering a program of 25 classes in their new location.

The pony division, scheduled to start the day's events at 9:30 a. m., offers nine classes divided into the small, intermediate, and large pony groups. Three junior events are next in line for horses and ponies whose riders must not have reched their eighteenth birthday.

The afternoon session offers a good selection of classes for hunters, jumpers and saddle horses, with championships awarded on a hight point basis in each division.

Burrows Upsets Defending Champ

Montclair, N. J., June 16 (U.P.).—The Eastern Collegiate Tennis Tournament was assured of a new titleholder today as fifth-seeded Harold Burrows of the University of Virginia upset defending Champion Charley Oliver of Army, 8—10, 6—1, 7—5, today in the quarterfinals at the Montclair Athletic Club.

Advancing to the semifinals with Burrows were Tony Vincent of the University of Miami; Sidney Schwartz, also of Miami, and Dick Savitt of Cornell.

Wymard Appointed

Harrisburg, Pa., June 16 (AP).—Gov. James H. Duff today appointed N. L. (Skip) Wymard, Pittsburgh attorney and former Fordham University football coach, as his secretary.

European Davis Cup Play in Semifinals

Zagreb, Yugoslavia, June 16 (AP).—The line-up for the semifinals in the European zone Davis Cup tennis eliminations was completed today when Yugoslavia ousted Sweden, three matches to two.

Yugoslavia now meets Italy and France plays Hungary in the semifinals, which must be completed by July 12. The ultimate winner will take on the winner of the American zone competition for the right to challenge the United States for the trophy.

Divorcee Blamed For Owen Break-up

Riverside, Calif., June 16 (AP).—Testimony was completed today in the trial of Mrs. Agnes Garnier, 53-year-old divorcee charged with murdering her employer, wealthy John Owen, 68.

The final witness was Owen's estranged wife, Mrs. Florence Owen, who blamed Mrs. Garnier for the breakup of her marriage in 1937.

"Mr. Owen and I had been happy until he met Mrs. Garnier and went to live at the Wilshire Towers, which she was managing at that time," Mrs. Owen testified.

The prosecution did not indicate whether the death penalty would be asked.

Mrs. Garnier testified yesterday as the defense ended its case that Owen "came at me shouting, 'I'm going to kill you.'"

"I ran," she testified, "grabbed the gun out of his hand, and the next thing I knew he stood up and that right arm of mine was pointing toward the ceiling. It seemed frozen. Mr. Owen was on the floor. I don't know how I got away from him."

Mrs. Garnier told the all-woman jury the death struggle started after she failed to admire a set of cocktail glasses Miss Rich had given Owen.

Judge Refuses to Free Mrs. Eisler on Bail

New York, June 15 (AP).—Federal Judge William Bondy today refused to order that Mrs. Gerhart Eisler be freed on bail from Ellis Island, where she is held for deportation.

The 37-year-old wife of the fugitive Communist has asked that she be released so that she could make her own arrangements to leave the United States and join her husband in Germany.

Eisler jumped $23,500 bail and fled from this country May 6.

GLEN GRAY, appearing this weekend at Glen Echo, is keen about being on the road despite its hardships. He gave up playing one-nighters in 1948, and tried to live the life of Riley.

Gray

"I played golf till it ran out of my ears," he recalled yesterday. "I took up hunting, had a shop for woodwork—something I've never done before. But something was missing. I'd hear music and say 'My God, listen to that!'"

He got back in the groove after one year. He travels by chartered bus which takes the band "where I want to go, when I want to go."

"It isn't possible to keep a band in top shape by staying in one place," Gray maintains. "Money and challenges come from constant touring."

The 6-foot-4 leader, who looks like a Canadian Mounted, plays golf in nearly every city he hits—when schedules allow it. Often however, his band plays from 9 p. m. till 1 a. m. and leaves at 7:30 next morning for the next spot.

Getting time for band practice is another headache; sometimes they have to skip it for three or four weeks.

Gray has led the same band since 1929. During the war they played many Army bases. They'd do an hour's concert in Omaha, for instance, then hop into an Army plane for San Antonio, or some place.

"I sometimes thought I had more hours in the air than the pilot who flew us," he says.

MANY of the town's radio performers will gather at Kavakos Sunday night to present a special show for the Federation of Radio Artists' fund. Proceeds will be used to send delegates to the California conference.

Emcees will be Eddie Gallaher, Art Brown, Les Sand, Ray Michael, Arch MacDonald and Willis Conover, Star of the evening will be Leon Janney who opens next Tuesday in the lead role at Olney—in "Night Must Fall."

There'll also be an impersonator, a community sing, a magician doing his stuff and many other acts. A band will play for dancing. The shindy is open to the public at $2.50 per body.

FIRST summer dance of the Interstate Societies is tomorrow night at the Roosevelt Hotel, from 9 on. Stephen Ward has taken over the orchestra for the summer; Eddie Hane Poindexter sings.

BARNES BREESKIN goes national tomorrow night when he premieres his new network show from the Shoreham's Terrace. The Barnee Lowe Shoreham Orchestra will be heard on WOL at midnight. We hear that among his friends who will give him a hand on the first show are a Senator and a Cabinet member.

Minister to Ask $10,000 for Nose Broken by Pastor

Kansas City, Mo., June 16 (U.P.)—A Presbyterian minister said today that he will file a $10,000 suit against a Methodist minister Friday for the broken nose he suffered in a fight over who would perform a wedding ceremony.

The fight occurred while the bride and groom waited at the altar, and a third minister finally performed the ceremony.

The Rev. Ellis J. Hough, 49, Kansas City, pastor of the Third Presbyterian Church, said he was injured in the home of the Rev. Kenneth J. Bressler, 42, of Fairfax, Mo., Sunday night.

Bressler already has paid a fine of $25 and court costs of $8.05.

Government Strikers Face French Penalties

Paris, June 16 (U.P.)—The French cabinet decided today to take strict disciplinary action against government employes who joined in yesterday's 24-hour nation-wide "warning" strike for higher wages.

For most of the strikers, the cabinet decision will probably mean only the loss of their pay for one day. But high-ranking civil service employes may be suspended or dismissed as a result of their walkout.

Tucker's Bond Cut By $15,000 to $10,000

Chicago, June 15 (AP).—Preston T. Tucker drove to the United States courthouse in one of his handmade rear-engine cars today and won a reduction in his bond on a Federal indictment.

Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan cut Tucker's bond from $25,000 to $10,000. He granted a similar reduction of Robert Pierce of Detroit, former director and treasurer of the Tucker Corp.

Hearing Clarence Dickinson Is a Musical Experience

By Paul Hume

Clarence Dickinson, one of the grand American organists of the past half century, played a recital last night in Washington Cathedral.

The concert was part of the Institute of Church Music now in session at Mount Vernon Methodist Church. Dickinson's program was far more catholic than many organ recitals. It was designed to illustrate musically the various moods generally found in services of worship.

Shows Command of Organ

Standard repertoire was represented in the Vierne Carillon, the finale to Franz Liszt's fantasy and fugue on "Ad Nos," and a single chorale prelude of Bach. In these, as in many less familiar pages by Alain, Messiaen, de Maleingreau and Max Reger, the recitalist showed his command of the large organ.

There is a breadth and power, highly romatic in inspiration, that informs the playing of such men as Clarence Dickinson. They lived through the period when the music of Wagner and Cesar Franck was becoming known in this country. They taught the great works of organ literature to hundreds of pupils, many of whom now fill the Nation's leading church music positions.

To hear them play, as Dickinson played his own Joy of the Redeemed, with no emotional holds barred, is a valid, moving musical experience. It is a kind of music-making we have been taught in modern times to fear. Properly understood, it is a kind of musicking that should not disappear from our midst.

Dickinson's registration was particularly apt in the Couperin Qui Tollis and in Messiaen's pastoral scene. And at those moments when he wanted the full resources of the organ to speak, he managed them with equal skill.

Indians Excel As Artists, Expert Says

New York (U.P.)—Ga-Hes-Ka, the Onondaga Indian whom the white man calls Tom Two Arrow, is a serious young man.

He believes the American Indian should study his own culture and handicrafts instead of the ways of the white man.

There is more artist per square Indian among the American aborigines than in any other race, Two Arrow said.

"The best way we can lift the economic and cultural standard of the Indians is to create interest in their tribal art forms," he said.

Two Arrow, who is 29, has carved himself quite a niche as a story teller, artist, textile designer and silversmith.

He was born "on or near" the Onondaga reservation in upstate New York. There are 4500 Indians still living on reservations in New York State.

"I was never able to find out if my mother was on the reservation or not quite on it," Two Arrows said.

"Creative ability is inherent in most Indians," Two Arrow continued. "There is a demand for Indian art. The tragedy is that many Indians have no knowledge of their own tribal art forms. If it was taught to them instead of the white man's trades, they would be more adept, better off financially, and happy in their own environment."

Sports Clean-up Paying Business

Buffalo, N. Y. (U.P.)—You'd walk right past the place and never know it. Even if you were looking for it, you'd probably have a hard time finding it.

But behind an ordinary store front on a quiet Buffalo residential street is an extraordinary workshop. It houses Marba, Inc., repairer and storer of athletic equipment from schools, both large and small, throughout the nation.

There you will find jerseys, helmets, pads and shoes bearing the red and white of Oklahoma's famed Sooners, the gold and black of Missouri, cardinal and white of Arkansas, red and blue of Pennsylvania, green of Tulane and countless others.

The business, which started as a depression-time fill-in for a cleaning plant, has grown to one which handles about 1,500 accounts a year. College, high school and service teams in 42 states and Hawaii send their equipment here for reconditioning and possible storage during the off-season.

Iraqi Mass on Border, Syrian Chief Reports

Damascus, Syria, June 15 (U.P.)—Premier Hossni Zaim, chief of Syria's interim government, told the American, British, Egyptian and Saudi-Arabian Ministers here today that 5000 Iraqi troops were massed on Syria's borders.

It was understood he also informed the Ministers that he has ordered Syrian troops to the frontier, recalled the Syrian Minister from Bagdad, and would sever diplomatic relations with Iraq.

Once you try it-

You'll always buy it!

It must be god, this tasty new blend with the grand old name Mount Vernon! Its popularity is steadily growing—and you ought to find out why.

Next time you order a highball, say "Make mine Mount Vernon!" When you see how mild and flavorful it is you'll want to stock up for home use too!

TRANSFER PRIVILEGES

Few cities enjoy transfer privileges as liberal as your Nation's Capital. The proper use of these privileges will enable us to serve you better and speed your ride.

A transfer will be issued upon request only at the time a cash or token fare is paid and when it is necessary for the passenger to transfer from one line to another in order to reach his destination. A transfer does not have a "stopover" privilege. It is not good for another ride on the line on which it was issued nor is it good for a return trip on any line.

A transfer point is the intersection, divergence or turn back point of any line, or one stop on either side. Transfers are also good at established walking transfer points.

The time limit on each transfer is not less than 1 hour, nor more than 1 hour and 30 minutes.

Ward Pension By Fairchild Eliminated

New York, June 16 (AP).—Stockholders of Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corp., were told today the $25,000-a-year retirement provision for J. Carlton Ward, jr., and chief executive, has been eliminated at his request.

This provision had been assailed by Sherman M. Fairchild, founder of the company, who has forced an adjournment of the company's annual meeting at Hagerstown, Md., until July 6, and is seeking proxies for a slate of directors to oppose the present management.

President L. B. Richardson told stockholders, in a letter accompanying the mailing of management proxies, that Ward has informed directors he will accept no future retirement benefits without prior stockholder approval.

Richardson's letter said the only remaining issue now "is whether the present successful management will continue in office." He attached a comparison of aircraft manufacturing profits, before provision for Federal income taxes or tax credits and before provision for or restoration of reserves, which showed the Fairchild company among a group of only 4 companies in the field showing such profit for the three-year period 1946-48 inclusive.

DIVIDENDS: Directors of the Security Storage Co. yesterday declared a regular dividend of $1.25 a share and an extra of 75 cents, both payable July 11 to stockholders of record July 5. . . . Interlake Iron Corp. declared a dividend of 40 cents payable July 11 to holders of record June 27. A 60-cent dividend was paid in July last year.

Gainers included National Steel, Goodrich, Sears Roebuck, Schenley, Western Union, Public Service Electric, International Nickel, DuPont, Johns-Manville, Philip Morris, American Woolen, Nickel Plate, Sinclair Oil, Pacific Western, and Twentieth Century-Fox.

Omissions Found In Berry Hearing Official Transcript

NYHT News Service

Salient parts of important testimony given at a House Labor hearing were omitted from the official transcript, it was learned yesterday.

An immediate investigation of the omissions was started by Representative Andrew Jacobs (D., Ind.), after he checked the official transcript and found that "important testimony" had been left out. Representative Jacobs heads the Labor Subcommittee on Democracy in Unions which conducted the hearings.

After going over the stenographic notes of the hearings with the official stenographic reporter assigned to the committee, Representative Jacobs announced: "There is too much left out here to be inadvertent."

The transcript under question involves the subcommittee's investigation into charges that the late George L. Berry, president of the International Printing Pressmen's Union, manipulated hundreds of thousands of dollars of union funds to enrich himself. Missing from the official version of public hearings held on June 4 was a part of the testimony of an international officer who said that the union was misled in 1948 into paying back income taxes for Mr. Berry.

Treasury to Offer 1-Year Issue at 1¼ Pct.

The Treasury, sticking to the 1¼ per cent interest rate it has maintained in recent months, intends to 'roll-over" $5,782,890,000 in one-year securities falling due July 1.

New certificates at the 1¼ rate will be offered in exchange to all holders of the maturing certificates, listed officially as Series F 1949.

Curtiss-Wright Shows Net Loss in Quarter

New York, June 16 (AP).—Paul V. Shields, newly elected chairman of Curtiss-Wright Corp., in a letter to stockholders today said the company had a substantial net loss in the first quarter this year despite increased sales.

In an accompanying statement the company said the net loss was $759,864 as against net income of $1,340,068 in the first quarter of 1948.

Visible Grain Supply

Chicago, June 16 (AP).—Visible supply of wheat this week increased 4,120,000 bushels to 93,115,000 bushels, the Board of Trade reported today. Jobless Claims Filed by 3391 In Maryland

Annapolis, Md., June 15 (AP).—Some 3391 Marylanders filed claims for unemployment compensation last week, Chairman William H. Mahaney of the Department of Employment Security reported today.

During the same week the State paid $685,572 to persons out of work, Mahaney wrote Governor Lane.

He said 2410 new claims were filed in Baltimore, 822 in the counties and 159 from other States.

Compensation checks were mailed to 21,363 Baltimoreans, 11,358 to county residents and 1251 to outsiders.

Former servicemen received $104,436 in readjustment allowances in the same period. The total was shared by 2571 county veterans and 2695 in Baltimore.

Self-employed veterans received $8756 on 6 original and 72 continued claims.

Man Handcuffed To Sapling Slips Free Over Its Top

Rome, Ga., June 15 (AP).—State revenue agents came upon three men operating a still before dawn today.

Two took to the woods as officers nabbed the third. Agent Hobart Early handcuffed the prisoner around a small sapling and joined officers in the capture of the others.

When Early returned, his prisoner had climbed the sapling, bent it over and freed himself by slipping over its top. Bloodhounds were brought to the scene in an effort to "tree" the man a second time.

Squaw, Out of Prison, Rides Home in Style

Salem, Oreg., (U.P.).—A Klamath Indian woman hired a taxicab and rode in style from Oregon State Prison to her reservation home in southern Oregon.

Mrs. Imogene Fisher paid a Klamath Falls, Oreg., cab company $102 to send a cab to drive her home upon her release after serving five years for manslaughter for the death of Watkin Davis, another Klamath Indian.

Mrs. Fisher said she saw nothing unusual in hiring the long-distance cab. Said the Indian artist and silver worker: "I had too much luggage to take any other way."

Moving X-Ray Pictures Of Body Will Be Shown

Moving X-ray pictures of the human body will be shown Friday at the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., at 3:15 p. m. Dr. Robert F. Rushmer of Seattle, Wash., a pioneer in the new science, cinefluorography, will give the special demonstration, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. Rushmer, physiologist and biophysicist of the University of Washington Medical School, is one of the pioneers in the process by which skeletal and circulatory functions of the body can be filmed for later, detailed study.

Falls Church Merchants Join Fight on Comics

Falls Church merchants have agreed to cooperate in a campaign to rid the city of objectionable comic books, Mayor Albert M. Orme announced yesterday.

The Mayor's Committee for More and Better Reading, composed of 16 adults and three teenagers, will push a campaign for better reading in the community.

During the summer, young people will be encouraged to read at least 10 books from a suggested reading list.

Bill Odom Surprises Critical Instructor

Jones then stepped up to meet the pilot of the plane—Bill Odom, one of America's best known professional pilots and holder of a trunkful of air trophies.

Renner Heads Eagles

Frederick, Md., June 15 (AP).—C. J. W. Renner of Hagerstown today succeeded John F. Miller of Frederick as State president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. Renner was unanimously elected to the post by the 119 delegates attending the annual convention of the organization here.

Maryland Tobacco

Baltimore, June 16 (AP).—Prices on most grades at the southern Maryland tobacco auction markets today were steady to slightly lower than those of yesterday.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Maryland State Department of Markets reported most declines were on offerings of medium and low quality.

Delivery to the cooperative under the Government loan program continued at an estimated 5 per cent of sales, the agencies reported.

Net auction sales for yesterday were given as 229,740 pounds at an average price of $53.92 per hundredweight. This brought the season total to 15,311,021 pounds and the season average price to $52.87.

The department said auction sales are running about 1,900,000 pounds above the figure for the corresponding number of selling days last season.

Average auction bid prices per hundred pounds on U. S. grades today included:

Two hundred and fifty families are now comfortably settled in these exceptionally fine garden-type apartments. We have about the same number still under construction. There are a few choice units ready now, and there will be more coming ready during May and June.
These are truly spacious quarters, with venetian blinds, 6-foot Frigidaire and four-burner oven-control gas range. Locker spaces and metered laundry facilities in basements. Grounds beautifully planted and sodded.
We now have four fully equipped play areas for small children, and there are to be four more. Free recreation room space is being furnished for the operation of a cooperative Teen-Ager Club. We are also turning over one of the apartments for the free use of a cooperative day nursery to be operated by the tenants.
4-room unit, consisting of living room, dining room, bedroom, kitchen and bath at $86.50.
Two-bedroom apartments are priced at $92.50 (with dinette) and $96.50 (with full dining room). Utilities included in above prices.
DIRECTIONS: Out Bladensburg rd. to Peace Cross and bear right to Edmonston rd., left up Edmonston about one mile to Madison st. Or: Capital Transit bus or trolley to Mount Rainier and transfer to East Riverdale bus, Route B-4, to subdivision. Resident manager at 5433 55th pl., Apt. 101.

$2,500 DOWN

Rambler on 7 acres near Shirley hwy. Some 10 years ago the owner picked this site and on it recently built a simple rambling house, with a 30-ft. paneled living room, 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, dining room, kitchen and large enclosed porch. Because of death in the family the property is for sale at $17,000, which represents the owner's investment. Except for about 2 acres that have been cleared, the land is heavily wooded in oak and poplar and has a picturesque brook. While this area is likely to develop rapidly, no other houses are visible from this house, so we do not recommend it for timid wives. Clear of debt and the owner will finance at $100 per month.

What's the Verdict

BOY AND BB GUN

Q. Because sparrows were trying to drive bluebirds out of a nest in his yard, a man got a BB gun and kept it just outside the back door of his house, loaded. He had two children, and other children of the neighborhood frequented his yard. He told his 10-year-old boy to shoot sparrows, but told the other children of the neighborhood they must not touch the gun. Nevertheless one of them, Billy, who was notoriously mischievous, picked up the gun and through careless handling of it, shot Joe, another neighbor boy, injuring an eye. Is Billy or the man liable?

A. Billy certainly is liable, the man probably so. Children are responsible for their carelessness, even though they are minors. Even though very young children are presumed incapable of intending harm, they are liable in civil actions for their carelessness since intent to do harm is not a requisite of civil liability. A jury would be justified in finding the man liable because (1) he permitted the children to play in his yard (2) he must have known the gun was irresistible and he left it in a place easy of access, making it an "attractive nuisance;" (3) he knew Billy's reputation; and (4) he must have known that the combination of Billy and the gun was almost certain to cause harm to somebody.—F. L. D.

Fine and Fancy Free

Fix a Feast for Father—Fit to Fill Without a Frill

By Lucia Brown

EVERY day could be Father's Day—or should be—but there are still only 24 hours a year officially set aside in praise of pappy and they all fall on next Sunday.

This being so, it behooves every father's son and daughter to make the gorgeous guy as happy as possible on June 19. A good starting point is to feed him the things he likes best, served up in succulent variety, just as he prefers 'em. After all, what can just one day do to his waistline?

Your father may be the hamhocks-and-cabbage type, or he may prefer broiled breast of pheasant under glass. Or perhaps he just wants broiled steak and pie. If the latter is true, then he's right in there pitching with the great majority of American men. This is shown by practically every survey of male eating preferences ever made—including our own spot survey of Washington Post employes, taken on the back of an old blank check.

Good meat, well-cooked, without a lot of fancy sauces, is the favorite food of most men, apparently. A couple of them, by name Fletcher Pratt and Robeson Bailey, wrote a book called "A Man and His Meals," and explained why this is so. It's the primitive coming out in them, say Pratt and Bailey, even though they're now civilized enough to want their meat cooked.

Men eat for fun, continue these two, while women eat with their eyes (wanting everything prettied up) or their minds (thinking about diets.) As with any primitive form of fun, the closer to nature the better, they say. That's why plain steaks, roasts, chicken, etc.—not all chopped up and mixed with a lot of fancy "goo"—is what the gents want.

Man's metabolism is given credit for his partiality to meat by another authority, George Fredericks, author of "Cooking As Men Like It." A man's metabolism perks along at a faster rate than a woman's, hence his need for meat, which can be quickly transformed into energy.

Most men appreciate well-prepared vegetables, too, though, says Mr. Frederick. Our own queries indicate that while some eat vegetables only from a sense of duty or when browbeaten into it, the duty becomes a pleasure when the vegetables aren't cooked half to death and have plenty of seasoning. Among salads, sliced tomatoes and mixed green salads are more likely to be eaten by the male animal than fruit or gelatin concoctions.

As to desserts, pie generally is the winner in all the polls, especially apple, with cherry as a runner-up. Chocolate cake and ice cream were among top favorites of men in the armed forces during the war. In our own poll at The Washington Post, however, we were surprised to find most of the men suggesting a light dessert (after a fairly heavy dinner)—watermelon, sherbet, or strawberries, for instance.

When the fathers we queried had stopped drooling over the things they liked to eat, they switched almost automatically to the things they DON'T like. High in the category of pet hates were: Parsnips, squash, aspic, rice pudding, "runny" salads, leathery griddle cakes, underdone pie crust, puddings that taste like library paste, and weak coffee.

Here are two Father's Day menus, suggested by two of the local gentlemen who claimed modestly that they were "average," though they looked well above average to us. (After all, we gotta keep on working in the building with them, don't we?) A few suggestions to aid in preparation follow each menu.

The first features steak, by all odds the most popular meat among the men questioned, and was suggested by a Texan:

Steak (1½-inch thick)
French Fried Onions
Asparagus
French Fried Potatoes
Sliced Tomatoes
Hot Biscuit
Watermelon

Your father may have some special preference about the types of steak he likes. If not, though, remember that for the large family, a sirloin steak makes generous servings for everybody. T-bone and porterhouse steaks will serve a family of three or four, while club steaks, if cut thick, will serve two.

Cooking the steak is simple. Just place on broiler rack 2 to 3 inches from the heat—the thicker the steak, the farther it should be placed from the heat. One masculine cook suggests rubbing it lightly with olive oil, but it's not absolutely necessary to add any fat if you don't want to.

Let the steak cook until its golden brown on one side then turn and cook on the other. Modern home economists warn against putting on the salt until the steak has browned, since salt tends to bring out juices of the meat and retard browning. Season as soon as its done on each side. A porterhouse steak, 1½-inch thick, will cook rare done in about 30 minutes. If

See FOOD, Page 4, Column 3.

STEAK, STEAK, STEAK! That's the chorus you hear when you ask the gentlemen about their favorite food! Dad's approval will be at an all-time high when you place a thick, juicy porterhouse like the one above before him

MY HEART BELONGS TO DADDY:—Father will get a real kick and a lot of eating pleasure out of a handsome, heart-shaped cake on his day. Since chocolate rates so high in masculine regard, you might make the inside by your favorite devil's food recipe (or is that appropriate?) and cover it with thick white icing

FRIED CHICKEN, too, is another all-time masculine favorite. Be sure it's plenty brown and crisp, but not cooked hard and dry. Maybe Pop would like some potatoes and good, smooth cream gravy with it

Jokes Reflect Trend

Heard Any Good Stories From Curtain Countries Since the Reds Took Over

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THERE'S currently little indigenous humor lying loose around the Iron Curtain fringe. But after mighty scrabbling, two nubbins of so-called wit came to light and are passed on as indication of tempo.

1. From Berlin, where the most provocative insult to a Russian is to call him "bez cultura"—lacking in culture. A Soviet soldier, writing home to Mom, pencilled everything was a joke on the Spree. Food O. K.; beds comfy; the company, too. In fact the only unpleasant aspect in the Berlin adventure was a deplorable lack of culture. In due course Mom scribbed back her happiness at sonny's cushy living and, after this and that of chit-chat, concluded with maternal solicitude: "If I only knew what it was, son, I'd sure send you a lot of culture!"

2. From Budapest, where a tough Communist named Rakosi rules the roost. A kiddie was told by his teacher to quit thanking God for such blessings as came his way, instead, to mention Rakosi in his prayers. The Magyar tot, evidently the thoughtful type, pondered some time, then came up with a question. To whom would he pray if Rakosi should happen to die? His teacher, without flicking an eyelid, replied succinctly, "Thank God!"

In and around the Ruhr, where coal production, under United States persuasion, has zoomed to 86 per cent of prewar high, an assortment of miners interviewed, turned tables, eager for Americana. Hollywood, prices, politics, all the usual queries made by foreigners, were ignored. Sole, burning question was to pin down rumor that John L. Lewis' take-home pay almost equalled President Truman's. Assured this was approximately true, questioners remained drop-jawed for seconds, then, shaking heads, they commented in shocked awe, such an amazing thing would never be countenanced among the hardworking Ruhrlanders!

McCloys Rival McCoys

MRS. John McCloy, whose husband will soon set-up shop as top United States civilian administrator in Germany, has been having considerable fun about the house assigned her in Frankfurt. To facilitate dispatching and arranging the family lares, and possibly penates—Mrs. McCloy received a set of blueprints labeled with Teuton meticulousness.

Everything was comparatively clear sailing until she noticed a huge room placed between, and equal in size to, the dining room and salon. In this blank space is printed the simple legend LADY. Considering the room's size and situation, the obvious connotation is definitely misleading. Now the mystery to be solved is what function does this chamber serve—and how to furnish it appropriately? Just off another drawing room is a smallish space labeled "Voliere"—or aviary, This, Mrs. McCloy was most gratified to find since it solves a vexing housing problem—where to park the family's favorite pet—a bachelor canary of ripe age and spectacular chirping ability. With such elegant space at his disposal, friends have suggested the acquisition of a lady canary—and having the McCloys indulge in bird raising. This should make a great hit, since Frankfurt isn't far from the Hartz Mountains where the local yokels breed canaries as fussily pedigreed as the mightiest Arabian stallion. What with canaries and Ellen McCloy's perfect command of the German language, the McCloys are setting out on the right foot.

Milk Is Favored Far and Away, Poll On Drinks Shows

Milk is far and away the favorite beverage of Americans, according to an American Can Co. survey of the Nation's drinking habits.

Milk, beer, soft drinks, coffee and canned fruit and vegetable juices are the top five beverages preferred by the average American gullet, the survey shows.

On a per capita basis, the average inhabitant of this country last year consumed some 180.5 quarts of milk, 71.2 quarts of beer, 48 quarts of soft or carbonated drinks, 38.7 quarts of coffee and 8.3 quarts of canned fruit and vegetable juices, as compared with 4.7 quarts of hard liquors. Cans are used in some form in the packing and distribution of all five favorites, the study showed.

An almost five-fold increase in per capita consumption of canned fruit and vegetable juices during the past 10 years was noted in the analysis, with new methods and processes for canning fresh-flavored orange, tomato and grapefruit juices held responsible for a major part of the increase.

MARKET MEMO . . .

BING CHERRIES and plums from California are among recent arrivals that bring a bit of variety to the fruit market here. The cherries are fairly reasonable and plentiful. Strawberry prices are climbing again, the current ones coming from northern Jersey and New York. Citrus prices continue quite high; Florida oranges and grapefruit have advanced most of all in the past month.

FRESH PORK has dropped sharply in price at wholesale in the past week. Beef, lamb and veal are slightly lower, too. Prices on smoked meats remain about the same.

TOMATOES are cheap and plentiful. Potatoes have dropped slightly. New Jersey lettuce is lower, California lettuce higher. Good buys are green beans, bunch beets, cabbage, squash, kale, spinach, turnips and onions. Asparagus is a little cheaper, too, with a good supply coming from New Jersey.

A member-bring-a-member tea and fashion show will be held by the upper Northwest group of Hadassah today, 1 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Philip Diatz, 7520 16th st.

Fashions will be presented by the Berlou Dress Shop using both professional models and members of the group. Many of the clothes will be modeled by members and their daughters, who will show a complete line of "mother and daughter" dresses. Commentator for the fashion show is Mrs. Alvin Ehrlich. Accompanying music will be played by Mrs. David Citrenbaum.

Mrs. Raphael Tourover, member of the national board of Hadassah, will be the guest speaker. She will discuss "The Function of Hadassah."

Mrs. Philip Silverstone is chairman of the tea, assisted by Mrs. Frank Fields. Members interested in attending are asked to call Mrs. Silverstone, Taylor 5011.

Soroptimists to Install Officers at Banquet

The Soroptimist Club of Washington will install its newly elected officers at a banquet Saturday at the Shoreham Hotel. A reception will be held at 6:30 p. m. preceding the banquet in honor of the outgoing and incoming officers.

Miss Ella Werner, regional director of the South-Atlantic region of the American Federation of Soroptimist Clubs, will install the following officers: Miss Mary Judge, president; Mrs. Cleo Marfeldt, first vice president; Miss Mary Ahern, second vice president; Mrs. Edith Beattie, recording secretary; Mrs. Betty Perkins, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Edna Nick, treasurer; Mrs. Edith C. Jarvis, regional representative; and Miss Mary Elisabeth Mersheimer and Miss Nelia Turner, members of the board of directors.

Wolfe Chapter Elects Mrs. Frank Heller

Mrs. Frank R. Heller was elected president of the Capt. Wendell Wolfe Chapter, DAR, at a recent meeting held at the DAR chapter house.

Others elected for two-year terms include Miss Mabel A. Barkley, vice regent; Mrs. Charles E. Turner, chaplain; Miss Beulah Orr, recording secretary; Mrs. Mae Harris Nelson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Chloe A. Meader, treasurer; Mrs. Leo F. Haines, registrar; Mrs. Carrie Lewis Bretney, historian.

Mrs. Alexander H. Bell, chapter member, and a past State chaplain, conducted the installation ceremony.

CDA Plans Garden Party And Bazaar

Court District of Columbia No. 212, Catholic Daughters of America, will hold an indoor garden party on Saturday, starting at 4 p. m., at the club house, 2 Scott circle.

The chairman, Mrs. Leona B. Zuch, and her cochairman, Miss Elizabeth Elder, have planned many entertainment features.

There will be a food bar under the chairmanship of Miss Augusta E. Uhl. Here you may stock up for the weekend with home-baked cakes, cookies and other pastries, and there will be an abundance of homemade jellies, jams and preserves for your immediate or future use.

Miss Anna E. Chisholm will be in charge of the flower mart. There will be lovely spring and summer flowers, potted plants, flower bowls and vases as well as corsages, and even orchids for milady.

The apron bar will be manned by Mrs. Anna J. Uhl and a committee of experts, who will have your favorite apron for any occasion.

The needlework booth is under the chairmanship of Mrs. Ileene Fisher. Artistic needlework and handmade articles for the home may be purchased here for one's own use or for the bridal gift which probably every member will need at some time during the summer.

There will be a penny sale in charge of Mrs. Catherine Birmingham. This is a popular booth at which a variety of articles may be purchased.

The game room where you may play your favorite game of cards and other games will be in charge of Miss Josephine Walsh, and there will be lovely prizes for the winners.

The snack bar in charge of Miss Agnes Roche will be a popular spot when the members drop in after office, or during the evening when they become weary of touring the booths. Miss Roche will have tempting menus from which you may order a dinner or just a snack, a soft drink or a cup of tea or coffee, whichever your taste demands.

Miss Mary Ellen Dashiell, Grand Regent, will assist Mrs. Zuch and Miss Elder in welcoming the members and their friends to the garden party.

Born 7-8-'29? TWA May Have Prize for You

A search for Washington girls who will celebrate their twentieth birthday on July 8 is being conducted by Trans World Airline.

The search is being conducted in each of the 57 cities served by the airline in an effort to locate the girl who was born nearest to the moment when the inaugural flight of the Nation's first transcontinental passenger service took off on July 8, 1929. The local winner will be announced on June 20 and the national winner selected 10 days later.

When found, the Washington girl will be offered a hostess scholarship at McConnell School and will be invited to participate in a Nation-wide program to select "Miss Aviation-20" who will reign over ceremonies in Los Angeles next month when TWA observes its twentieth birthday. The national winner will also receive a $500 savings bond. An additional $500 savings bond will be given to the person or group discovering the girl who becomes the national winner.

All unmarried girls in the Washington area, born on July 8, 1929, are eligible in the competition. Entrants will be required to indicate their time of birth and submit a full length photograph. Applications are available at TWA's office at 745 15th st., and at 1026 17th st., nw.

340 Admissions To CAR Reported By Registrar

Three hundred and forty children have been admitted to membership in the National Society, Children of the American Revolution, since the organization's board meeting in April, according to Mrs. Roger Williams, national registrar.

Five of the new members are residents of the District of Columbia. One was admitted to the George Washington Society, one to the Harriet M. Lothrop Society, two to the Mount Vernon Society, and one to the Wakefield Society. Mrs. Williams explained in her report at the CAR national board meeting held this week in Memorial Continental Hall.

Mrs. Roscoe O'Byrne Awarded Degree at Lincoln University

Lincoln Memorial University at Harrogate, Tenn., this week conferred the degree of Doctor of Humanities upon Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne, president general, National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, in a ceremony held at the college.

The university, located high in the Cumberland Mountains, is one of the approved DAR schools. It was started in 1890 as a small mission for Southern mountain boys and girls, and later was chartered as a college, "for the education of the children of the humble and common people of America among whom Lincoln was born."

The degree was presented to Mrs. O'Byrne by Robert L. Kincaid, president of the university.

Mom sold my baby furniture with a Post want ad!"

MRS. HELEN WARNER of 2202 Good Hope Road S.E., had a long conference with her son, "Woody," age 2. The subject under discussion was "Woody's" baby furniture—a baby carriage and a playpen.

"Woody" urged her to sell them both immediately. He'd decided that he was really too big for that sort of thing. Finally, Mrs. Warner agreed. She asked "Woody" if he thought a Post want ad would be a good way to do it.

"Just the thing," said "Woody" solemnly.

"Do you really think so?"

"Post want ads get results!" proclaimed her son.

Now, perhaps, this report of the Warner family conference is not strictly accurate. But this much is true:

Mrs. Warner did advertise the baby furniture in The Post. And her ad certainly did get results. She sold the playpen the first day and the baby carriage the second. She had never used Post classified advertising before, but she reports: "I'll certainly use it in the future!"

Quick results . . . satisfying results (for the Post readers who found the furniture they needed as well as Mrs. Warner—and, of course, "Woody"!) That's how Post want ads work. They benefit everybody. When you have surplus items to sell, put an ad in The Post. Call NAtional 4200 and ask for an ad writer.

$8.95 Nylon Slips $5.65

White or pink, exquisite slips styled with four gores so they won't ride up, and gorgeously trimmed top and bottom with lovely nylon lace. Worthy of a trousseau, and today you enjoy a $3 savings on them! Sizes 32 to 42.

$6.95 Nylon Petticoats $3.95

Hemmed with three inches of fine white nylon lace! Just perfect to wear with your sun-back dresses on those hot, hot days. The waistband is elasticized, and the nylon cuts your laundering time down to a minimum. White. Sizes 5, 6, 7, 8.

$2.50 to $3.00 Nylon Panties $2.35

$12.95 Nylon Gowns—"Beautiful Dreamer!" $8.95

"Beautiful Dreamer" gowns that are a froth of 20 denier nylon tricot. So sheer and cool with a plunging neckline back and front, shirred shoulder straps and bodice, and a wide comfortable skirt. Wash it in a twinkling, and it needs no ironing. Aptly named and prettily priced. Assorted pastels. Sizes 32 to 40.

$10.95 Sheer Nylon Crepe Gowns $5.95

FOOD—From Page 1

Father Fancies Beef and Pie For His Day

Dad likes his steak medium-done, broil it about 5 minutes longer.

FRENCH FRIED ONIONS

1½ pounds Bermuda onions
1 egg white, slightly beaten
1/3 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¾ cup fine dry bread crumbs
Fat

PEEL ONIONS under water and cut into slices about 1/3 inch thick. Slash each slice to center and pull rings apart. Combine egg white and milk and dip onions into this mixture. Dust with salt and pepper and roll in fine bread crumbs. Plunge into hot deep fat (preferably in frying basket) and fry until brown. Drain on absorbent paper. This recipe serves six to eight people.

THE SECOND MENU, suggested by a native Washingtonian, features fried chicken, potatoes and cream gravy. He specified the latter must be good and thick.

Tomato Juice
Fried Chicken Cream Gravy
Mashed Potatoes
Corn on the Cob
Lima Beans
Tossed Green Salad Hot Rolls
Sherbet Iced Tea

Probably you've got your own favorite way of frying chicken, if your family particularly fancies such fare. Here's a tested recipe from the home economics kitchen of one of the big packing companies, however, followed by a gravy recipe:

PAN FRIED CHICKEN

1 chicken, disjointed for frying
1 cup flour
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 teaspoons paprika (optional)
½ cup butter
Fat.
3 tablespoons water

RINSE AND DRAIN chicken. Put flour and seasonings in paper sack and shake chicken in it three or four pieces at a time to coat thoroughly. Heat butter and enough fat in a heavy skillet to make layer of fat ½-inch deep. Put chicken in brown, and turn. When well browned, add water and cover tightly. Reduce heat and cook slowly 30 to 40 minutes or until chicken is tender.

GRAVY

½ cup flour
4 cups milk
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Finely chopped giblets (optional)

POUR DRIPPINGS from frying pan. Measure out ½ cup and return this to pan. Add flour, mix well, and brown slightly. Gradually add milk to mixture in pan, stirring constantly with pancake turner to make smooth gravy. Add seasonings and giblets if desired. Cook 10 minutes.

Nina Gerhardt Wins Scholastic Honors

Miss Nina Gerhardt, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Charles H. Gerhardt, USA, was graduated from the Chevy Chase Junior College, Washington, last week. It was announced at the exercises that Miss Gerhardt had the highest scholastic standing for the year among the students of the school. She is the granddaughter of Gen. By Tom Kelley—The Washington Post

WITH THE AIR of one who is going places, this little miss is headed into vacation land, hard and fast. And she's dressed for the part, too, in sports togs that will measure up to practically any occasion she may happen upon during her summer ramblings. Her boxer shorts, of navy gabardine with elasticized belt, are sturdy and comfortable, easy to jump into; twin sweaters, cardigan and slip-over, are of oyster white cotton boucle, with bands of blue and red at the neckline and cuffs. Cardigan, which has long sleeves, also has brass buttons. It can go with her to the beach or mountains now, and to school (perish the thought) in the fall. Available in sizes 7 to 14 at Julius Garfinckel & Co.

Jennet Pohl Becomes Bride

Miss Jennet Shields Pohl, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Herman Henry Pohl of Leesburg, Va., was married Tuesday afternoon at the Church of St. John the Apostle in Leesburg, to Lieut. Willum Harry Spillers, jr., USAF. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willum Harry Spillers of Richmond, Va.

Given in marriage by her father in a ceremony performed by the Rev. Father Michael Igoe, the bride wore a white satin gown with lace bertha and long sleeves, and a white illusion veil with pearl coronet. She carried white Japanese iris and pale blue delphinium.

A reception was held at Mauka, home of the bride's parents, in Leesburg. Following a wedding trip to North Carolina and Mexico, the couple will live at Randolph Field, San Antonio, Tex., where the bridegroom is stationed. The bride attended Marymount College. The bridegroom was graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Caffreys Feted At Reception By Mrs. Lewis

FORMER Ambassador to France, Jefferson Caffrey, and Mrs. Caffrey, were welcomed back to Washington at a reception yesterday afternoon given by Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, and a dinner last night at which the French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet were hosts.

Mr. Caffrey has been in New York awaiting the arrival of Mrs. Caffrey from Paris. They came to Washington yesterday.

Mrs. Lewis in a black chiffon gown with green-bronze orchids pinned to her shoulder, stood with her guests of honor in the pleasant drawing room. Guests were free to wander out into the tree-shaded garden, where tables and chairs were drawn up for conversational groups.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet—Mme. Bonnet just back from Paris—were among the 150 or more guests.

Dr., Mrs. Blair Entertain For Daughter, Judith

DR. AND MRS. Montgomery Blair gave a dinner last evening at the Chevy Chase Club for their daughter, Miss Judith Cary Blair, who has just graduated from Westover. At Christmas time Miss Blair will be presented at a dance at the Sulgrave with her two good friends, Miss Alice Watson and Miss Anstiss McCormick-Goodhart.

Dinner last evening was in the men's grill, and later there was dancing on the terrace. Guests, nurbering 48, were seated at a long table centered with pink and blue flowers. Miss Blair wore a gown of stiff white organdy, pinned at the shoulder with slipper orchids.

Miss Marthinson a Bride

Christ Church in Georgetown was the scene of the marriage yesterday afternoon of Miss Sherrard Coleman Marthinson to Francis Girault Addison 3d. The ceremony was performed by Canon Albert H. Lucas, assisted by the Rev. John Anschultz.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Detlow Mainch Marthinson, and Mr. Addison is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis G. Addison, jr., all of this city.

Mr. Marthinson gave his daughter in marriage. With her gown of white organdy and chantilly lace the bride carried white orchids and lilies of the valley. Her veil fell from a headdress made from heirloom Rosepoint lace.

Miss Jan Marthinson was her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Frederick Finkenstaedt, Miss Olive Watson, Agnes Dunn and Miss Dudley Nicolson. Dr. Worth B. Daniels, jr., served as best man and the ushers included Robert E. Lee IV, Richard L. Borden, Huntington Turner Block, Griffin B. Holland, Clinton Grove Smith, Detlow Marthinson, jr., and James W. Quiggle. A reception followed at the Marthinson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Addison will live in Washington when they return from their honeymoon in Bermuda.

The bride, a member of the Junior League, attended Holton-Arms School and was graduated from the Knox School in Cooperstown, N. Y. She is the granddaughter of the late Col. and Mrs. Sherrard Coleman and Mrs. Robert L. Frew.

Mr. Addison is studying law at George Washington University.

MISS YARDLEY MINNIX

Glogau

Miss Yardley Minnix Makes Bow

A pretty girl with dark curly hair, blue eyes and deep suntan made her bow last evening at a dance at the Columbia Country Club. The debutante, Miss Yardley Minnix, was dressed in white nylon net, very bouffant, with white crushed satin sash. Her flowers were an old fashioned bouquet of white carnations sent by her father, Allen Clark Minnix.

Mr. and Mrs. Minnix stood with their daughter to greet the several hundred guests, Mrs. Minnix, gowned in powder blue chiffon pinned at the shoulder with a white orchid. Dancing was on the terrace with Sidney and his orchestra.

The debutante was graduated from National Cathedral School this June, and in the fall she will attend Pine Manor Junior College in Wellesley, Mass.

Before the dance last evening the Norwegian Ambassador and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne gave a dinner at the embassy for their daughter, Miss Marjorie de Morgenstierne, in honor of Miss Minnix. The two girls have been classmates at National Cathedral. Miss Morgenstierne will be presented at an embassy party on December 20.

Dinner guests last evening were Miss Adrian Dunn, Miss Rebecca Ann White, Miss Elizabeth Burbank, Miss Florence Walker, Miss Eleanor Tydings, Miss Constance Bissett of Vancouver, Canada; Miss Janet Lloyd, Miss Betsy Goodloe Porter and Miss Ann Carter.

Escorts included John Brawner, John A. Manfuso, jr., David Marsh, Stewart Fraser Taylor, William Graham, John Bowles, Peter Armstrong, James Vinson, Max Truitt, jr., Thomas L. Hume, and Jo Tydings.

Dinners were also given by Dr. and Mrs. Felix Somary and Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Louchheim, jr.

Helen Early Honor Guest

Mrs. Lyle Wilson entertained at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon in honor of Miss Helen Virginia Early, daughter of Undersecretary of Defense and Mrs. Stephen Tyree Early. Miss Early's marriage to William Nile Elam, jr., will take place on July 5.

Brides-elect sharing honors with Miss Early at yesterday's fete were Miss Muffin de Sibour, who will marry Norman Christy in the fall, and Miss Molly Goodrich, whose marriage to Benjamin F. Houston takes place June 25.

Miss Early has selected her sister-in-law, Mrs. Stephen T. Early, jr., as matron of honor for her wedding. Her bridesmaids will be Miss Valerie Blacknall of Atlanta, Ga., Mrs. E. C. Houston of Asbury Park, N. J., Mrs. Leroy V. Altz, jr., of Wynnewod, Pa., and Mrs. Harry C. McComas of Silver Spring, Md.

Wilbur Wagner of Washington will serve as best man. The ushers will be James Broome of Takoma Park, Bertil Renborg, John Lucid, Richard Tucker and Stephen T. Early, jr., of Washington.

Mrs. Lyle Wilson entertained at a cocktail party this afternoon in honor of the couple.

Miss Neumeyer, Bride-Elect, Is Luncheon Guest

Miss Mary Virginia Neumeyer, whose marriage to Dr. Vincent Lane O'Donnell will take place June 22, was honored yesterday at a luncheon given at the Congressional Country Club by her aunt, Mrs. Joseph Conlon.

Among the guests were Mrs. William Neumeyer, mother of the bride-elect, Mrs. William O'Donnell, mother of the prospective bridegroom, Miss Sarah Elizabeth Conlon, cousin of Miss Neumeyer, Mrs. Norman Conlon and Mrs. Robert Donahu.

Also, Mrs. Raymond Hurley, Mrs. Maury Twomey, Mrs. John Conley, Mrs. Robert Fuller, Mrs. John Butler, Mrs. Richard Michaels, and Mrs. Edward Kelly.

Lieut. T. W. Swett, Miss Stewart Wed In Cadet Chapel

The marriage of Miss Caroline Stewart and Lieut. Trevor Washington Swett, jr., USA, was solemnized June 8 in the Cadet Chapel at West Point. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Paul T. Schultz, jr., of Westfield, Mass., a close friend of the bridegroom's family.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Stewart of LaGrange, Ga., wore a white satin gown with lace yoke and carried a bouquet of roses, baby's breath and gardenias.

The bridegroom is the son of Col. Trevor Washington Swett, USA (ret.) and Mrs. Swett of Chevy Chase, Md. The bride is a graduate of Northfield School and Smith College. Lieutenant Swett was graduated from Mount Hermon School and the United States Military Academy this year. After August 1 Lieutenant and Mrs. Swett will live at Junction City, Kansas, while Lieutenant Swett is stationed at Fort Riley.

Mrs. Magruder Is Wed in Paris

Mrs. Elvine Richard Magruder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Auguste Richard of New York, was married in Paris, yesterday to Paul Scott Rankine, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Andrew Rankine of Blundell Sands, Lancashire, and Churt, Surrey, England.

The bride lived in Washington during the war. Mr. Rankine is chief of the Washington Bureau for Reuthers, the British news agency. A graduate of Oxford, he served during the war as Second Secretary to the British Embassy in Washington. He and his bride will make their home in this city.

About Removing Perfume Stains

I had some perfume given to me which I used on my handkerchiefs and slip and it left a yellow stain. Repeated washings hasn't helped. Can you suggest what I can do to remove these yellow rings? H. T. G.

Since the handkerchief and slip have been washed, your best chance now of removing the stains is to use a bleach. Sodium perborate is a bleach which is safe to use on rayons as well as cottons. Dampen the stain, dust powdered perborate on it and rub between the fingers to work well into the fabric. Let stand an hour or so and rinse thoroughly. If stains are not completely removed, repeat.

I have a number of antique jugs and bottles which have various sized mouths. I am planning to convert them into lamps, but have been unable to locate a store which handles converters in sizes to fit these jugs. Do you know of any store which would have them? M. H.

There is a firm on G street which sells the adapters for various size openings. If they do not have an adapter to fit your jugs or bottles, they will fit one to order for you. You can reach them by calling National 0140.

Can you tell me how to take the starch out of a dress? I have washed it myself twice, but ordinary washing doesn't have any effect on it. It's as stiff as old fashioned crochet mats! M. K. L.

Continued washing will eventually completely remove the starch and is really the only safe way to do it. You might let the dress soak for a time in cool water before you wash it to more thoroughly loosen the starch. Also, hanging to dry on a windy day will make it less stiff.

I wonder if you can tell me what is wrong with my cheese souffle? I use the recipe in "The Joy of Cooking" and sometimes have wonderful luck with it and at other times it seems heavy and does not puff up. The last time I tried using a higher temperature and faster baking according to the advice of a French chef, but it collapsed before I could serve it. Do I overmeasure or undermeasure some ingredient or is the kind of cheese wrong sometimes? The cream sauce mixture sometimes has a feeling of heaviness and then even the addition of extra egg whites will not make it rise properly. A. E. W.

Speaking as you do of "undermeasuring and overmeasuring," I suspect you do not use standard measuring cups and spoons and standard measuring procedures. Reliable recipes such as are found in the book you use are all based on standard measurements and the only way to be assured of a consistently high quality product every time is to use only standard measurements.

Our grandmothers were able to make delectable products by measuring by handfuls, but their consistently high standards were achieved only after many trials and errors while they learned the exact consistency the batters should be for a good cake, for instance. By using standard measuring equipment and methods, modern cooks are able to eliminate this trial and error factor from the beginning. The feeling of heaviness you notice in your cream sauce at times is doubtless due to using more flour at some times than at others. The consistency of the cream sauce is most important to the success of cheese souffle.

So, I suggest that if you do not already have them you buy some standard measuring spoons and cups. The flour should be sifted once before measuring because flour as it stands in a container becomes packed. By always sifting flour before measuring you will always have the same amount. When putting it in a cup, take care not to knock the cup to level the flour in it, but lightly level with a knife. If you choose to measure the flour by tablespoons (16 make a cup) place the sifted flour in the spoon and level off with a knife. All other ingredients should be measured with equal care.

Your souffle probably collapsed when baked with higher, faster baking temperature because it was not cooked through. Souffles should be baked in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. for 50 to 60 minutes so that the heat has reached the middle of the souffle to set it.

We have a small Greek statue of the period 400 B. C., in bronze in our possession. We have reason to think it may be an original or a copy by a student of a great sculptor. Could you tell us to whom to apply for an opinion as to its authenticity? M. B.

The Curator of Sculpture at the National Gallery of Art will give you a verbal opinion as to the authenticity of the statue. This opinion will establish whether the statue is an original or a copy but will not appraise it as to the price or value. The gallery maintains this service for the public entirely for the owner's satisfaction and the information obtained is not to be used in the future in any way as a business transaction. For the opinion, the statue must be taken to the gallery. Before taking it, make an appointment by calling the registrar at the gallery.

Please give me directions for making a man's white shirt worn with a separate collar, into a sports shirt by addition (sewing) of a sports collar of the same material? A. B. C.

The simplest way to make this alteration is to purchase a sport shirt pattern in the same size as the shirt. Use from the pattern only the collar and the front facing patterns. Remove the present collar band from the shirt by ripping the stitches. (If you cut the band off instead of ripping you will remove the seam width which you need to attach the other collar. Remove the buttons and take out the hem on the button side. Cut off some of the hem, but leave enough so that when the rough edge is folded under the side will be the original size.

It will not be possible to remove the original bindings on the buttonhole side because of the holes so attach the new facing there by turning under a seam width (one-half inch) on the facing and basting to the back of the buttonhole side. Stitch on machine along very edge. The facing may be attached to the button side the same way.

With the facings in place, attach the collar. Directions for this will be given in the pattern. At the position of the original buttonholes, cut buttonholes through just the facing and finish.

If the shirt being converted has long sleeves and you wish short sleeves in the sport shirt, perhaps there would be enough material in the part cut off the sleeves for the facing and collar. Otherwise, it should not be too difficult to match the shirt material in new material for collar and facings.

Plans to Diet Don't Remove Any Pounds

By Ida Jean Kain

Every spring you definitely plan to get slim . . . and actually look forward to it—well, to being 10 or 20 pounds lighter anyway.

Here it is June 17—how many pounds did you take off this spring? Planning to diet, and dieting are not exactly the same thing.

Perhaps the only thing that will jolt you into action is to face the fact honestly that if you don't start now, this third week in June, it is just possible you will be overweight for the rest of your life!

Ridiculous? Well, how many seasons have you been planning to do something about normalizing your weight? Are you nearer normal weight . . . or have you put on more pounds as the years go by?

It will help to know that it doesn't take strong will power to reduce. The psychologists explain that the will is merely a set of habits. A weak will as far as food is concerned is a sure sign of poor food habits.

The proof: Excess weight comes on between 35 and 40. Does this mean will power gets flabby in middle age? Not a bit of it. If is merely that less food is used. The gradual slowing down, both internally and externally, means that calories are not converted into energy quite as fast as formerly. So, eating the same as you did in your young 30s, part of the calories are stored. It isn't lack of will power after all . . . it's just that your food habits no longer fit your energy needs.

In summer you make a change in your ways of eating anyway, switching to lighter fare, so start leaving out some of the calories, too. Then nature will automatically draw on the stored fat, gradually turning it back into energy. That's it—you're reducing!

As you know, it's a lot easier not to overeat if you don't feel hungry. So use the science of nutrition to outwit appetite. Have an egg at breakfast, and skip the jam on the toast. Have two thin slices of toast, lightly buttered.

Get the habit of eating breakfast . . . it's slimming.

And instead of just picking up something for lunch, plan a good meal—grilled cheese and tomato, a glass of buttermilk and a piece of fruit. A balanced lunch will keep you from wanting to piecemeal later in the afternoon. But if you feel hungry along about 4, have a glass of buttermilk or an orangeade or tea. Skip the little cakes.

"Well, what ya know?! . . . She's CUTE!"

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Grandparents don't seem to be as important as they used to. Nowadays, we often live far from our childhood homes and only on special visits do youngsters get to be with their grandpas and grandmas. Indeed, there are not a few parents who do their best to make contacts with grandparents few and far between. They fear that the "old folks" won't use the right methods with their grandchildren, that they will spoil them or in some way "upset the apple cart."

Of course, these things do happen, but probably not as often as we fear. It's good for children to know grown-ups other than their parents, too. Grandparents are naturally interested in their grandchildren and usually have a lot to contribute to their growing up. Often they have more time to spend than do busy parents. Often, too, they are a bit more relaxed about children's behavior and are less likely to put undue pressure on children to be "little ladies and gentlemen." In lots of ways they can bring fun and satisfaction.

Many of us remember time with grandpa or grandma as being "high spots." We ought to give our children a chance for the same sort of experiences.

Delinquency Film Packs Real Punch

UNIVERSAL-International has taken advantage of the current interest in juvenile delinquency to make a disturbing film, "City Across the River," now at the Capitol. Probably it will have no effect sociologically, but as a piece of screen entertainment it's a hard-hitting story of teen-age crime.

Based on the not-good novel, "The Amboy Dukes" by Irving Shulman, "City" is the story of a gang of kids who live in a tenement section of Brooklyn. It could be any gang in any large city. The result is that the picture has a certain immediate relation to anyone who sees it.

Wisely, Maxwell Shane, who directed, has refrained from attempting any solution to the problem. Instead, he has fashioned an engrossing melodrama which has objective integrity. True, for the sake of pleasure he has dealt with a fictitious situation, but the overall impression you carry away is that it could happen today, in Washington, D. C.

Story of Change

Whereas in the novel the action was more diffuse, the movie concentrates on one specific member of the Dukes, Frankie Cusack. The story deals with the changes in him from a normal, ambitious high school youth, as he becomes involved, against his better instincts, with the gang. He becomes a hoodlum as the activities of the Dukes develop from ordinary rowdyism to the murder of a high school teacher. Although that summary sounds elemental, the picture is not. Time is given to the interplay of characters in the gang and the adults with whom they come in contact.

The cast, made up chiefly of newcomers, is very good. No one in the picture is famous so they all have to stand up and deliver good performances. The Dukes are all strange faces, but Peter Fernandez as Frankie, Joshua Shelley as Crazy, and Al Ramsen as Benny stand out, primarily, because they are given more footage than Mickey Knox, Richard Jaeckel, and Anthony Curtis. A very small part is played by a boy named Joseph Turkel, as Shimmy. Brief though it is, he shocks with forceful terror as a potential killer.

Stephen McNally is seen as the "moral force" in the community. He's right for the part. On the female side of the ledger, the girls match the quality of the boys' performances, particularly Barbara Whiting as the girl who excites the emotions of Crazy, and Sue England as Frankie's girl friend. Nice contrast is achieved in setting their tender romance against the background of the menacing environment in which they live.

Praise For Shane

Most of the credit for the success of the film should go to Maxwell Shane. He went to Brooklyn and filmed the picture right on the spot; he helped write the screenplay; he has used his lighting and his cameras to evoke the overhanging menace of such surroundings. He has done a fine job.

Drew Pearson makes a brief appearance as the narrator of the film, to more forcefully bring home the importance of the theme of it. In praise of it, he was not needed: it can stand on its own feet as a proud successor to "Naked City."

The Capitol repeats this week another good vaudeville bill. Sam Jack Kaufman opened yesterday's show with an apology for a long-hair overture; he didn't have to; it was good. The Robert Sisters and White were pleasant as a tap dance trio. Anne Rooney sings some current pop tunes and gives her impressions of some Hollywood stars. Don Cummings brings down the house with his patter but Gautier's Canine Bricklayers build it right up again with one of the cleverest acts in show business.

You've Trod These Dusty Avenues Before

WHEN you've seen "Streets of Laredo," the new Technicolor western at the Palace, you come away with two impressions. You've seen it 50 times before; in the past, the title has been more aptly chosen.

How William Holden, MacDonald Carey and William Bendix ever saw fit to get involved with this hoary old chestnut is beyond this reviewer. They should know better.

Listen to the plot. Three friends, the brainy one (Carey), the straight one (Holden), and the dumb one (Bendix), are infamous bandits when the picture begins. They save a girl (Mona Freeman) from other bandits. Soon (in the next reel) the friends get separated in a melee in the moonlight. The brainy one proceeds to become the terror of Texas, the greatest bandit this side of the one-armed one.

His buddies, the real hero and the dumb guy, go straight. They join the Texas Rangers "to make Texas a safe place to live in." But to do this they must eliminate their friend. In doing so, the dumb one gets killed in cold blood (it's never warm blood in these things) and the hero finally shoots it out with his former friend.

The girl? She loves the brainy one until she finds out what a rat he really is. But why go on?

To get back to that title: the only time you see the streets of Laredo is in the final gun fight. During the previous seven reels you've ridden hard and fast over half the Southwest, having heard the "Streets of Laredo" mentioned in a song at a Ranger camp fire.

It is to the credit of Holden and Carey that they make much of the story credible, and passable hot-weather entertainment. Holden underplays a role which might easily have become ridiculous in less competent hands. Carey adds wry humor to a stock role and he helps it considerably. William Bendix plays William Bendix on a horse. Mona Freeman looks nice in blue denims.

Leslie Fenton has directed this Paramount release. It should never have been allowed out of the corral. JOHN M. COPPINGER.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—All the newsreels and television films last week included reissues of the D-Day movies—excerpts taken by Army, Navy and Air Force cameramen during the invasion of Normandy. These movies were made on borrowed film . . . Three days before D-Day SHAEF suddenly discovered that everything had been prepared except sufficient film to photograph the event. Warrent Officer Matty Fox, who had been vice president of Universal Pictures, immediately phoned Ernest Blake of Eastman-Kodak. Blake delivered his available store, 500,000 feet of film, to Fox personally, and billed him for it. This film was distributed to the Armed Forces, and was used on D-Day . . . A few days later the Army shipped 500,000 feet of film to London, and Fox delivered it to Blake, as payment.

Allyn McLerie, now appearing in the Sherwood-Berlin-Hart musical, "Miss Liberty," makes so many costume changes that she has a supplementary dressing room in the wings . . . Another member of the cast complained to Director Moss Hart that he doesn't have enough costume changes. "For instance," he said, "four years elapses between my second and third scenes. Don't you think I should change into another suit?" . . . Hart replied: "The suit I'M wearing is five years old."

Boxer Cleared Of Murder in Gun Slaying

Alvin W. (Dynamite) Johns, an 18-year-old boxer, was free yesterday of a second degree murder charge. A District Court jury late Wednesday night returned a verdict of acquittal before Judge James W. Morris.

The indictment on which he was tried charged him with the fatal shooting on August 2, 1948, of Zeb Jeffries, jr., 29, 1515 Vermont ave. nw. Johns' address is given as 1402 S st. nw.

Testimony showed that an argument between the two men ensued when Jeffries dropped a lighted cigarette in Johns' pocket. Johns pleaded self defense. He testified Jeffries attacked him with a knife and continued coming at him after he fired one bullet over Jeffries' head. He then fired three times into Jeffries' body.

Johns was previously convicted on the charge, but the verdict was set aside when it was found he was a juvenile at the time of the offense. Subsequently, juvenile authorities waived jurisdiction. He was then retried.

Miss Darragh Named To Faculty in Boston

Miss Mary A. Darragh, former probation officers for the District's Juvenile Court, has been named to the faculty of the Boston College school of social work, it was announced yesterday.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Statistics Indicate It's 'Open Season'

"Coroner Finds That Two Drivers Died of Natural Causes," says a recent headline.

Pedestrians don't fare as well.

THAT'LL LEARN YA!

Gladys Bordeaux of 211 Delaware ave. sw. reports that her 4-year-old niece became annoyed with a buzzing fly the other day, and decided to kill the pesky thing.

She began by chasing the fly with the energy and grim determination that one might expect from a 4-year-old. But that didn't work out so well.

So the little girl decided on a more crafty strategy. From the closet she hauled forth an insect spray and, holding the sprayer in at the ready, she bided her time.

The fly dropped to the floor, staggered. Administering the coup de grace with a flyswatter, the triumphant lass crowed:

"Now g'wan back and tell all your fly friends that if they dare come in here they'll never get out again."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Small tan dog, housebroken." (Victor 0614.)

"Four beautifully marked 8-week-old puppies; also year-old female, mostly bird dog, affectionate, alert, good watchdog." (Alexandria 5440.)

"Male collie pup, 7 months old, used to children, good watchdog." (Rockville 4167.)

"Two 6-week-old male kittens, black tipped with white." (Union 3555 after 6:30 p. m.)

"Dear little gray and white cat; I'm selling my home and can't take her with me." (Columbia 4851.)

"Year-old female Maltese cat and two 8-week-old kittens." (Shepherd 0946.)

SUCH IS LIFE

The other day I ran a few lines which I hoped would help me avert individual answers to a monotonous question.

I said that I didn't know the "mystery tune," or other jackpot answers on give-away programs, and that even if I thought I did know the answers, I wouldn't print them.

At least a dozen people called that day, and began their conversation with: "You had something in your column today about the mystery tune, and I wonder if you'd tell me what it is."

One call, however, was a bit unusual. It began:

"You are a stinker."

The caller was Charles F. Paradise of 1106 S. Thomas st., Arlington, Va. After hearing the basis for his complaint, I thoroughly agreed with his opinion of me.

It seems that Charlie was home (Brooklyn) over the weekend, visiting his 90-year-old father, Louis Paradise.

While he was there, Pop got a phone call. "Can you identify this song?" asked the caller.

They played "Paper Doll," which was quickly identified, and that won an automatic dishwasher for the Paradise family—plus a chance at the jackpot. "Now can you identify the mystery melody for $23,000 in prizes?"

There were some 20 Paradises gathered in the house, reports Charlie, but not one of them could come up with the answer. So the $23,000 slipped through their grasp, and they had to be content with the dishwasher.

"That's why I say you're a stinker," said my caller. "If you'd have published the name of that tune, we'd have won the big prize."

You know—some days I really hate myself.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I'm engaged to a boy who is very ill. His hobby is collecting old phonograph records and at the present time his chief ambition is to possess a copy of Rudy Vallee doing the "Whiffenpoof Song."

It's very rare now, and I suppose it's practically impossible to find. But I'd like to try, because I know it would cheer him up.

I'd pay anything for a copy of this record. Or perhaps we could borrow a copy from some other collector and make a duplicate of it. My telephone number is Tuckerman 5414.

Frances Smith.
3553 Holmead pl. nw.

Dear Frances:

To District Liners, nothing is impossible. Let me know how you make out. Bill.

VAGRANT THOUGHT

B-36 Probe Backfires On the Navy

By Drew Pearson

The much ballyhooed probe of the B-36 is now taking an unexpected and not too happy turn—at least for the Navy. The turn is so unhappy that naval reserve Capt. Congressman Jimmie Van Zandt, the Pennsylvania Republican who started all the B-36 furor, would just as soon forget about it.

Van Zandt

For Chairman Carl Vinson of the Armed Services Committee is not merely probing the B-36. He is also investigating the source of the smear stories against Secretary of Defense Johnson and Secretary of Air Symington. In other words, he is probing the delicate but highly important question of who wrote Congressman Van Zandt's vitriolic speeches.

In this connection it may be significant that the Navy has suddenly transferred its press relations and propaganda expert, Rear Admiral Edward Ewen, to Guam. Admiral Ewen had served only one year of a three-year tour of duty, but suddenly he was whisked off to a distant island, far from the strong arm of a congressional subpena.

The Vinson committee is also expected to apply the microscope to the most powerful backstage lobbying organization ever to buttonhole Congressmen for a Government bureau—the Navy League. Frank Hecht, president of the Navy League, has now become so vituperative in comparing Secretary Johnson to European dictators, that good-natured Bob Fleming, president of Washington's Riggs National Bank, is all set to resign as treasurer of the Navy League. As treasurer of the GOP Congressional Committee last year, Fleming helped raise about a million dollars for Dewey, and has no love for the Administration. But he hasn't been able to stomach the Navy League diatribes.

The Navy League has now taken over the admirals' crusade against the bill before Congress tightening unification. What the admirals say privately, the Navy League now says for them publicly.

Harry Truman isn't the first President to have trouble with the Navy League, Herbert Hoover also had his hearaches. Just 17 years ago he got into such a mudslinging duel with the Navy League that the latter ended up charging the President of the United States with "abysmal ignorance."

Attempting to practice economy, Hoover had ordered the admirals to cut their 1944 budget. Instead, the admirals upped it by 40 million dollars, and Hoover sent the budget back with a demand that it be reduced 20 million dollars under 1932.

Whereupon the Navy League, acting as a megaphone for the admirals, hurled the "abysmal ignorance" charge at Hoover just as the same Navy League is now calling Secretary Johnson a dictator.

Most folk have forgotten the origin of the Navy League—which shouldn't be forgotten, for its founders read like a meeting of metallurgical magnates. They include: Charles M. Schwab, Bethlehem Steel Corp.; J. Pierpont Morgan, United States Steel Corp. and owner of a controlling interest in the Carnegie Steel Co.; Col. R. M. Thompson, International Nickel Co.; B. F. Tracy, attorney for the Carnegie Steel and Harvey Steel companies, and director of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Co.; George Westinghouse, Westinghouse Electric Co.; Clement A. Griscom, director, Cramp Ship and Engine Co., the Electric Boat Co. and the United States Steel Corp.; S. S. Palmer, director, Lackawanna Steel Co., and 18 members of the Midvale Steel Co.

Members of the Navy League have been active and brazenly admitted their activity in sabotaging American diplomats at international conferences. It was Charley Schwab of Bethlehem Steel and associates who paid $25,000 to "Big Bass Drum" Shearer to frustrate the Geneva Naval Conference. The steel and shipbuilding companies just didn't want naval limitation to succeed. Dividends, for them, came ahead of their country's efforts for peace.

At Geneva, Shearer would have got nowhere if he had not had the all-too-eager cooperation of several U. S. naval officers sent to Geneva to work for naval limitation. Instead, they did the opposite.
